ONE MILLION QUIT WORK, BRITISH MINES

LLOYD GEORGE TO ACT TUESDAY

Declare Shipping Will Be Tied Up Within Week

LONDON, Oct. 16.—(By the Associated Press)—With a million miners out of the pits tonight, thousands of dock and industrial workers already out of employment as a result, and transport workers and railroad men called to meet soon to discuss a sympathetic strike, Great Britain faces one of its greatest industrial upheavals, in the opinion of labor and political leaders today.

Reports from industrial centers are not reassuring. Port officials say shipping will be tied up within a week. The most hopeful message came from Sheffield, where, it is believed, there is enough coal for three weeks. At other centers one week's supply is the limit.

The statement that the men struck against advice of most of their leaders was confirmed somewhat by the attitude of many who left the pits. They said they did not understand voting against the "datum line" meant a strike and it is clear a great many misunderstood the "unfortunate phrase" as A. J. Thomas, secretary of the National Union of Railwaymen, called it in a speech. He admonished railroaders to listen to the advice of their leaders which would be given after the meeting Wednesday.

A different note was struck, however, by the South Wales branch of the miners' federation, which called a meeting for Friday to recommend that if the strike was not settled by October 30, pumpmen and other employees remaining should be called [illegible] is indicated tonight that Premier [illegible]d George will take no hand before Tuesday, when parliament meets.

London's electric signs and window displays are dark tonight by order of the coal controller and the races, for which special trains usually are operated, have been cancelled.

Notwithstanding the food ministry's assurance that there will be plenty of food, London provisioners report housewives are laying in supplies. The sugar ration will be cut half Monday.

Premier's Message

LONDON, Oct. 16.—The premier's message read as follows:

"The nation is confronted with a coal strike. The government has made every effort consistent with its duty as trustee for the people to avert this calamity. The proposals of the government have been supported by many of the most responsible leaders of the miners' federation. They have been regarded by all sections of the people as fair and reasonable.

"The government offered to submit the miners' claim for an increase in wages to an impartial tribunal and to abide by the result. This offer the miners refused. The government offered to give the increase asked for if the miners would restore the present low production of coal to the figures of the early part of the present year.

"This, too, the miners refused against the advice of their most experienced leaders. They are attempting now to gain their ends by force. The nation must and will resist such an attack with all its strength, and there can be no doubt as to the issue.

"The citizens must help each other to lessen the inconvenience and suffering which the miners' strike will cause. The supplies of coal for the public service are sufficient. The government will insure the fair distribution of the available supplies of coal. Every householder can help by saving coal. Every manufacturer can help his workmen by making his supplies of coal last as long as possible. There should be no cessation of employment until that misfortune cannot longer be avoided, and, above all, the people should remain calm and deal with their emergencies as they arise.

"No one need underrate the damage which the strike will do, but no one need be dismayed. We have been through much worse time. With steady purpose to do justice, the nation will overcome all its difficulties."

New York Center World Sunday School

TOKYO, Oct. 14.—The World's Sunday School Association elected John Wanamaker of Philadelphia president of the organization and named vice presidents.

The convention decided to maintain international headquarters of the association in New York instead of dividing it between New York and London.

Belgium Faces Mine Strike, Nov. 1

BRUSSELS, Oct. 16.—Miners in the vicinity of Mons have joined those in the Charleroi field in demanding a wage increase of five francs per day, and have threatened to strike against the advice of leaders. Belgium now faces a general miners' strike on November 1.

HARDING GIVEN GREAT OVATION, ST. LOUIS SPEECH

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Oct. 16.—Before a crowd which overflowed the big St. Louis Coliseum and greeted him with cheering and singing which lasted more than a half hour, Senator Harding tonight closed his last extensive speaking trip with an address in which he coupled condemnation of embarrassing foreign political entanglements with a plea for extension of the nation's foreign trade and commerce.

Again arraigning the Democratic administration, he declared that in the last few years there had been too much "meddling" in Europe and too little trade co-operation with Latin-America and other lands.

The night meeting concluded one of the candidate's most strenuous days of campaigning during which he spoke in Indiana and Illinois. The League of Nations had a prominent place in his utterances, the nominee replying to criticism of his proposal for a new world association. At Green Castle, he asserted a "spokesman" of France had been sent to him to ask that America lead the way in formation of a world association and at Effingham, Illinois, he quoted a similar declaration by Stephan Lausanne, French publicist.

He asked for a Republican Congress to assure team work in the national government and to make certain of a complete reversal of Democratic policies and practices.

Want American Leadership

In his reference to an emissary of France, the nominee did not explain from whom the French request had come. He added, however, Lloyd George and Earl Grey had spoken for American leadership in revising the League covenant.

The quotation from Lausanne contained the declaration that the French people were ready to give up the League, if necessary, to insure America's moral leadership.

"That was the tribute," said Senator Harding, "of one of the nations who the Democratic nominee says we are trying to desert."

The Senator, in his address here, urged extension of American banking and merchant marine facilities, coupled with more efficient development of an inland waterways system, as steps toward development of the nation's foreign trade.

Mexico, South America, Asia, Africa and Australia were designated by the speaker as district offering inviting opportunities for American commerce. Establishment of an international financial system and extension of th merchant marine would aid in developing trade with the more distant parts of the world, he said, while a co-ordinating policy of international and waterway development would open the way to Mexico and South American republics.

Foreign Trade.

Quoting statistics of the nation's foreign trade, Senator Harding said that it was apparent Europe could not be expected to offer in future the same market for American goods she provided before the war. Development of markets in other parts of the globe was desirable because the demand there was for manufactured goods which America could most easily supply, he declared. He cited the British expansion of foreign financial connections as an example of what might be done in that direction.

"Our own government has signally failed to extend its industrial and commercial enterprises anything like the sort of encouragement and support given British industries by the British government," he said. "So far as we properly may we should coordinate all the facilities of finance, of domestic and overseas transportation, of tariff policy, of trade agreements, of consolidated credit, in order to direct our foreign trade into new fields.

"In the effort at expansion of foreign trade there must be consideration for two particular instruments of that trade. There must be expansion of American banking facilities and the opening of American trade routes under the American flag in the interest of American trade to all countries with which we desire to cultivate larger commerce.

Open Waterways

"We need once more to open the great waterways as the avenues of our commerce. Unrestricted competition between railways and waterways is good for neither and thoroughly bad for the country as a whole. We might well learn a lesson from Europe which before the great war had developed its waterway systems to the point where they carried an astonishing proportion of all traffic.

"The Mississippi river is the natural gateway to the sister republics south of us. I foresee at no distant time under a wise and steadfast foreign policy, a new era in our relations with Mexico, a new epoch of development for all the regions of the Caribbean and beyond.

"We must make our friends and neighbors of Latin-America all the way from the Rio Grande to Cape Horn understand and believe we seek no advantage for ourselves that shall not apply at least in equal measure of advantage for them.

"Convinced as I am that the Panama Canal has a peculiar concern to the people of our central valley, it has long been a matter of profound regret to me that the canal should not have been made one of the great free highways of American trade. I cannot but feel that the policy of a Democratic administration in administering the canal has failed sadly in realizing it possibilities."

COX CLOSES OHIO CAMPAIGN; SAYS HARDING WOBBLES

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 16—More charges against Senator Harding of vacillation on the League of Nations—"of somersaulting, wiggling and wobbling"—were made by Governor Cox in a statement tonight and in five speeches closing his Ohio campaign.

Senator Harding's address yesterday at Indianapolis was the basis of Governor Cox's renewed assault. The Governor declared it was the Senator's twelfth "flop" on the League issue and charged his opponent with "attempting to wiggle himself into the presidency."

That the Senator's Indianapolis speech was a plea to League advocates, after "rejection" of the League in his Des Moines address, was asserted by Governor Cox.

"A great principle has been vindicated in the hearts of the American people," said the Governor's statement. "They are for the League of Nations."

"When the senatorial oligarchy wrote the Republican platform, it was deliberately made meaningless and vague. It was the vehicle which was to enable the Senatorial candidate to ride through the campaign assuming the attitude of all things to all people. To Johnson followers he said what they desired to hear; to the friends of Taft and Root and Wickersham, his speech was veiled innuendo and implications. In the face of the greatest issue in all history, it was unfortunate that a great political party did not take a more definite stand. It was pathetic to see its candidate attempting to wiggle himself into the presidency.

Helpless in No Man's Land.

"I was convinced, when I left the great western country that a storm of protest and indignation was growing. It is here, and Senator Harding is helpless in No Man's Land, bereft of public confidence. Within the week Judge Taft sent forward a flag of truce from Vancouver, stating his candidate had seen the light. Yesterday, Judge Root and thirty-one associates in New York came forward with another flag of truce. This morning Senator Harding leaves the dugout and comes to the hosts of peace with his hands to high-heaven, crying 'Kamerad, Kamerad.' America has heard this cry before, and has found that it came from those who could not be trusted, even after they surrendered. Speaking plainly, Senator Harding deserves his present plight. No man, who in the midst of grave conditions exhibits only words, words and then more words, which mean nothing, deserves the confidence of the people."

"I felicitate the friends of peace," the statement concluded.

"The new order in the world is assured. It has been a great fight, not for the Democratic party, but for humanity. The jury has the evidence and it calmly but happily awaits the hour to render the verdict."

Governor Cox's attack on his opponent and his league reachments were cheered by all of his audiences, especially an afternoon gathering of women here.

Questions invited by the governor and asked by several with women unusually prominent in the quizzing, drew amplified statements on Japanese questions from the candidate. He stated his opinion that the Japanese land dispute in California was "a California question."

"My judgment is," he said, "that the federal government should accept the decision of California." Adding that the land and Japanese immigration questions were "internal affairs," the governor said that the league, with the "Hitchcock reservations," would have no jurisdiction over them.

"When Japan is so greatly interested?" a woman asked.

To the women, Governor Cox declared that through woman suffrage American women would "come to the front in time to save the civilization of the world."

HOLD SUSPECT CARUSO THEFT

Police Say Brooklyn Man Has Stolen Gems in Possession

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—Harry C. Toback, a salesman of Brooklyn, was arrested tonight, charged with having committed the half million dollar jewel theft from the home of Enrico Caruso several months ago. According to the police, Toback has admitted possession of some of the stolen gems.

The arrest, detectives declare, was the result of a carefully laid trap. Police give full credit for Toback's capture to two sisters, Mrs. Catherine Smith and Charlotte Poillon, in whose apartment the suspect was taken at the point of a revolver by Detective H. J. Porter. He protested innocence, though the women testified he had told them a different story when he tried to sell them valuable jewels.

Toback was forced to drive his captors to police headquarters in his own automobile.

Receiving Toback in a room in which recording phonographs had been installed, the sisters led him on to make an offer of sale of "jewels, the proceeds of the Caruso robbery, for $50,000 cash." Concealed in a room overhead, sleuths "listened in."

Toback was apprehended just as he was leaving the flat. Protesting, he was led back into the room. Here he was forced to open a sample case he was carrying, disclosing a collection of women's sealskin coats.

According to the account given by detectives, the prisoner told the women that the jewels were in Baltimore and that they would have to go there to see or get possession of them.

The Poillon sisters gained international reputation during the world war when they were instrumental in effecting the arrest of Raymond Rolfe Swoboda, ostensibly a Frenchman, who was accused of being in the pay of Germany and of having fired the liner La Touraine.

STIMSON SWINGS OVER TO SUPPORT OF GOVERNOR COX

CHICAGO, Oct. 16.—Democratic national committee headquarters here made public a statement by Marshall Stimson, of Los Angeles, announcing he would vote for Governor Cox. Mr. Stimson, the statement adds, was campaign manager for Senator Hiram Johnson in southern California in 1916; a delegate to the Republican national convention in 1912 and a member of the California Republican state committee this year.

"I am brought to the point where decent self-respect will no longer allow me to continue my support of Senator Harding," the statement says, after reviewing the Senator's stand on the League of Nations issue, "and the most effective protest I can make is to vote for the Democratic nominee, Governor Cox, who has wisdom enough to take the side of the right and courage to be positive in expressing his views."

MAKE CHANGE HAITI PROBE

Major General Nevill Succeeds Pendleton in Investigation

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—Substitution of Major-General W. C. Nevill, marine corps, for Brigadier-General J. H. Pendleton on the board which will begin here next week investigation of charges of illegal executions by marines in Haiti, was announced today by Secretary Daniels.

General Pendleton, the secretary said, had served in Haiti, and the substitution was made so that the investigation should be by men "detached from Haitian affairs."

Doubt as to jurisdiction for court martial should former members of the corps be implicated by evidence, will be cleared, Mr. Daniels said, adding that an opinion had been requested from the judge advocate-general.

In several cases of men still in the service, where sufficient evidence has been found, court martial proceedings will be instituted, Secretary Daniels added.

Asked whether he had any reason to believe that the report of Colonel Russell, the loss of which appears to have halted proceedings in the investigation ordered by Brigadier-General Barnett, former commandant, had been "destroyed or suppressed" by persons at interest, Secretary Daniels said he had not.

"But there might have been reasons that persons implicated would have wished to destroy the report," he added.

Referring to General Barnett's reference to "indiscriminate killing" of Haitians by marines in his "personal and confidential" letter to Colonel Russell, Secretary Daniels reiterated that he believed the officer "could not have intended that phrase as descriptive of the general condition in Haiti."

ASK FOR WATER SURVEY FUND

Irrigationists Will Urge State Distribution, Storage Plans

SACRAMENTO, Oct. 16.—At a meeting of the California Irrigation District Association here today, a resolution was adopted asking the next session of the state legislature to appropriate $50,000 for a preliminary survey and investigation of the water courses, with a view to formulating a fundamental state plan of water storage and distribution. This recommendation was made after Colonel Robert B. Marshall, author of the Marshall water reclamation plan, had named the foregoing amount as probably necessary for the preliminary survey necessary for his project. Dr. Samuel Fortier, chief of irrigation inspection of the United States Department of Agriculture, urged the necessity of a centralized state administration of water, based upon some adequate system of storage and control.

Charles H. Lee, executive member of the water commission, laid before the meeting the water commission bill to provide for the equitable distribution of water by the appointment of water masters. He also emphasized the need for a state plan to end litigation and provide storage. F. W. McClure, state engineer, indorsed the purpose of the Marshall plan and the necessity of a state investigation providing a groundwork upon which to build.

Colonel Marshall explained that his plan would end the annual waste of 27,000,000 acre feet of water which flows through the Carquinez Straits and provide for the storage and distribution of virtually the entire flow from the main water shed of the Sacramento and San Joaquin Valleys. This, he said, would be accomplished by four main canals, skirting the east and west sides of the valleys, with the reclamation of 12,000,000 acres of land.

The meeting was attended by forty delegates, representing about one hundred water districts.

Sacramento Demand

SACRAMENTO, Oct. 16.—An appropriation from congress for a survey to determine the feasibility of a system of locks and dams on the lower Sacramento river to impound waters for irrigation was asked in a resolution adopted here today by the Sacramento Development Association.

Captain E. S. Jarvis, United States engineers, one of the speakers, said a dam across Carquinez Straits would cost about $15,000,000 and would make it possible to impound 800,000 acre feet of water.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 16.—The Philadelphia and Reading Railway Company announced today it had reduced its working force approximately 1,000 men and that effective today all employes were put on an eight-hour basis.

JAPAN PARLEY DELAYED UNTIL AFTER ELECTION

State Department and Embassy Await Result California Vote

Tokyo Reports Discussion Proceeds With Sympathy

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—(By The Associated Press.)—Conversations between the state department and the Japanese embassy regarding the proposed anti-Japanese land legislation in California, have been temporarily discontinued and will not be resumed until after the November elections in which the California people will vote on the land legislation.

State department officers explained today that postponement of the negotiations had been made necessary by the assembling here of the international communications conference. Under-Secretary Davis is chairman of the American commissioners to this conference and much of his time as well as that of other department officials is taken up with this meeting.

The conference is to continue several weeks and it was stated that consequently the conversations with the Japanese ambassador could not be resumed until after November 2.

Discussion Harmonious

TOKYO, Oct. 14.—(By The Associated Press.)—The Japanese foreign office stated today that the conversations between Japan and the United States over the questions pending between the two nations were continuing sympathetically, each government earnestly seeking to find a solution. This statement was brought out by reports from Washington printed in some of the Japanese newspapers to the effect that the state department and the Japanese embassy had discontinued their negotiations.

It is understood that in pursuing the negotiations Japan is contending there should be no discrimination in connection with the enjoyment of civil rights because of any question of eligibility or ineligibility to citizenship.

Orientals Getting Control

SPOKANE, Wash., Oct. 16.—The Japanese and Chinese are getting control of exclusive apartment houses, hotels and business districts on the Pacific coast, constituting a serious menace, Edward M. Applegarth of San Francisco told today's conference of Pacific Coast Building Managers and Owners.

John H. Carter of Seattle, and James J. Sayer of Portland said similar conditions existed in their cities, but efforts were being made to restrict the orientals to certain districts.

Should Accept California Decision—Cox

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Oct. 16.—The Japanese California land controversy Governor James M. Cox said in an address here late today, is a California question, and, he said, "The Federal government should accept a decision of the State of California." He said it would "most certainly" be a domestic question, not under the jurisdiction of the League of Nations.

ASK HOUSTON BE REMOVED

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 16.—Resolutions calling on President Wilson to remove Secretary of the Treasury Houston from office, because of his "persistently unfriendly attitude toward agriculture," were adopted today at the annual meeting of the Georgia division of the American Cotton Association.

The resolution, which was adopted after a half hour's discussion, makes the following complaint against Secretary Houston:

"That he started the raid on cotton in September, 1919, with an interview declaring that 25 cents a pound was a fair price for cotton, when it was then selling for 35 cents; that his well-known unfriendly attitude towards the agricultural interests while he was secretary of agriculture caused the farmers of the country to object strenuously to his appointment as secretary of the treasury; that since his appointment as head of the treasury department he has continued his unfriendly attitude toward agriculture by issuing statements and propaganda to reduce the price of farm products and has continued this propaganda so persistently and effectively that the price of cotton and agricultural products has declined below the cost of production, thereby causing the loss of millions of dollars to the farmers of the United States."

Negotiate For Air Service For Atlantic

GENEVA, Switzerland, Oct. 16.—Reports today from Friedrichshafen, Wurtemburg, state negotiations between a newly organized American syndicate and a company of former Zeppelin officials have almost been completed for a trans-Atlantic airship service and a trans-American service. Representatives of the American concern are said to be in Friedrichshafen now.

Santa Barbara to Have 8-Cent Carfare

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 16.—Eight-cent carfare in Santa Barbara was granted today by the railroad commission after an investigation of the affairs of the Santa Barbara and Suburban Railway Company. Purchased in strips of five coupons the price is to be seven cents, while the rate for school children's ticket books was fixed at 2 1-2 cents.

The new rates will go into effect within twenty days, the company being directed to file a rate schedule conforming with the order before charging the increased fares.

ASK DIPLOMATS EXEMPT FROM LIQUOR SEARCH

Alleged Bay Conspirators Get Preliminary Hearing

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—(By The Associated Press)—Disclosure of a new prohibition snarl in which three government departments and members of the diplomatic corps are involved was made today when the State Department issued a statement saying "it assumes no official of the government would attempt to pry into the baggage of a foreign diplomatic officer."

The unusual course of the State Department in making what appeared to be a public appeal to other government officials was adopted, it was learned, after the treasury had amended customs regulations to require baggage of diplomats to be examined and liquor removed. Back of the action of the treasury, it was disclosed, was an opinion rendered by the Attorney-General. It was said to hold that the Volstead act withdrew from diplomats the exemption from customs examination of their baggage heretofore accorded.

No Formal Protest

Diplomats have made no formal protest. The State Department however, has seen evidence of irritation among them here. Since the opinion of the Attorney General failed to sustain the Department's contention that examination exemption be continued, it sought recourse through the public statement.

Differences have arisen between state and treasury officials. Treasury officials let it be known that the discussion of the status of diplomats' baggage began last spring. The treasury was said to have formulated the policy then and asked the State Department for its views.

Foreseeing the possibility of embarrassment, the state Department obtained a delay in issuance of the new restriction. Late in August, however, Assistant Secretary Shouse, whose resignation was announced only this week, applied to Attorney-General Palmer for an opinion interpreting the Volstead act. That opinion was said to hold all importation of liquor was barred by the act. The State Department, however, is said to have made representations against the rigidity of the findings on the ground international comity and law, worked to the contrary. A second legal review by the Department of Justice resulted and the State Department again was defeated in its contentions, it was said.

On receipt of the Attorney-General's opinion, said to have been written and signed by Solicitor General Frierson as acting attorney-general, Mr. Shouse amended the customs regulations to require "examination of baggage or effects permitted free entry" into the United States.

Bay Hearing

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 16.—Six men charged with conspiracy to sell liquor illegally through the misuse of withdrawal permits from bonded warehouses, and declared by federal officials to be the leading spirits in a big liquor conspiracy, appeared before the United States commissioner, Francis Krull, today for preliminary hearing, but their cases were continued to next Tuesday and Wednesday.

One of the defendants, Douglas Newton, who had one arm and several ribs broken in an automobile accident some time ago, was taken into court on a stretcher. The procedure drew sharp criticism of Newton's attorney from Commissioner Krull, who said Newton's appearance was entirely unnecessary.

Federal authorities announced today that investigation was still going on of rumors that Loren Handley, prohibition enforcement director for California, who lost his life in an automobile accident near Lodi several weeks ago, met death through foul play.

Preliminary hearings of Charles Daniels and Charles Callaghan, charged with attempting to give an internal revenue agent an $8,000 bribe to facilitate liquor withdrawals, were continued until Tuesday.

Must Be Approved

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—Withdrawal of intoxicating liquors from bonded warehouses must be approved by state prohibition directors before permits will be granted, under an order issued today by Commissioner of Internal Revenue Williams.

At the same time the commissioner announced that all permits to purchase intoxicating liquors of any kind for any purpose hereafter issued shall not be enforced to exceed 30 days after date of approval. The only exemptions are permits to purchase by physicians of the homeopathic or the ecclesiastic schools.

AIR MAIL PILOT KILLED, CRASH

OMAHA, Neb., Oct. 16.—Bryan McMullen, of Dallas, Texas, air mail pilot of the Chicago-Omaha service, was killed when his plane fell today near Batavia, Ill., according to information received here from the superintendent of the air mail service at Chicago.

The pilot was seeking to land in the early morning fog. His machine struck one of a few telephone lines running across the prairie and turned over. As it hit the ground the gasoline tank exploded. The driver was strapped in and burned to death. George White, a farmer, and his wife, saw the flyer hit the wires but the flames were so intense they could not get near him. The flyer was westbound.

OMAHA, Oct. 16.—McMullen had only been in the Chicago-Omaha service for about a month, postal officials said. His wife lives here.

SENATOR PHELAN'S TELEGRAM URGING SUIT DISMISSAL

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 16.—Senator Phelan was the guest tonight at a Cabrillo Day celebration dinner at Los Angeles Harbor, where he issued a brief statement concerning the telegram he sent to Attorney-General Palmer in regard to the government's complaint against the Fresno corporation.

"I have not a copy of the telegram which I sent to Washington, but it became public property when it was printed by Fresno papers, and I would be pleased to have it published in conjunction with the letter which the Attorney-General's office has given out," he said.

"It was a suggestion that if there were any evidence of illegality in the operations of the company that prosecution be deferred until the crop for this season was harvested, owing to the fact that many interests would be affected.

"I had in view the protection of the banks which had loaned money to the growers, and other interests which would have been vitally affected by the tying up of a crop which would involve something like $30,000,000."

Senator James D. Phelan under date of September 10, telegraphed to Attorney General A. Mitchell Palmer stating that in his opinion the interests of the state and the interests of the people would best be served by the dismissal of the suit brought against the California Associated Raisin company. He protested against the suit not only in his official capacity but as a prune grower and member of the California Prune and Apricot Growers' Association.

The telegram follows:

San Francisco, California
September 10, 1920
Honorable A. Mitchell Palmer,
Attorney General of the United States,
Washington, D. C.

I believe the suit brought by your department of the Government against the raisin growers' association threatens great injury to a large number of worthy people who have developed this great California industry along cooperative lines. This is one of the worthiest cooperative associations in the United States and one of the most successful and beneficial. It represents the true principle of cooperative association. It has reached a result in practice that is being sought by farming and labor associations throughout the United States. I am informed that the basis of the accusation against this most productive people is that there are some technical objections to the procedure under which they operate. I am also informed that these technical points can be readily removed. It would seem therefore when a great principle like that of cooperation is involved that there must be some method of adjusting technical points of organization other than that of dragging a great industry and its enterprising representatives before the court. In presenting these views I very respectfully call your attention to the obvious fact that this is the harvest season when the banks of this state are cooperating with the individual growers to enable the harvesting and transportation of the raisins. No time could have been selected for the bringing of this suit which would have done greater injury to the many people concerned than the present time. There are more than ten thousand growers concerned. The association under attack has the only facilities in existence for the handling of this crop. The organization has been in existence for many years. The harvest time would seem certainly a most inopportune occasion for the government to bring an action to determine legal questions that have been in existence in their present form for a great many years. Obviously these legal questions could be settled as well at some other time when their consideration would not disturb and threaten ruin to a large industry affecting a great number of our population which is in progress of harvest and preparation for market of $60,000,000 of raisins. Every fruit industry in the state is most seriously affected. Cannot the government in the light of these facts, dismiss this suit and take up subsequently with the Association amendments to meet any legitimate objections. I am informed by the Association's representatives that there are no steps that will not be taken to meet legitimate criticism. They have not consciously violated any law, and do not believe that they have done so unconsciously, but they are ready and willing to meet the government through your department in a frank and open effort to adjust any differences of opinion whatever. Under these circumstances it would appear to me that the interest of this state and the interest of the people at large would be best served by the dismissal of this suit.

(Signed) JAMES D. PHELAN

Deny Application Demurrage Raise

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—Application of the railroads for authority to increase demurrage charges on five days' notice was denied today by the interstate commerce commission. Application, however, may still be filed to increase the charges with the statutory 30 days' notice.

Will Not Welcome Koreans, Alabama

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Oct. 16.—Miles C. Allgood, Alabama commissioner of agriculture, today told representatives of a land company seeking to establish a large colony of Koreans in Alabama that the state would not welcome such colonists.

The proposed colony was organized under the direction of an American missionary, and the plan was to buy 25,000 acres of land in Baldwin county for farms, hom[illegible]hes and schools.

PALMER TELLS WHY RAISIN COMPLAINT RAISED

Replies to Suggestion of Senator Phelan For Dismissal

SAYS FINDINGS DISREGARDED

Arguments End; Case Is Taken Under Advisement

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 16.—With the conclusion in the United States district court here today of arguments on the motion to dismiss the government's complaint charging the California Associated Raisin Company of Fresno, with violation of the Sherman anti-trust act, and the taking of the matter under advisement by Judge B. F. Bledsoe, it was agreed that if the judgment of the court was against the corporation, the case would be tried on its merits early in the November term, either here or at Fresno.

John T. Atwood, special assistant to the attorney-general, replying to a charge of bad faith on the part of the Department of Justice made yesterday by O. L. Everts of counsel for the corporation, today read into the record a letter written by Attorney-General Palmer, under date of September 13, last, in reply to a purported request from United States Senator James D. Phelan of California, that the government's complaint be dismissed in the interests of the raisin industry of the San Joaquin valley.

Both Mr. Atwood and the court, as well as the attorneys for the corporation, agreed the communication had nothing to do with the case.

Not Willing to Begin Suit

The letter of Attorney-General Palmer declared the Department of Justice had not been eager to begin the suit, but had found it necessary to take action because of the alleged attitude of the corporation, "in persisting in obvious violation of the law."

He declared that in preference to accepting "suggestions" that the corporation "should make lower prices than those which the Federal Trade Commission found to be unreasonable and should relinquish a part of its monopoly," the president of the corporation stated to the department in writing on July 28 that the board of directors had considered the suggestions and had unanimously concluded not to accept them."

The president of the corporation stated, the attorney-general's letter continued that, "the directors hoped to avoid a prosecution, but that they elected to face a prosecution rather than to relinquish a part of the monopoly or the suggestion to give up the charging of prices which the Trade Commission found to be unreasonable."

The attorney-general's letter contained the statement that the fact complaints had redoubled on account of the present year's prices left the Department of Justice nothing to do except to file the suit.

Mr. Everts concluded his argument for the dismissal of the complaint when the reading of the attorney-general's letter had been concluded. He asserted that the complaint failed to show any conspiracy and that the charge was against a single corporation, while the Sherman act "said there must be a combination or conspiracy."

"How can a corporation, as such, conspire with itself?" he asked.

Text of Palmer's Letter

"My Dear Senator:

"I have received your telegram concerning the government's equity suit" against the California Associated Raisin Company, and I judge by the telegram that you have not been fully and accurately informed concerning this suit.

"I find that the department of justice has not been eager to begin that suit, but has been unavoidably compelled to do so by the attitude of those in charge of the defendant corporation in persisting in an obvious violation of the law.

"When complaints accumulated against the corporation about a year ago on account of its monopolization of the raisin crop and on account of the alleged excessive prices charged by it during 1919, the department desired to ascertain whether the corporation came within the spirit of the exemption of co-operative associations of farmers from the provisions of the anti-trust laws. The department therefore requested an investigation by the federal trade commission for the purpose of ascertaining whether the defendant corporation should be considered as an association of farmers co-operating for the purpose of securing reasonable prices for their products.

Not Co-operative Farmer Association

"After extended public hearings and full consideration, the federal trade commission reported to the department in June of this year that the defendant corporation was not a co-operative association of farmers within the meaning of the law, and that it exacted prices in 1919 which were unreasonably high. The commission also suggested that the corporation had an approximately 90 per cent monopoly in violation of the federal anti-trust laws. It further suggested changes which would bring the corporation within the exemption of the Clayton act as a cooperative association of farmers. The department communicated the findings of the commission to the officers and counsel of the defendant corporation.

ASSEMBLY, GENEVA

The eyes of patrons, friends, reservationists and irreconcilables alike will be on the coming session of the World Assembly, League of Nations, to be held at Geneva, November 15. For whatever may be the attitude of any statesman toward this World Covenant as embodied in the peace treaty, the conduct of the League of Nations, as now established, will have a strengthening or weakening effect on the movement for American participation and for the whole prospect of world peace through confederation. Even the mildest of "association" supporters, at the lead of which Senator Harding has now placed himself, will find in the proceedings of the Assembly and the respect with which those proceedings are received, a mine of precedent for any proposals they may make.

Attendance at the Assembly will be the first test. If the association idea has weakened, some nations may not think the Assembly important enough to attend. The second test will be the success with which the members of the Assembly set about forming the international court, and the vigor with which they take hold of the various concrete problems assigned to the league by the peace treaty. The final test will be the reception that is accorded to these delegates on their return. Will the nations committed to the League and sending members to the Assembly, give legislative sanction to what has been arranged by a small number of men in Switzerland?

We have had arbitration courts in the past that were successful, but they acted really as commissions to hear evidence and to make recommendations. The executive force of a court decree was lacking. It is the fear on the one hand that executive force will be lacking to the World League, and the fear on the part of others, that it will really possess such a force, that has raised opposition to the whole league idea. Will the league have any power? Those who think that it will be too weak when it ought to be strong, are against the league. Those who fear that it will be too strong and therefore may encroach upon national power and prestige, are against it.

There need be no fear that the League Assembly will be weak because of lack of strong figures in it. Men like Leon Bourgeois of France and Arthur Balfour of England are the highest types of men possible to select for such a mission, men who will be diplomatic enough not to offend and yet forceful enough to make the expressions of their opinions worth while. An assemblage composed of men of this sort will do everything that is possible from within to make the Assembly respected. The sentiment with which the world on the outside of the Assembly hall greets the result of the conference, will complete the story of the success or failure of the first real world's congress.

While both Messrs. Harding and Cox have been quite skillful in concealing from the people of the United States just what either of them will do in the event of election, the Assembly will meet with the American presidential election in the past tense. It will then be Harding or Cox. The Senate will still have to act on the recommendations to be made by the successful candidate. The Senate may in fact have no majority to offer to either one who has been successful. In this period of uncertainty, with the Presidency settled but with the probable action of the Senate an unknown quantity still, the Geneva Assembly will be an important factor in influencing American action. There is to be, we are sure now, an "association". But what sort?

EX-KING'S INTRIGUES

Every sort of person or institution, from churches that hope to exist but don't to saloons that fear to perish but don't, has press agents these days, so that there is surely no bad form in employing this kind of assistance to a place in the spot light. The observer is frequently astonished, however, by finding new evidences of the press agent habit. One of the most vigorous of these agencies, now, is that established to keep once-king Constantine of Greece before the public.

Constantine has always had publicity. He has bathed in it since his early youth. He was overwhelmed with it in the war with Turkey in 1897, and he welcomed the renewal of it in the Balkan wars of 1912 and 1913. It took the world war to reveal him in his pettiness, his shiftiness in the presence of great events. His chance to receive and encourage adulation was limited by the really serious conflicts raging around him, in which he could play no kingly part because he had no moral convictions but many spiritual fears. His final forced retirement from the kingdom to refuge in Switzerland is as unheroic an episode as has ever marked the changes in status of undesired monarchs.

Since the end of the war, no titled person in Europe has been given the attention of Constantine, and that without any apparent excuse. Pictures of him, of his Queen Sophie, of his children, anecdotes of the hotel where he lives, of his motorings, of his shoppings, of his treatment of his family and of his servants—these are continually before the public eye. The ex-kaiser, his brother-in-law, has been forced to dodge publicity by a curiosity burdened world. Constantine does not appear to be troubled. He is going to be a figure, no matter at what cost in photographers' film or in publicity copy.

There is a reason. Constantine would like to be back at Athens, and so would others, who have the money to pay for the publicity. They all look to the Greeks in America for support in any movement that may be made for a coup against the present government. And America, they all believe, and American gold, are to be won by the lavish use of printer's ink and adjectives. Hence the use of press agency.

The Venezelos regime in Greece has the primary advantage that it rests on the recognition by the Greeks that they want Venezelos as their leader. He is not placed at the head by intrigue, by commercial interests that can use him, by the subtle arm of commerce diplomats. He is the figure that blocks Constantine's return to his former job as king and keeps him living in charity on neutral ground.

There is another king in Europe out of a job, whom the reading public really feels rather kind to, ex-king Manuel of Portugal. He was a legitimate subject of news when as a stripling he was hurried across the border to escape Portuguese mobs, and he was a victim of circumstance when he was made the clothes horse for Gaby Deslys' greed for attention and for pearls. But the most of the time he has been contented to play tennis in English palace grounds, and forget about public curiosity or political intrigue. He has as good a right to live as any youth who have been bred to exist without being useful to society. He is not going to be a world figure and knows it. And he does not yearn to harry his own nation, as does Constantine. So he requires no press representative.

TAX ON PARTY CONTRIBUTIONS

The internal revenue bureau, which has been busy for some time now in creating news as well as administrative precedents and decisions vital to the lives of some hundred million Americans, has given us a new germ of thought: Political parties are not eleemosynary institutions, the bureau says. Contributions to Harding or Cox are not charity. Therefore any political enthusiast who gives money for a political campaign will have to pay a tax on it. Charity covereth a multitude of sins. Political contributions should not, is the evident conclusion of the learned jurist at Washington.

A lot of our preconceived ideas have been exploded by one pin prick. We had some of us thought, from the pleas of Mr. White, that a dollar given to the Cox campaign was pure charity. Mr. Cox himself has hinted it. And Manager White has declared that the Democratic treasury was desperately poor. But the party, though poor, is still proud and haughty. Through its delegate at the head of the internal revenue division of the government, it says: "You may give money to keep deserving Democrats in office if you want, but you shall pay for it."

On the other hand, it is thrilling to think what fun National Chairman Hays will have with his thirty millions of income that Cox said he was getting. He should in fairness, to be sure, since the donors never figured at the time that they would be taxed on their contributions, take care of the tax for them. Let him rebate to ardent Republicans enough for them to cover the tax that the government will exact on their gifts. Hays can be pleased with the position. Take charity? Not he. This is straightforward business. He is exacting dues from party members and the United States is merely taxing it at the source.

Just what, in the case of the election of either Mr. Harding or Mr. Cox, will be the logical conclusion of the whole matter, is uncertain. If Mr. Bryan were to be a part of the new administration, as he was in the past, we would know. He took care of "deserving Democrats". Deserving Democrats of course will not object to paying a war tax on what they "deserve". Mr. Harding, on this matter might be as discreet as he has been on some others. And Mr. Cox—Mr. Cox has a problem to perform that will keep him busier talking for six months after election than he has been during the six months before. Not as a charity, but as a business proposition, enough Democrats have subscribed for him to engage a $100,000 special train. This was not charity. How do they cash in on it?

The Federal bureau has decided, it seems, that if men will do politics, they must pay the full cost, war tax and all. It is good logic. But it looks as though, as a policy, it had been adopted entirely too late in the campaign.

Forty Years Ago Today:

Miss M. Austin of the Central Colony estimates her raisin yield for this year at six tons and the quality promises to be even superior to her last year's products. Three sample boxes were forwarded to Lynde & Hough of San Francisco, last Wednesday.

Hon. Romualdi Pacheco, candidate for Congress, will address the people of Fresno next Thursday evening. He will be accompanied by Judge Wheeler of San Francisco. Mr. Pacheco is making a splendid canvass and from present indications will be elected by no small majority. He is the superior of teaching in morals, integrity, ability and all other requisites of a true representative.

Ten Years Ago Today:

Thirteen members of the I. W. W. are arrested by Chief of Police William Shaw and a squad of officers at the corner of I and Mariposa Streets for violating the city ordinance which prohibits public speaking on the streets without a permit.

Salmon consignments at the Seattle Port Commission terminals last week totaled 40,020 tons valued at $11,600,000 showing an increase of 44 per cent over last year's consignments, it was stated by Captain Inar A. Pederson, traffic manager. The commission has shipped 12,000 tons of salmon to date, Capt. Pederson said.

Continuous and heavy rains throughout Austria have caused great damage to crops and reduced the August estimate of yield very largely. Flooded streams in the mountain valleys have caused heavy property losses.

Young Frankie O'Neill, aged 11, the son of France's premier American jockey, has given indications recently of being a chip of the old block and bids fair to become a first-class horseman. He rides out at exercise every morning on one of the Vanderbilt mounts at Beauville, France, and recently on Pergola, an aged horse, he led some of the racers in a fast gallop.

Eleven million marks have been subscribed for the establishment of an air port at Bremen, Germany, on a huge scale with an extensive aerodrome, custom house, hangars, repairing shops, signalling apparatus and every improvement to facilitate international aerial navigation. This will place Bremen in a far better position than Hamburg which has not exhibited the same interest in aviation.

Dr. Felix Horta the judge of the Tribunal of Public Defense who was shot at by a syndicalist in the Lisbon streets a few weeks ago, has been appointed civil governor at Ponta Delgada, in the Azores, as long as the present government remains in office, but will return to Lisbon to take his place in the Tribunal during the November sittings. Antonio Vieira, the man who attempted his life, and thirty other syndicalists, are awaiting trial in the Limoeira prison.

Adam Duncan, fellow of the Royal Horticultural Society, who has just died here at the age of 80, is said to have been largely responsible for the introduction of the tomato as an edible fruit. The tomato had long been grown for decorative purposes but Duncan by means of hybridization evolved it from its crinkled woolly state to the smooth-skinned fruit.

A divorce epidemic has broken out in Pomerania, according to the newspapers. The number of divorces there in the last six months, it is stated, exceed those before the war by 600 per cent. Wives complain that husbands are lazy and will not work and support them. Aggrieved husbands charge that wives neglect the home and are given to spendthrift habits.

WHY TAXES ARE HIGH

RECORD OF AMERICAN WAR EXPENDITURES

The United States spent in one year almost as much as France or England spent in four years.

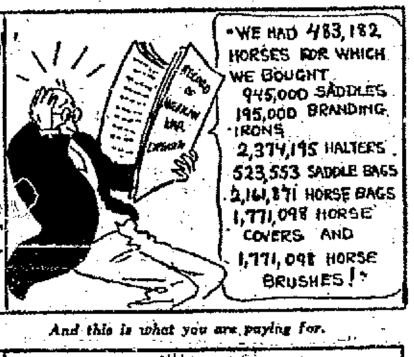
"$3,000,000,000 FOR ARTILLERY AND AMMUNITION AND ONLY 72 GUNS, OUTSIDE THE NAVAL GUNS, EVER REACHED THE FRONT. $116,000,000 FOR GAS SHELLS AND NOT ONE GOT OVER. 2,000,000 HAND GRENADES SENT OVER AND DISCARDED BY PERSHING AS "SUICIDE BOMBS"

And here is another.



RECORD OF AMERICAN WAR
"WE HAD 483,182 HORSES FOR WHICH WE BOUGHT 945,000 SADDLES 195,000 BRANDING IRONS 2,374,195 HALTERS 523,553 SADDLE BAGS 2,161,871 HORSE BAGS 1,771,098 HORSE COVERS AND 1,771,098 HORSE BRUSHES!"

And this is what you are paying for.

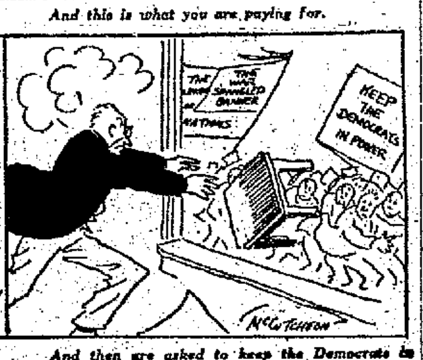
And you are taxed to bring prosperity to the solid south.



And then are asked to keep the Democrats in power.

Smallpox on an Ocean Steamer

By W. E. ALLEN

Biologist, Scripps Institution, University of California, La Jolla.

Editor's Note—Mr. Allen, who has written this article for the Republican, was for some years a member of the Fresno High School. His careful and yet untechnical and attractive discussions of biological subjects and experiments, as contributed to this paper for a number of years, have attracted much attention.

In September, 1900, I was on the good ship Walla Walla when she made her trip from San Francisco to Seattle. The voyage was pleasant and uneventful until the vessel was met by the quarantine inspector of Victoria, B. C. Then things began to happen. First there was a flying rumor spreading over the ship that Dr. Watson had discovered a case of smallpox in the steerage and that we would all have to be inspected, vaccinated and disinfected. This was quickly followed by another rumor that we would all have to go into quarantine at the beautiful little peninsula of Williams Head, which I had heard some ladies admiring as we passed it an hour or two before, but which we all immediately began to hate with all of our powers. Next there were numerous little indignation meetings of groups of four or five excited passengers held on the spot where the rumor had found them. Strangers of high and low degree dropped into confidential conversation under the stimulus of a common woe. Then there was a big meeting in the Social Hall with some fiery and violent speeches under which the crowd was rapidly assuming the character of a mob. But this was soon stopped by the captain, who stepped into the hall and not only laid down the law, but showed ample intention to uphold it.

Soon we were tied to the dock at the quarantine station. That night we slept on board while the clothing we wished to wear the next day was sent ashore and fumigated. Next morning we began going ashore soon after sunrise where we went through disinfecting baths before being allowed to join our fumigated clothing. Meanwhile everyone had also been vaccinated. When we got ashore we soon discovered a company of red coat soldiers on the other side of a high board fence across the neck of the peninsula. A few days after our instalation at the station, an Indian and his little boy who were paddling by in a canoe were enticed up to shore by a passenger. They were seen by the eagle eye of the inspector who promptly came around in his tug and gathered them into quarantine. After a two weeks' stay we were allowed to proceed to Port Townsend.

There were probably fully 150 first-class passengers who had been nowhere near the steerage or the steerage passengers and who were positive that they had not been exposed to infection. The inspector refused to take any chance. As a matter of fact a few had been associated with some steerage passengers in such a way as to be open to infection. Most of the passengers had, or thought they had extremely important business elsewhere. One little man had a big crop of eggs for Nome, Alaska, which he must get through ahead of the ice. A big gambler was positive that he must get up to Nome to look after his gambling house there. Various miners felt that their prospects would be ruined by delay. A mine owner whose wife had broken her arm was determined to find some way to get her through to home and comfort at Seattle. Nevertheless, they and others like them, all stayed in quartine.

Now, ordinarily, the citizens of Victoria were glad to see the Walla Walla come in with her load of passengers and her cargo of freight. But in this case who can doubt that they were thankful that they had a Dr. Watson to meet the tainted ship and turn it from their doors? It is easy to see, that when a recognized case of pestilence is coming toward our community we want it turned back. In this case the Canadian government was both humane and provident. It might have turned the ship away from its ports and have left the passengers to their doom. Instead of that, it forced them to accept the services of inspection, vaccination and disinfection and it provided a place for them to stay until there was reasonable assurance that the disease would not spread. It might have allowed them to go into quarantine without vaccination or disinfection if they chose, but by so doing it might have permitted other cases to develop and keep the whole party there for weeks and months in constant terror at the horrible disease and with heavy cash outlays for sustenance and heavy losses from lost time. As it was no other case developed and no one of all the group of people suffered any ill effects of the vaccinations.

Under our usual conditions of life on dry land these things are not so clear. We are, however, all in more or less frequent danger of infection. A few yars ago a woman of my acquaintance was riding in a day coach of a train just behind a huddled and muffled figure which did not attract particular notice at this time. A few days later when she was taken with smallpox she remembered. In spite of such dangers as this, smallpox is a rare disease. Many doctors never see a case. Many people have never known a case. Yet less than a century ago there were large sections of our own country which were never free from it and where people lived in terror of it. I can myself remember the terror inspired in the people of our country neighborhood by the mere name of the disease as a sight of the pest house. It has been successfully controlled and almost eradicated by vaccination. Its rarity has made some people so bold that they wish to abolish the method which holds it in check. Rather than suffer the slight personal inconvenience of a vaccination they are willing to expose their fellow-citizens to pestilence just as many of those passengers on the Walla Walla would have been willing to expose the city of Victoria to that danger.

Those of us who believe that prevention is better than cure and that cheap immunity by vaccination is better than dear immunity by smallpox or death must make especial effort to defeat the measure which is intended to abolish compulsory vaccination. Furthermore, it is necessary for us also to defeat the antivivisection initiative since it is calculated to destroy all possibility of conducting those experiments upon animals which enable us to secure safety, purity, and effectiveness in manufacture of vaccines and serums.

BISHOP KIP AT FT. MILLER, 1855

Rev. Douglas O. Kelley, founder of the St. James Episcopal church of Fresno forty years ago, and pastor for eleven years following, was the historian of his church for the California dioceses. In his box, Mr. Kelley describes the services held by Bishop Kip at Fort Miller in 1855 in the following:

The bishop (made an extended trip) through southern California in October, 1855. Of this, there is a most graphic account in his "Early Days." On the way down the coast, a short stop was made at Santa Barbara, where there seemed to be a few Americans in a population of 1,200 or so. As traveling companions, he had Mr. Edward Stanly, a son of the late Vice President Calhoun, and his own son, William, Jr., the party being under the escort of Major Townsend of Benecia, who was going to Fort Tejon under orders to inspect the army post there, and also that at Fort Miller, north of the Tehachapi mountains.

The road from Fort Tejon northward was hard and rough, with no roads and great scarcity of water. The Kern river, when reached at last, had but little. The great Tulare valley "stretched as far as the horizon, one unbroken, scorched and yellow waste." Water in abundance was found in the Tulare river, and groves of oaks. At last, Sunday afternoon, the 21st, Fort Miller and the little town of Millerton was reached. The latter is described as "composed of some twenty houses, most of them of canvas, two or three being shops, and a majority of the rest being drinking saloons and billiard rooms. The population was Mexican, and the lowest class of whites." At the post were seventy men of the Third Artillery. Service was held at the fort in the morning, attended by the officers and their families and many of the soldiers, and the child of one of the enlisted men was baptized. Then Dr. Murray, the surgeon, was licensed as a lay reader, and arrangements were made for services every Sunday.

And thus it was that the church—Episcopal and American Catholic—first came into Fresno county, and a harbinger was given of the San Joaquin Valley mission, begun twenty-four years later.

Snelling, now in Merced county, was the next brief stopping place, and then on to Stockton and San Francisco.

Johnny Mendelson Stops Mahoney

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Oct. 16.—Johnny Mendelson, Milwaukee lightweight boxer, scored a technical knockout over Eddie Mahoney of San Francisco in the sixth round of a ten-round bout last night. Mahoney was sent to the canvas three times in the sixth from rights to the jaw and the referee stopped the bout.

PEZEK IS DISQUALIFIED.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 16.—Wladek Zbyszko, Polish heavyweight wrestler, was awarded the match here last night when the referee disqualified John Pezek of Nebraska, before either had gained a fall, for fouling. Pezek knocked his opponent down with a right uppercut after the match had gone seventeen minutes.

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

FINDING OUT FOR HIMSELF

Some children learn by asking questions; others learn by original investigation. The latter learn more rapidly, and remember longer what they have learned.

We have just been entertaining one of the investigating kind. His mother left him over here while she went to a bridge party.

"Don't try to amuse him at all," she said, as she kissed him good-bye. "He is wonderful at finding things to do. He can entertain himself with anything at all."

We soon found that she had not over estimated the capacity of her child for self entertainment. In fact it would have been impossible for any one to over estimate it, even the most doting of mothers.

We hunted up the earthly remains of toys long since left idle by children who are now using college freshmen for playthings. There were a few blocks, a decapitated rocking horse, the wreck of a train of iron cars, and some fragmentary games.

These we placed on the porch, and set the young visitor down among them. Then we went about our business.

Ten minutes later I heard the same kind of a sound you hear after the comedy villian is chased from the stage by the comedy hero and impinges on a comedy bay window off stage.

Fearful lest the child had climbed up on the window sent in the living room and fallen through the glass, I hurried down stairs.

My fears for the child were quite unnecessary. He was unhurt and calm and business like. He had a midiron over his shoulder which he had found in a bag in the hall. He had just found out that a midiron properly directed would break one kind of a window, and was in the act of discovering whether it would break another kind of a window.

I yelled at him as loud as I could to attract his attention. He looked at me with a cheerful smile and said:

"Look; see, Man."

It was useless to try to stop him. He had made his second discovery concerning the midiron before I could reach him.

He seemed a little ruffled when I took the club away from him. He followed me into the hall, watched me solemnly while I replaced it in the bag, and was about to accompany me up stairs to find out what I was going to do with it. I made him understand that this was not to be, and without any manifestation of displeasure he returned to the front porch.

The Lull Before

Some how or other I couldn't work steadily after that, even though I had locked the door so he could not return to the living room.

But for half an hour everything was perfectly quiet, and I gradually began to forget him.

Then the canary, which ought to have been securely cabined cribbed and confined in his gilded cage came hurrying into my room and perched on one of the curtain poles. His feathers were ruffled, his voice was shrill and complaining, and he was evidently dissatisfied about something.

I went down stairs to se what had annoyed him. The guest was thoughtfully regarding the open cage, with the cat, scratching energetically to free herself, tucked firmly under one arm.

"Cat try eat bird, Bird fly, fly, fly" he said in the engaging tone of one imparting interesting information.

His brow puckered when I asked him how he got into the house, but he finally caught my drift and pointed to the window he had smashed with the midiron. I hadn't thought of that. But I did think of the damage he might have done to himself crawling through the glass toothed panes. There were scratches on his little arms and legs and rents in his blouse, but a close examination showed that he was not seriously hurt.

He submitted to washing and iodine and court plaster with quiet attitude. He nodded when I told him he must not go out on the porch again. I offered to bring the toys into the living room, but he made it plain to me that he did not care for them.

So giving him a picture book to look at, I went back to the job.

His Silence Ominous

Before, I had been pleased with silence below stairs. Now as it became prolonged, I began to worry about it. At last, after many dreadful imaginings, I could endure it no longer, and went down stairs to do a little investigating on my own account.

There was no one in the living room. The picture book lay where it had fallen.

But from the cellar came the low hum of the motor of the electric ironing machine. I went down there, two jumps at a time.

Standing on a chair before the machine was the future scientist. He had discovered that when you turned the button the machine went. And he was about to make another discovery, to-wit, that the cat, which he had recaptured could be fed through the machine with interesting results.

"Kitty make wug," he said, looking up at me happily, and trying to poke the frantic creature between the roller and the iron.

I stopped the machine, and explained to him that it would be impossible to make anything but a very messy rug out of a live kitten, and that messy rugs were of no value at all to nice cleanly people.

I don't know whether he took my word for this or not. His mother came then and got him.

"I hope he amused himself while he was here," she said.

"Yes," I replied, "he amused himself without any help at all."

OULLINE MARHALL PROJECT TO CONSERVE CALIFORNIA WATERS

Reclamation Scheme Provides For Storage of all Water in Sacramento and San Joaquin Valleys to Reclaim Arid Lands of State

For many years, progressive Californians have realized the urgent need of a comprehensive state water policy which would result in the storage and use of a great volume of water which now flows to waste and which would add a large acreage to the state's cultivated lands. While much has been done by scattered efforts and many splendid projects have been brought to completion, there has still been lacking the great state undertaking which would unlock untold wealth and end litigation and waste.

Col. Robert B. Marshall, eminent American engineer and for many years head of the United States Geographic Service, has now come forward with such a plan. While Col. Marshall's plan previously has been described in the Republican, it has since advanced to the stage of serious public consideration and hence is given herewith more detailed consideration.

Saves Entire Flow

Roughly, the Marshall project provides for the reclamation of 12,000,000 acres of land in the Sacramento and San Joaquin valleys by the storage and utilization of virtually all the flow in California's great watershed, with the development of a vast amount of power, the entire undertaking to be in the hands of the state without private exploitation or interest of any kind. Col. Marshall made nearly all the topographic maps of the western states and his plan is the formulation of nearly thirty years' close study of the mountain streams and great waterways of California.

While the project is gigantic in its fundamentals, some of the best available brains in California have been focussed on the question of its physical and financial feasibility and the verdict has been favorable. The plan provides for the diversion of the Klamath river into the headwaters of Sacramento, the construction of a large dam at Iron Canyon, north of Red Bluff and the diversion of the waters of the Sacramento in canals skirting the east and west sides of the two valleys and encompassing the entire region of the Sacramento and San Joaquin to a point below Bakersfield. Breaks in the system, entailed by the necessity of going higher up the mountains in two places give four main canals, which, with adequate storage reservoirs would conserve the entire flow in the two valleys.

Would Save Rivers

This, Colonel Marshall insists, could be done without impairing either the San Joaquin or the Sacramento rivers as navigable streams. The west canal would be carried under the Carquinez straits by an inverted syphon and there would be an outlet for a water supply for San Francisco and the bay cities and the Santa Clara Valley. The Kern river would be diverted to Southern California, its withdrawal from the San Joaquin valley being more than counter-balanced by the acquisition of the Klamath.

Fresno is now represented on the advisory board of the project by Wylie M. Giffen, president of the Associated Raisin company, and by William Strajahan and new names are being added daily. In accepting membership yesterday, Mr. Giffen said.

"I believe in the fundamental purpose of inaugurating a state-wide movement for the scientific conservation and distribution of water for irrigation. Water is California's great resource and it should be scientifically handled. I have not enough information to know whether the Marshall project is feasible in all its details and in accepting membership on the advisory board, I reserved the right to formulate my own judgment later as the soundness of any or all details. But Col. Marshall's professional and personal reputation, and that of his associates, has convinced me that this is a bona fide attempt to lay the foundations of a big, comprehensive water reclamation plan and it is for this reason that I have lent my name to the undertaking."

Is Public Body

The Marshall project is now being put forward by the California State Irrigation Association, a public body, having headquarters at 312 Ochsner Building, Sacramento. Former Congressman C. A. Barlow, of Bakersfield, is president of the association; J. Mallon, of Colusa, is vice president and secretary and Alden Anderson, Sacramento banker and former lieutenant Governor of California, is treasurer. These men, with E. O. McCormick, vice-president of the Southern Pacific, and Senator L. L. Dennett, of Modesto, make up the executive committee, under whose direction the affairs of the association are being administered.

The advisory board, to date, includes W. F. McClure, state engineer, M. M. O'Shaughnessy, city engineer of San Francisco, Senator Frank S. Boggs, of Stockton, Judge Peter J. Shields of Sacramento, David Starr Jordan, president-emeritus of Stanford University, and many other men of prominence throughout the state. The present work is in the nature of an educational campaign, preparatory to submitting to the next legislature a bill for an appropriation, providing for a preliminary survey. It is proposed that the work be placed in the hands of a state commission, and that the costs be defrayed by the sale of bonds, these bonds to be retired by the sale of water and power by the state.

The last proposal is of basic importance in the entire plan, and offers, Colonel Marshall believes, the only possible way of financing the project without adding to the burden of taxation.

"Even Up the Load."

"It is not just," said Colonel Marshall, "that farmers should be compelled to carry the entire load of water bonds. The big plan of water reclamation is inseparable from all industrial, agricultural and commercial activities of the state and land values are, course, the basis of all other values. I am firmly convinced that this project could be carried to success without additional taxation, and with a final result of lessening individual tax burdens, although producing a vastly augmented revenue to the state.

"There are several points which I wish to emphasize. One is that no existing rights will be jeopardized and where it is necessary for the state to exercise its constitutional right of condemnation and purchase, full compensation will be given. No expropriation of any kind can be considered. Another important point is that, while big diversion schemes are included in the general plan, any withdrawal of water from any basin will be more than offset by replacement from another basin.

State Can Do It.

"I am absolutely convinced that California can do this job and it does not require much vision or even imagination to realize what the acquisition of 12,000,000 fertile acres will mean to California. A reasonable estimate of the value of such land will show the possibility of adding $6,000,000,000 to the taxable land values. With a commensurate development of power, and the resultant stimulation not only to agriculture and commerce, it will be seen that the possibilities of this undertaking are endless. I am ready to stake my reputation as an engineer on its feasibility."

SUPERIOR COURT NOTES

A certificate covering an increase in the capital stock of the J. Schoenburg Company of Chicago was filed with the clerk yesterday.

The will of Haroon Ashderian, one of the earliest settlers of the Armenian race in the San Joaquin valley, filed for probate yesterday leaves the entire estate, valued in excess of $10,000, to his son, John H. Ashderian. Any claimant other than his designated heir is cut off with $1.

Collection of an alleged debt of $1491.97 is sought in an action brought yesterday by E. O. Reese against C. B. Turpin, R. Krasnow, and R. Krasnow & Co., Inc.

SAYS HARDING BOLSHEVISTIC

Colby Declares Republicans Sacrifice League to Partisanship

CHICAGO, Oct. 16.—Bolshevist speeches were cited here tonight by Secretary Colby in a campaign speech as paralleling the attitude of Senator Harding on the League of Nations. Mr. Colby read what he said were translations of some of the speeches made by Bolshevists at the meeting of the Third Internationale at Moscow. This organization, he said, was a revolutionary body aimed at the overthrow of democratic government, was opposed to the League of Nations and "is more sympathetic with Harding's conception of some sort or other."

Republican efforts to sacrifice the league to partisanship, Mr. Colby said, "had been a distinct contribution to the spread of disorder and to the arrest of the healing processes of peace."

"It has given hope and cheer to every enemy of public order" he said. "It has encouraged the most abominable anti-social forces that ever have manifested themselves since history has been written.

One Way to Peace

"It is high time we ceased this dangerous trifling. There is but one way back to peace, to order, to security. We must first join the League of Nations. The time is short; the need is great; the danger is close to us. Delay may be fatal."

In an earlier speech Mr. Colby charged the Republican party with "the methodical effort to play upon the susceptibilities of every racial group in America" and characterized it as "one of the most sinister features" of the Republican campaign. He accused the Republicans of transporting to America and injecting into purely domestic issues factional strifes and prejudices of Europe and of taking advantage of these susceptibilities in immigrants "before they have had time to learn America and become American."

Mentioning the Germans, he said, by way of illustration, Mr. Colby declared any general organized support from the German element in America is an expression of either disappointment or resentment at the course of the United States in the war.

"There is not a journal published in German" he charged, "or a newspaper that during the war enjoyed prominence as pro-German in its leanings that is not supporting Harding and the Republican ticket today. There is not a German suspect or a German sympathizer who was the subject of prudent attention on the part of the United States authorities during the war who is not supporting the Republican ticket; and there is only one reason for this support: They hate the President who pulled the mask aside from Prussian arrogance."

What he said of the German element, the Secretary explained, applied to every other racial group in America that thinks more of gratifying its racial racial antipathies than it does of serving America.

Deny Restraint Order, Hetch-Hetchy

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 16.—An injunction action which, if successful, would have blocked future work on San Francisco's $45,000,000 Hetch-Hetchy Valley municipal water project, was quashed in the state supreme court here today when James W. Crowe and James E. Lennon, San Francisco taxpayers, were denied an order restraining the execution of certain contracts on the project. The decision upheld a judgment of the lower court denying an injunction.

Crowe and Lennon attacked an authorization to pay the construction company of North America $276,000 on a contract for sixteen miles of aqueduct in the mountain division of the Hetch-Hetchy project. The total contract called for an expenditure of $7,802,952 and it was held absolutely necessary to the project.

Charges Navy Officer Is Father of Child

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 16.—A charge by Miss [illegible] Merrill of San Diego that Commander William L. Culbertson, U. S. N., is the father of her 18-months old baby and is seeking to avoid supporting the infant by leaving the country, is being closely investigated by the officials of the Twelfth naval district here, it was admitted today by district headquarters.

Miss Merrill followed Commander Culbertson aboard the army transport Sherman as it was about to clear for Honolulu yesterday and after city detectives had failed to arrest him on a non-support charge.

She was brought ashore and went to the district headquarters, where she repeated her charge. The headquarters would neither affirm nor deny reports that it had communicated with the naval authorities in Honolulu in regard to Culbertson.

ELECTRIC POWER SAVES OIL

Fuel Oil Must Be Conserved
It is the life blood of transportation; hence all business
Our only substitute for fuel oil is Electric Power

Last Year—from May 1, 1919, to May 31, 1920—the San Joaquin Light and Power Corporation produced 183,000,000 kilowatt hours in electricity by means of hydro-electric plants and natural-gas-burning steam plants.

Almost one million barrels of oil would be required to generate this same amount of electricity by oil-burning steam plants.

The generating capacity of the San Joaquin Light & Power Corporation has been almost doubled this year. The new plants are natural gas-burning and hydro-electric.

Two million barrels of oil will be saved in the San Joaquin Valley alone by the use of electric power next year.

Almost Breaks His Jaw and Not News

By Stanley Happer.

In an effort to break the news to the leaderless troop that Scout Executive Henry Hopkins had arrived, Scout Harold Stonaker almost broke his jaw and the entrance step at the meeting of Troop 7 Friday night. Bruises were the result of the mishap.

Stonaker was in pursuit of Scout Earl Gerard when the scout executive was seen and in rounding the corner at high speed in order to break the news to the members of the troop slipped and fell.

As their scoutmaster was unavoidably absent, the members of the troop carried on the business of the meeting and later adjourned to meet with Troop 2. Two new members were admitted making ten present at the meeting.

SINGLE TAX AND BUSINESS INTEREST

Editor, Republican: In Sunday's Republican, John S. Chambers, state controller, had an article on how the Single Tax would affect California. His principle argument is that same bluff used by the Wets that prohibition would hurt business and bring chaos, and ten years ago most of the people believed it. All such nonsense would not be worth answering if it was not for the fact that many good people harbor such delusions.

Mr. Chambers says: "The effort to persuade the people of California to give consent to an experiment in taxation—an experiment which has proved such a disaster in British Columbia—is little short of a crime, however honest in purpose its proponents may be." This is intended to put fear into the heart of the uninformed and timid.

Mr. Chambers no doubt refers to South Vancouver and if he was fair enough to investigate this case, he would find that the crime committed was not by the Single Taxers but by the Provincial government that did the bidding of the Canadian Pacific railroad. The C. P. R. controls Canada even more than the Southern Pacific ever did California. If space would permit, it would do good to print a letter on this matter from Louis D. Taylor, formerly mayor of Vancouver, which shows that it is little short of a crime the way those in power are trying to force our system of taxation on a people who do not want it.

Single Tax will not do all the things some of its advocates claim for it, but one thing is certain it will not do any of the things its opponents have the night-mare over.

I have had men tell me this week that money was getting tight, business was slack, and we were sure to have hard times under prohibition. Is it any wonder that Mr. Chambers gets by with the statements he makes? When the Single Taxers proposed in 1912 by an amendment on the ballot to allow any county or city to raise any part of its taxes on land as they saw fit, the vested interests fought this as bitterly as they are now fighting Single Tax. They well knew that it was a form of local option, and like prohibition, when it once got a foot-hold there is no going back. They also knew that there would be some local community that would try it.

Alberta has no tax on stock and improvements, and when I was up there last year I asked a number of farmers if it would not be better to make all classes of property pay taxes. They all answered about the same, that it would only be making the homesteader pay more so the [illegible] land owner would pay less.

Mr. Chambers points out how disastrous it would be to raise the tax on unimproved land 100 per cent, but he does not point out that the State commission reports that 65 per cent of our land fit for cultivation is not worked, and that more than 50 per cent of our cities is vacant lots, and if the tax on this vacant land is raised 100 per cent, why don't Mr. Chambers point out that this would make less taxes for some one else to pay, and the farmer who pays more on his stock improvements, vines, trees, automobile, etc., is the one that is favored.

Mr. Chambers says, "The State collected from the taxation of corporations Nineteen Million Dollars last year."

Since the railroads pay 4 per cent of their gross receipts in taxes, they merely collect from the farmers who ship produce. (Vacant land ships no produce). Mr. Chambers might as well point out to the farmers that the State treasurer pays all the bills, and the farmer pays no State taxes.

Mr. Chambers closes: "It would mean government bankruptcy, and the closing of our schools, business demoralization and chaos generally."

So far as closing of our schools is concerned, we were told prohibition would do that, and lots of the Drys were dead sure we would have to close our schools when we voted out the poll tax.

The Single tax proposes to take the tax off from business. Would that ruin a business firm?

Single Tax proposes taking the tax off the house and furniture. Would this discourage home building? I ask Mr. Chambers or any other defender of our tax system, to point out a single useful productive occupation that would be injured by paying less taxes.

This is the unpopular side of a live issue and I know it will take years to overcome the prejudice of the people. It would not take as long if more some of those who graduate from our High schools each year would go out into the world believing that each individual should render some service to society for the privilege of living. They should know that all taxes are paid by production, not by consuming, (paid by the producer and not by the consumer). They should also know that those who render service to society and produce subsistence pay all the taxes and in addition pay the unearned increment on land. But how can we expect this until our teachers are taught these things?

NATIONALITIES AND AMERICANIZATION

link our fortunes in a common purpose—we for him and he for us. What more can we expect of him and what less can he, the foreigner, expect of us?

As to the incentive, there is the homely philosophy of Adam Bede: "It's plain enough that you get into the wrong road i' this life if you run after this and that only for the sake of making things easy and pleasant to yourself. A pig may poke his nose into the trough and think o' nothing outside it; but if you've got a man's heart and soul in you, you can't be easy a-making your own bed an' leaving the rest to lie on the stones." If, moreover, we think of ourselves as something more than mere individuals, as members of a nation and constituent parts of it, it is plain that when we set about to discover processes of education that will assist the foreign-born to realize their own higher destinies, we are, at the same time, seeking to help ourselves.

National Cultures Are to Be Fostered Not Discouraged

Whoever we may be there is always a disposition to consider ourselves as superior to every other people. It is no sin peculiar to America. From the times of the earliest peoples, Hebrews, Egyptians, Greeks, Romans, to that of the last nationality to come upon the stage, from the most highly cultured to the rudest tribe that ekes out an existence, this assumption of superiority is found. Certainly it is not a sin from which we in this country are free. Yet we have excellent opportunity to shake it off. All about among us are peoples who have come from other cultural settings, representatives of all national ties, who, like ourselves, have been in the habit of assuming that they are the chosen people, that theirs is the unsteady, superior civilization, that other nations are inferior and none equal to themselves. This knowledge should chasten us by the offsetting of our foibles and should bring home to us the fact that we are, after all, as human as others, as vain, as liable to overrate our God-given qualities. There is also a tendency to assume that negative methods will add to the value of our national assets. We often proceed on the assumption that to rid the foreign-born of his allegiance to some other national culture is the beginning of the inculcation of Americanism. It is nothing of the kind. No negative methods will win for us any positive attributes other than those of opposition. To have a sentimental attachment for one's native land is not to be handicapped in the progress of Americanization. As a matter of fact, it is those peoples who come to us with most of this national pride and culture who make our best citizens. A man does not make a better husband by ceasing to love or respect his mother. It is as true that a man does not make a better American by ceasing to feel respect for and attachment to his mother country. There may be a conflict of loyalties but these conflicts are exceedingly rare and they are usually solved in the right way by those who feel the bond of loyalty. 'My country right or wrong,' is about as morally exalting as 'My pocketbook right or wrong,' and we can dispense with that brand of patriotism. It is [illegible] that [illegible] which has brought more trouble upon the world than any other one thing that could be singled out. Or, if we must keep the motto let it be: "My country, right or wrong; but when she is wrong I am ready to die that she may not commit the wrong, as I am ready to live and serve that she may be right."

Two strings to one's bow are better than one; and the man who has some culture and some historical background in addition to that of America is so much the better off, and we are so much the better off for his having both. It is one of the best antidotes to provincialism and narrowness of point of view, and there is no single antidote that we need in this country so much today—or in any other, for that matter.

There is no occasion to fear that this phase of the nationality adherence will be overdone by the foreign-born or by their descendants.

"Many of us who have looked into the face of America are wondering how it will appear, what it will be like in the future. We are listening to the confusing sounds which strike our ears, and are anxious to know which shall predominate; we are still more perplexed when we look beneath the surface and see and hear what escapes the superficial observer. We are anxious because those who come to us bring not only racial inheritance and the language which their mothers taught them; they bring tradition-laden memories, standards of living and conduct, and hopes and ideals. Upon our ability to blend their historic inheritance with ours, depends our success or failure in the task of unifying, solidifying, and enriching our national life, rather than to eliminating altogether what they bring; a process which is not quite wholesome and which may be safely left to time."

The danger is not that the foreign-born will fail to be Americanized, but that they will be merely Americanized—that they will forget the old culture and will fail to inject into their lives and into the lives of their children the dye of another culture. Acculturation, the grafting of culture upon culture, has been one of the most potent factors making for progress throughout the world's history. Isolation breeds narrowness of point of view and leaves a people outside the streams of fructifying influences. The greater danger is that these potencies for acculturation will be neglected, and that a barren Americanism of one tone, one quality, will be our heritage, when it might have been and should be an Americanism enriched by all the lore of all the nations. Let us be worthy of our unexampled opportunity. To us as to no other people has come the time when we can—

Into future fuse the past,
And the world's flowing fates

Books on Practical Topics Represented in New List

The list of books added to the library this week is noteworthy for its lack of philosophy and sociology and its [illegible] of things more practical in technical books—mechanical and mining engineering and useful arts. As a record of American achievement, the life of Alexander Hamilton is significant.

PROPOSED INITIATIVE ALIEN LAND LAW

What the Citizens of California Will Vote on Next Month—Placed Before People as Measure to Avert Further Japanese Encroachment

At the California state election to be held November 2 there will be submitted to the people of that state an initiative measure amending the California Alien Land Law, full official text of which is as follows:

Alien Land Law. Initiative Act. Permits acquisition and transfer of real property by aliens eligible to citizenship, to same extent as citizens except as otherwise provided by law; permits other aliens, and companies, associations and corporations in which they hold majority interest, to acquire and transfer real property only as prescribed by treaty, but prohibiting appointment thereof as guardians of estates of minors consisting wholly or partially of real property or shares in such corporations; provides for escheats in certain cases; requires reports of property holdings to facilitate enforcement of act; prescribes penalties and repeals conflicting acts.

An act relating to the right, powers and disabilities of aliens and of certain companies, associations and corporations with respect to property in this state, providing for escheats in certain cases, prescribing the procedure therein, requiring reports of certain property holdings to facilitate the enforcement of this act, prescribing penalties for violation of the provisions hereof, and repealing all acts or parts of acts inconsistent or in conflict herewith.

Section 1. All aliens eligible to citizenship under the laws of the United States may acquire, possess, enjoy, transmit and inherit real property, or any interest therein, in this state, in the same manner and to the same extent as citizens of the United States, except as otherwise provided in the laws of this state.

Section 2. All aliens other than those mentioned in section one of this act may acquire, possess, enjoy and transfer real property, or any interest therein, in this state, in the manner and to the extent and for the purpose prescribed by any treaty now existing between the government of the United States and the nation or country of which such alien is a citizen or subject, and not otherwise.

Section 3. Any company, association or corporation organized under the laws of this or any other state or nation, of which a majority of the members are aliens other than those specified in section one of this act, or in which a majority of the issued capital stock is owned by such aliens, may acquire, possess, enjoy and convey real property, or any interest therein, in this state, in the manner and to the extent and for the purposes prescribed by any treaty now existing between the government of the United States and the nation or country of which such members or stockholders are citizens or subjects, and not otherwise. Hereafter all aliens other than those specified in section one hereof may become members of or acquire shares of stock in any company, association or corporation that is or may be authorized to acquire, possess, enjoy or convey agricultural land, in the manner and to the extent and for the purposes prescribed by any treaty now existing between the government of the United States and the nation or country of which such alien is a citizen or subject, and not otherwise.

Section 4. Hereafter no alien mentioned in section two hereof and no company, association or corporation mentioned in section three hereof, may be appointed guardian of that portion of the estate of a minor which consist of property which such alien or such company, association or corporation is inhibited from acquiring, possessing, enjoying or transferring by reason of the provisions of this act. The public administrator of the proper county, or any other competent person or corporation, may be appointed guardian of the estate of a minor citizen whose parents are ineligible to appointment under the provisions of this section.

On such notice to the guardian as the court may require, the superior court may remove the guardian of such an estate whenever it appears to the satisfaction of the court:

(a) That the guardian has failed to file the report required by the provisions of section five hereof; or

(b) That the property of the ward has not been or is not being administered with due regard to the primary interest of the ward; or

(c) That facts exist which would make the guardian ineligible to appointment in the first instance; or

(d) That facts establishing any other legal ground for removal exist.

Section 5. (a) The term "trustee" as used in this section means any person, company, association or corporation that as guardian, trustee, attorney-in-fact or agent, or in any other capacity has the title, custody or control of property, or some interest therein, belonging to an alien mentioned in section two hereof, or to the minor child of such an alien, if the property is of such a character that such alien is inhibited from acquiring, possessing, enjoying or transferring it.

(b) Annually on or before the thirty-first day of January every such trustee must file in the office of the secretary of state of California and in the office of the county clerk of each county in which any of the property is situated, a verified written report showing:

(1) The property, real or personal, held by him for or on behalf of such an alien or minor;

(2) A statement showing the date when each item of such property came into his possession or control;

(3) An itemized account of all exsues and profits in respect to the administration and control of such property with particular reference to holdings of corporate stock and leases, cropping contracts and other agreements in respect to land and the handling or sale of products thereof.

(c) Any person, company, association or corporation that violates any provision of this section is guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be punished by a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars or by imprisonment in the county jail not exceeding one year, or by both such fine and imprisonment.

(d) The provisions of this section are cumulative and are not intended to change the jurisdiction or the rules of practice of courts of justice.

Section 6. Whenever it appears to the court in any probate proceeding that by reason of the provisions of this act any heir or devisee can not take real property in this state or membership or shares of stock in a company, association or corporation which, but for said provisions, said heir or devisee would take as such, the court, instead of ordering a distribution of such property to such heir or devisee, shall order a sale of said property to be made in the manner provided by law for probate sales of property and the proceeds of such sale shall be distributed to such heir or devisee in lieu of such property.

Section 7. Any real property hereafter acquired in fee in violation of the provisions of this act by any alien mentioned in section two of this act, or by any company, association or corporation mentioned in section three of this act, shall escheat to, and become and remain the property of the State of California. The attorney general or district attorney of the proper county shall institute proceedings to have the escheat of such real property adjudged and enforced in the manner provided by section four hundred seventy-four of the Political Code and title eight, part three of the Code of Civil Procedure. Upon the entry of final judgment in such proceedings, the title to such real property shall pass to the State of California. The provisions of this section and of sections two and three of this act shall not apply to any real property hereafter acquired in the enforcement or in satisfaction of any lien now existing upon, or interest in such property, so long as such real property so acquired shall remain the property of the alien, company, association or corporation acquiring the same in such manner. No alien, company, association or corporation mentioned in section two or section three hereof shall hold for a longer period than two years the possession of any agricultural land acquired in the enforcement of or in satisfaction of a mortgage or other lien hereafter made or acquired in good faith to secure a debt.

Section 8. Any leasehold or other interest in real property less than the fee, hereafter acquired in violation of the provisions of this act by any alien mentioned in section two of this act, or by any company, association or corporation mentioned in section three of this act, shall escheat to the State of California. The attorney general or district attorney of the proper county shall institute proceedings to have such escheat adjudged and enforced as provided in section seven of this act. In such proceedings the court shall determine and adjudge the value of such leasehold or other interest in such real property, and enter judgment for the state for the amount thereof together with costs. Thereupon the court shall order a sale of the real property covered by such leasehold, or other interest, in the manner provided by section twelve hundred seventy-one of the Code of Civil Procedure. Out of the proceeds arising from such sale, the amount of the judgment rendered for the state shall be paid into the state treasury and the balance shall be deposited with and distributed by the court in accordance with the interest of the parties therein. Any share of stock or the interest of any member in a company, association or corporation hereafter acquired in violation of the provisions of section three of this act shall escheat to the State of California. Such escheat shall be adjudged and enforced in the same manner as provided in this section for the escheat of a leasehold or other interest in real property less than the fee.

Section 9. Every transfer of real property, or of an interest therein, though colorable in form, shall be void as to the state and the interest thereby conveyed or sought to be conveyed shall escheat to the state if the property interest involved is of such a character than an alien mentioned in section two hereof is inhibited from acquiring, possessing, enjoying or transferring it, and if the conveyance is made with intent to prevent, evade or avoid escheat as provided for herein.

A prima facie presumption that the conveyance is made with such intent shall arise upon proof of any of the following groups of facts:

(a) The taking of the property in the name of a person other than the persons mentioned in section two hereof if the consideration is paid or agreed or understood to be paid by an alien mentioned in section two hereof;

(b) The taking of the property in the name of a company, association or corporation, if the memberships or shares of stock therein held by aliens mentioned in section two hereof, together with the memberships or shares of stock held by others but paid for or agreed or understood to be paid for by such aliens, would amount to a majority of the membership or the issued capital stock of such company, association or corporation;

(c) The execution of a mortage in favor of an alien mentioned in section two hereof if said mortage is given possession, control or management of the property.

The enumeration in this section of certain presumptions shall not be so construed as to preclude other presumptions or inferences that reasonably may be made as to the existence or intent to prevent, evade or avoid escheat as provided for herein.

Section 10. If two or more persons conspire to effect a transfer of real property, or of an interest therein, in violation of the provisions hereof, they are punishable by imprisonment in the county jail or state penitentiary not exceeding two years, or by a fine not exceeding five thousand dollars, or both.

Section 11.—Nothing in this act shall be construed as a limitation upon the power of the state to enact laws with respect to the acquisition, holding or disposal by aliens of real property in this state.

Section 12. All acts and parts of acts inconsistent or in conflict with the provisions hereof are hereby repealed; provided, that—

(a) This act shall not affect pending actions or proceedings, but the same may be prosecuted and defended with the same effect as if this act had not been adopted.

(b) No cause of action arising under any law of this state shall be affected by reason of the adoption of this act whether an action or proceeding has been instituted thereon at the time of the taking effect of this act or not and actions may be brought upon such causes in the same manner, under the same terms and conditions, and with the same effect as if this act had not been adopted.

(c) This act in so far as it does not add to, take from or alter an existing law, shall be construed as a continuation thereof.

Section 13. The legislature may amend this act in furtherance of its purpose and to facilitate its operation.

Section 14. If any section, subsection, sentence, clause or phrase of this act is for any reason held to be unconstitutional, such decision shall not affect the validity of the remaining portions of this act. The people hereby declare that they would have passed this act, and each section, subsection, sentence, clause and phrase thereof, irrespective of the fact that any one or more other sections, subsections, sentences, clauses or phrases be declared unconstitutional.

Remarkable Action Photo of Columbia Cheer Leader Taken

"Rah! Rah! Up and at 'em boys." And they sure did. Columbia students attending the game against Trinity were led in the cheering by P. W. Gallico, their gymnastic cheer leader. Gallico went through more twists and turns in his cheering than a trapped snake. Columbia, however, won, which is a good omen for Gallico.

GOVERNMENT RAILROAD TO REACH HEART OF ALASKA

Admittedly the Congressional Record is hard reading. But as the American citizen slowly brings his interest to a focus on American affairs, after half a decade of watching European wars, there is one page of an old issue that deserves a glance. Here is recorded an act of Congress, March 12, 1914, which empowers the president "* * * to designate and cause to be located a route or routes for a line or lines of railroad in the Territory of Alaska not to exceed in the aggregate one thousand miles, to be so located as to connect one or more of the open Pacific ocean harbors on the southern coast of Alaska with the navigable waters in the interior of Alaska, and with a coal field or fields, so as best to aid in the development of agricultural and mineral or other resources of Alaska, and the settlement of the public lands therein. * * * *" With memory freshened, the citizen will perhaps want to know what has been done.

Soon after the authorization of this work, 12 surveying parties were in the field; and by 1915 their reports were in, and the route had been chosen. One terminus was to be the town of Seward, an "open Pacific ocean port;" the second, on the opposite side of the Alaska Range, was to be the town of Fairbanks, in the splendid valley of the Yukon system. * * * *

Thus the construction of about 500 miles of railroad was the task assigned to the Alaskan Engineering Commission; and the situation today can be epitomized by the statement that they have completed all but an approximate fifth of this total * * * * * At "Mile 114" is the little community of Anchorage, "child" and headquarters of the railroad. Thence the rails run through farming country bordering Knik Arm and the Susitna River, paralleling the latter until the stream curves away to the east. And it is to about this point that the construction has attained. Merely indicated by the surveyors' stakes, now, the line slips through the Alaska Range by way of Broad Pass, elevation of 2,319 feet, and reaches the Nenana coal field. Here, at about "Mile 365", the rails are met with once again, and can now be followed through gold-mining and agricultural areas to Fairbanks at "Mile 471".

Obviously, much is to be done before Dec. 31, 1922, the date of completion set by Congress. Yet, the railroad already has rendered invaluable service to interior and coastal Alaska by making accessible two large coal fields.

Such, in the large, are the results of six years' labor. But mention must be made in passing of one illuminating detail which suggests, better than charts or statistics, the comforting changes which the railroad effects in the life of the vicinity. This is the fact that, between Seward and Anchorage, the road is now operating a buffet car. Here the traveler can secure an elaborate dinner of fresh mountain trout with a rasher of bacon for only $1.25, while Matanuska potatoes can be had for 15 cents an order, and fresh fruits for little more than the charge made in the States. One can imagine what this means to the veteran "sourdough" who can remember paying $3.50 only a few years ago for a plate of pork and beans.

The obstacles surmounted by the Alaskan Engineering Commission in achieving these results have been many and multifarious, making no mention even of the obvious difficulties imposed by long, hard winters. ...... Shortcomings of the equipment frequently called for the devising of ingenious makeshifts.

Another interesting method is that employed for securing a solid and permanent roadbed on the flat tundras, or treeless swamps, covered deep with the moss of centuries. During the summer, while the swamps are soft, logs are laid, crisscross, until the frozen subsoil is reached; then other logs are added until a crib foundation is formed. On this base the gravel ballast is laid to a depth of several feet. With the coming of the following summer, the gravel blanket serves as a seal which prevents the thawing of the earth below, and so preserves the crib against disintegration and decay. That this frozen, log-supported roadbed will endure forever is the contention of old-time Alaskans.—Paul A. Jenkins in Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Interesting Things For Woman's Eye

Combination Use of Frocks for Afternoon and Evening

Chiffon, Kolinsky and a Splash of Silver Makes a Beautiful Combination for Semi-Formal Evening Affair.

ILLUSTRATED is a perfect dream of a frock that will serve admirably for the semiformal evening function as well as for afternoon affairs. It is adorably simple, too. First of all, there is the ubiquitously charming tunic blouse built after the Chinese. Its eliptical neck and graceful, flowing sleeves are banded in kolinsky; the hemline, too, is accentuated by a banding of the fur. As for the skirt, that is a simple, straight gathered model with one huge tuck to lend it distinction. Splashes of silver leaves just cover the blouse with compelling daintiness. Beige chiffon, silver embroidery and kolinsky sound interesting, don't they?

Shaded Chiffons.

As if issuing from the heart of a rose is the girl who wears this frock, for it is composed of layer upon layer of softest chiffon in as many colors of the rose, the darkest lying underneath. In a season when the decolletage and arms are being modestly and stylishly covered the strapped evening gown is indeed a pleasing exception. Even the bodice on this frock is formed of the layers of chiffon just described and the only trimming might be said to be the tunic draperies at the side of gold lace.

But the most curious part of the whole affair is the bustle draping of the front. So soft is it, however, that it is not ungainly or even conspicuous, and were it not a bustle season might go unrecognized and unsung.

Lace-Trimmed Chiffons.

The accusation has been brought against women lately that they are forgetting their femininity, even in their clothes. Sports suits and tailored costumes are carrying them too far from frills or soft clinging lines. The frock photographed gives the lie to that report. Tailored clothes are evident because of the work to which many women feel themselves called, but indoors, ah! there is where many a woman shines in a soft afternoon costume like the one in question.

Dark blue chiffon is accordion pleated to give straight lines without harshness. The lace is a filet mesh with a heavily defined figure in dark cream. There is an overskirt or tunic effect gained by the lace treatment. The round neck of a modest depth is a feature of many afternoon and semiformal evening gowns of the season.

Modish Brocade Used in Panels.

Perhaps there is no single material that so instantly conveys the impression of richness as brocade of the moment woven with an artistic regard of textures and color combinations, and so its extensive use on the elaborate evening gown. Here the luxurious stuff makes most of the bodice, and then elaborates the skirt in graceful panels. The rest of the frock is chiffon, with graceful flowing sleeves and long straight skirt. And the color scheme is silver and rose brocade, with the faintest of blues in the chiffon.

An Elaborate Chemise.

The sudden change in social conditions is responsible for the prominence of the frock which must serve the double purpose of afternoon frock and evening frock as well. A very satisfactory illustration of the duo-service frock is given in this delight of old blue satin and silver lace. It's a typical straight - from - the - shoulder, too, beginnig with a rather deep interrupted line all the way to the rounded neck and continuing in an unhem. Silver lace is effective in simulating a panel front; the lacy bit of decorativeness begins at the shoulder strap and goes down each side to meet another bit of horizontal trimming. Note the charming bit of drapery at the side, the soft Moyen Age girdle and then the guimpe. This last is of net embroidered in silver and rose; the guimpe is detachable, too, another thing in this frock's favor. Aren't those sleeves fetching? They are of net, with a delightful cuff effect at the upper arm and a graceful puff and flow at the wrist.

Child's Auto Cap.

To keep children's curls free from dust while autoing use a bathing cap or a cap made on the same order. These are attractive if made from pretty material with a large bow on one side.

One sees an increasing number of handbags on frames. Among the fabrics foremost in fashion is velvet. It may be plain or used with solid bead work.

ONE of the newest patterns in embroidery shows a table cover with a hemstitched border on two sides. The hems were ten inches deep. In the center threads were drawn to outline eight blocks, four on each side, with edges touching the hems. This brings the blocks in the center of the table. All blocks are embroidered in a different floral pattern, making it something original and at the same time attractive.

To fringe with the least possible trouble, clip the edge of the crash or linen up from the bottom at distances of six to eight inches. Each clip should be the depth of the fringe you intend to make. The drawing out of these shorter threads will often prove less laborious and not so injurious to the material. It is well to know, also, that the drawing of linen threads is made easier if the dressing has first been removed. Brush a heavy lather made from good white soap along the space from which you wish to draw the threads. Let this dry in and it will disturb the original dressing so that the threads may be more easily drawn out.

A pretty pincushion may be made with a disk of velvet. The edge should be decorated all around with pattern pins. These pins are really needles, but the heads are dipped into sealing wax and twisted around until a little "coral" head is formed. They are useful in—holding paper patterns to material—in fact, they are handy where a heavy pin is not desired. When a large number of them are used, the heads form a neat little frame around the cushion.

The woman who has a quantity of black Chantilly lace sufficient to make a waist is lucky this season, for Chantilly lace is the height of fashion. It should be made over a light-weight white silk, satin or chiffon cloth lining, with gold net or lace discreetly used for the yoke and lower parts of the sleeves. But the gold should be placed under the black lace. Then, if a touch of color is desired, this may be introduced in satin pipings about the yoke and wrists with a cravat of the same about the collar.

SATIN AND FUR DIVIDE THE HONORS.

HERE is a coat that is materially a perfect "half and half." Yes, it might be taken for a frock, too, except for the undue amount of fur piled high about the throat; but then that is convertible, you know. But frock or coat it makes a perfectly proper, incidentally striking street costume. "Nigger" brown satin does its part in the way of providing an undercollar, a rather snug little bodice and long sleeve in one, then part of the skirt. Seal furnishes the gracefully rolling collar, the big cuffs, very generous belt, and the rest of the skirt. Two huge furry buttons offer the only other bit of decoration.

MONOTONY

CUD'S PHILOSOPHY.

I AM growing tired of seeing same surroundings every day, oft in fancy I am fleeing to some refuge far away. I am growing tired of spending every week and month the same, my desires are ever bending for some new and unknown game. Our existence soon grows weary, earthly pleasures slowly fall, all ahead looks dark and dreary, life itself is growing stale, when we find no time to mingle recreation with our toil, when we never feel the tingle, as our veins with gladness boil, as we lay aside all sorrow, and forget our daily grind, and lay plans that on the morrow we will leave all cares behind. That we'll take a little outing, take our crackers and our cheese, and we'll spend the whole day shouting, and in doing as we please. We all need a short vacation once a year at least, and cut loose and meet Old Recreation, e'er we drop into a rut.

Some Small Things.

Use elastic webbing one inch wide, with large hook and eye, to hold shirtwaist in place. Have quite tight.

When paring onions or peppers wear a pair of automobile goggles that fit tight around the eyes; you will not shed one tear.

Pillow slips of tubing can be made to wear much longer if bottom seam is cut off and sewed again, having sides come in center.

For those who wear out their glove fingers, trim hole neatly either square or round; cut piece from old glove to fit, and baseball stitch it in place. Have edges meet evenly.

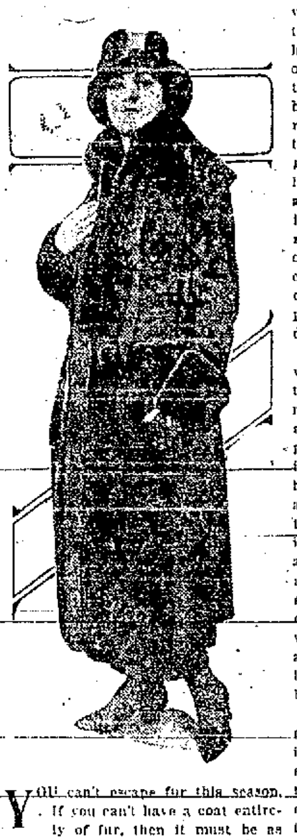
Brush and Comb Sanitation

Many a girl who might be called fastidious about the care of her hair, wouldn't be called even careful when it comes to her treatment of comb and brush. A bi-weekly cleansing of these articles is not sufficient. Both should be cleaned every single day, and thoroughly. Try this simple effective method for the comb.

Wrap about the thumb and forefinger a long length of fine cotton. With a newspaper under the comb to catch the dirt, work the cotton up and down along the teeth. Finally wash the comb in warm, soapy water, rinse and dry.

The brush is best treated this way: Fill a basin with lukewarm water to which a few drops of ammonia have been added. Move the brush about in the water, being careful to keep the back from becoming unnecessarily wet. To dry, place the brush bristle down.

LAVISH FUR TRIMMING FOR THE TOP COAT.



YOU can't escape fur this season. If you can't have a coat entirely of fur, then it must be as near that luxurious ideal as possible.

The coat pictured shows one way of accomplishing this delightful furry condition. It is of velour, belted with beaver, collared with beaver and cuffed with beaver, while bands of that same accommodating fur face the sides of the front for at least six inches. Even the buttons, of which there are two pairs, one at the neck and one at the belt line, are of the beaver.

LIKE MOTHER USED TO MAKE

Cocoanut Pie.

One pint milk, two rolled crackers, four tablespoons cocoanut, three tablespoons sugar, two eggs, small piece of butter. Put crackers, cocoanut and butter in milk and scald. Pour over the beaten yolks of eggs and sugar. Frost top with the whites of eggs; sprinkle cocoanut over.

Oyster Pot Pie.

Butter the inside of a pie dish rather thickly, line the edges with puff or good flaky pie crust. Open and beard two dozen fresh oysters, lay them in the dish; cut up one-quarter pound of kidney fat of a loin of veal and put in with the oysters; season with a little salt and cayenne, also half a teaspoon powdered mace if liked; sprinkle over them three tablespoons finely grated bread-crumbs. Mix the strained oyster liquor with the same quantity of thick cream and one teaspoon lemon juice; pour over the oysters; put the top crust on the pie, making holes in it. Bake in a moderate oven half an hour. Sufficient for four or five persons.

Cream of Tomato or Mock Bisque Soup.

Scald four cups of milk, when hot thicken with two tablespoons flour, mix to a thin smooth paste with cold water and cook 15 minutes. Put into a stew pan half can of tomatoes, one small onion sliced half a teaspoon salt, speck pepper, cook 15 minutes and run through a strainer. Add scant salt spoon soda, keep hot and put two tablespoons of butter in soup dish just before serving. Add the hot tomatoes and the milk strained. Season with salt and peper.

Cornmeal Batter Cakes.

One pint cornmeal, half teaspoonful baking powder, one cup buttermilk, pinch of salt, pinch of soda. Scald meal, add salt, allow soda to dissolve in buttermilk and stir in meal. Next add an egg, beaten, add baking powder and fry on a hot griddle. Egg may be omitted.

The Thanksgiving Table Centers

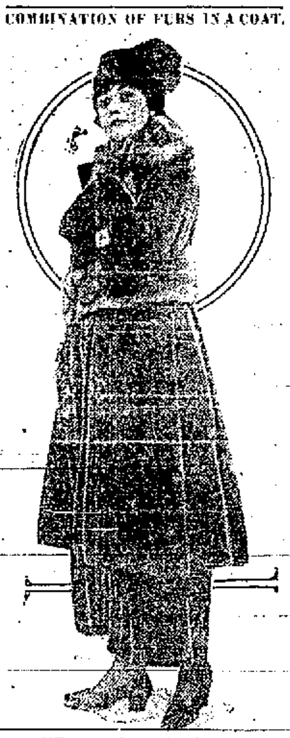
NEEDLESS to say, decorations for the Thanksgiving table will not be characteristically novel; but they may be a bit "different" and still remain within the paling of the conventions and good taste. Of course, there will be chrysanthemums. But how about the baby chrysanthemums or dwarfs as they are called for the table center? First of all there will be the center dolly, either square or round, corresponding, to the shape of the table. And then there will be the guard of honor composed of four yellow-shaded candles. The baby chrysanthemums would be ever so charming arranged in wee green flower pots and placed at regular intervals from one another. Five could be used most effectively, placing a larger one in the center of the other four, which are placed equi-distant between the candlesticks.

Another pretty way to arrange the wee flowers is a well-filled bowl of them in the center tied with yellow ribbons, the ends of which terminate at the bases of the candlesticks placed about. But if you insist on having the real Thanksgiving flower, the huge golden chrysanthemum, there are several pretty ways of arranging them for a charming table center. For instance, there is the pyramid design achieved by arranging the flowers in a quite wide vase of medium height, and having the tallest flower in the center. As they near the edge of the vase the stems are shortened so that a very effective pyramid is simulated. Either four or simply two candlesticks look well with this arrangement.

Where the flat arrangements are given the preference a striking design is achieved by using quite wide yellow satin ribbon with the flowers. The ribbon is elaborately looped and wired to keep it in the desired position, then the flowers are entwined so that they peep from out the loops and folds. This piece is placed simply on a bit of oval glass or a thin, flat tray of silver.

Both large and small chrysanthemums may be used, together, too. A tall vase of the larger flowers, which are tied with ribbons, looks immensely attractive with the smaller flowers swinging from the ribbons, and, of course, over the edge of the vase.

COMBINATION OF FURS IN A COAT.



THE coat of one fur is an exception this year rather than the rule. Instead one sees the loveliest of fur combinations and odd ones, too. Here a three-quarter coat of nutria has been treated to a wide belt and roll collar of possum. The tones of the two pelts do not clash here and there is variety enough to give a pleasing contrast. Note how the fullness of the bell sleeve is accented by the one huge metal button on the outer arm.

A Unique Affair

Party of Young Folk Put on "Bazaar of Anniversaries."

A PARTY of young people who had the reputation of always doing the most original and unexpected things were called upon by a charitable organization to get up something new in the bazaar line. A certain amount of money had to be ready by the last of October, so the young folks decided upon a fair for that month. They called it the Bazaar of Anniversaries, because as everybody knows, October is a favorite month for brides.

There were seven booths arranged around the walls of the hall in which the fair was given, representing the cotton, wooden, tin, crystal, china, silver and gold anniversaries.

The first one, the cotton booth, was the ever present apron booth, but the aprons were displayed on what looked like a huge bale of cotton, made by covering a large drygoods box of just the right shape with burlap, and tying it with cord. It was presided over by a colored mammy in a bandana and a red cotton dress.

Candy was sold at the wooden anniversary booth. This table was also made from a drygoods box, only this time it was not covered. The girls who served here wore straight frocks, made of tan chambray, buttoned down the front with wooden button molds, and tall hats, and they looked quite like the little wooden trays, such as grocers use for butter, etc., and the bags in which it was sold were made of paper of the birch-bark pattern.

The booth for the tenth anniversary was built to look like a huge tin angel-cake pan, bottom side up. It was covered with silver paper. The salesgirls wore white dresses with wide silver girdles and hats made of tin colanders, trimmed with small tin cooking utensils. Painted tinware was sold here; watering pots, candlesticks, boxes, trays, etc.

At the crystal booth were bags of all descriptions, but the place of honor was, of course, given to the beaded ones. A large mirror was laid over the table top, and glass candlesticks were placed at each corner. The table was directly under the chandelier, and the cloth around the mirror was sprinkled with crystal dust, such as is used at Christmas time, so the whole table was ablaze. The girls wore dresses trimmed with crystal beads and tall sparkling crowns.

The silver booth was draped in silver paper, and a dear old lady in a black dress and white apron sold fruit cakes wrapped in silver paper and tied with silver cord.

The children adored the grab bag. It was a large gold egg, in charge of a fairy in gold tulle, with a gold crown and slippers, who allowed them to put their hands into the egg and draw out their gift, which was tied up in yellow paper.

HELPFUL HINTS

FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

A Pillowsham Holder.

A pillowsham holder may be made of laths covered with white muslin. It will prove to be an ideal support for the shams, which may be pinned to the muslin. At night the frame may be lifted off, shams and all.

Save Until Next Summer.

A clear glass bowl such as is used for goldfish filled with carbonated water will, if nasturtiums and leaves are placed in it, soon become a mass of frostlike moisture. The escaping gas in the water creeps over each leaf and flower, making the whole seem covered with dew. For a luncheon on a hot day it is the most refreshing bit of coolness imaginable.

Sweeping Caps.

Take the cover of a wornout silk umbrella, wash and iron it, and it will make from one to three dainty sweeping caps.

To Wash Glasses.

A bit of blueing in the water in which glass is washed adds much to its brilliancy.

To Keep Juice In Pies.

Roll out crust and with scissors cut it about one-half inch larger than the circumference of your plate. When pie is ready for top crust cut that just the size of plate. Now fold over the bottom crust on to top crust, pressing down firmly and dent with fork. Juice can not run out.

Peeling Onions.

In order not to hurt the eyes peel onions under running water or over a fire.

PALMER TELLS WHY RAISIN SUIT RAISED

its president promptly repudiated any claim of exemption as a co-operative association of farmers, saying of the changes suggested by the trade commission in order to secure such exemption:

"'As long as we are not claiming exemption under the Clayton act, they have no bearing at this time.'

"Referring to the suggestion that the corporation should make lower prices than those which the trade commission found to be unreasonable, and should relinquish a part of its monopoly, the president of the corporation stated to the department in writing on July 26 that the board of directors had considered the suggestion and had unanimously concluded not to accept them. He stated that the directors hoped to avoid a prosecution, but that they elected to face a prosecution rather than to relinquish a part of the monopoly or the suggestion to give up the charging of prices which the trade commission found to be unreasonable.

Disregards Commission's Findings

"Thereupon, in open disregard of the finds of the trade commission, the defendant corporation early in August fixed its prices for the present year enormously in excess of the year 1919 which the trade commission had found unreasonably high. It declared that it was seeking to fix the highest prices at which the entire production of the year could be marketed. It sought to justify its prices by reference to prices which its competitors have been forced to countenance because they are restricted to approximately 10 per cent of the crop.

"Thus the monopoly's prices are sought to be justified by comparing them with other prices which are abnormally expanded by reason of the monopoly.

"Complaints against the monopoly redoubled upon the fixing of this year's excessive prices. Lawyers of the department of justice agreed that there was an unlawful monopoly, and the defendants' refusal to relinquish a part of it, left the department no other course than to initiate the pending suit to terminate the monopoly.

Not Based on Technical Reforms

"That suit is not based on an application for technical reforms. Consequently the possibility of an agreement with the defendants upon charges of a technical character suggested in your telegram would not justify the dismissal of the suit. The suit seeks fundamental, not technical, relief, namely, the prevention of the defendants from enforcing their monopoly by compulsory means, against growers of raisin grapes on the one hand and the buyers of raisins on the other hand, so as to leave the market free from unlawful restraints, open to all persons, including the defendants.

"I need not remind you that this year's crop of raisins is about to be harvested and delivered to the packers, and that the department would not bring suits to prevent the monopolization of that crop after the accomplishment of that monopolization.

"In view of the information conveyed in this letter, I am sure you will appreciate that it would be impossible for me to justify my position if I should dismiss the pending suit and that you will not press the suggestions that I should do so."

ARMISTICE DAY LEGAL HOLIDAY

Governor Proclaims Nov. 11; Asks Permanent Observance

SACRAMENTO, Oct. 16.—Armistice day, November 11, will this year be a legal holiday in California. Governor William D. Stephens today so proclaimed it and said he would ask the 1921 legislature to add this date to the list of permanent legal holidays in California.

The governor's proclamation follows:

"I hereby proclaim Thursday, the 11th day of November, 1920, a legal holiday in commemoration of the armistice that ended the conflict of arms in the great world's war.

"On this day tribute should be paid to the memory of the young American manhood that was sacrificed. We must not forget the mothers, fathers, wives and other loved ones who suffered the heartbreaking loss of those dearest to them.

"There should also be expression on this day of rejoicing over the preservation of our civilization. The institutions of free government, the eternal principles of justice and right, and the doctrine of mercy and brotherhood were again triumphant in the greatest onslaught upon them that history has known. A significance will, therefore, in the years to come, be attached to armistice day, that will mark it as one of the greatest events in human affairs. I shall suggest to the legislature of California at its next session that November 11 be set aside as a permanent holiday."

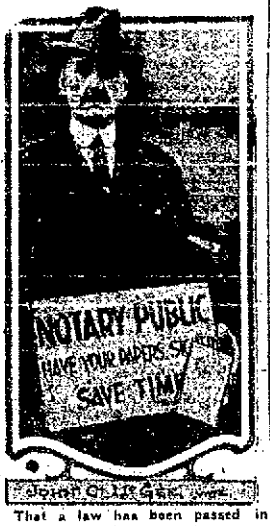
Was an Ordinance Passed to Put Him Out of Business?



That a law has been passed in New York City for the sole purpose of putting one man out of business, is the startling charge made by Commissioner of Accounts Hirshfield. He charges Alderman William Quinn is responsible for the law which he says is a personal attack on John ("Suspender Jack") McGee. McGee earns his living as a "sandwich" notary public on the street in front of the State Automobile Bureau, certifying papers secured in the state office above. Quinn has his office in the same building and also certifies license papers. The amendment to the "beggars and loungers" ordinance which affects McGee reads "nor shall any person seek or solicit employment as a notary public or commissioner of deeds on any street by attracting attention to his calling by means of a placard carried by or displayed by the person".

COTTON IS MADE OCCASION OF BIG FIESTA IN KERN

Thousand Parade at Celebration in Bakersfield Yesterday

Many Elaborate Floats Featured; Prizes Are Awarded

BAKERSFIELD, Oct. 16.—Rivaling the famous Tournament of Roses, with more than 1,000 marchers in line and nearly 200 floats, the Kern county Cotton is King parade passed into history this morning as the most notable event of the kind in the Southern San Joaquin Valley. The procession was led by five bands, with marchers from the important fruit and agricultural districts of Kern county, and representatives present from Fresno and Kings counties.

The parade was more than a mile long, and throughout the line of march the legend "Cotton is King", was borne by countless bales used in decorations was in evidence.

The parade was in honor of the development of Kern county farm lands to cotton, of which nearly eleven thousand acres are being harvested this year, compared with 1,100 a year ago.

The military feature of the parade, was the American Legion marching squads, some fifty strong, under command of L. D. Bailey, and the magnificent Legion float, depicting the stars and stripes in red, white and blue cotton. This was the most remarkable float ever shown in the San Joaquin Valley.

Taft, the home of petroleum, sent "Queen Petrolia," while Shafter, Wasco, Weed Patch, and Rio Bravo sent their kings to compete for the high honor of being supreme in quality of cotton.

The city and county schools were represented by not less than fifty floats, and more than 1,000 school children.

Other features of the parade were the floats of Red Cross canteen, Nurses' Association, Y. L. I. Kern County Chamber of Commerce, Fresno Chamber of Commerce, Bakersfield Progressive Business club, Boy Scouts of whom 190 were in line, the U. S. S. Bakersfield of the Navy recruiting office, the Chinese colony, H. H. Holloway, Holloway's Big Airplane Taxiing down the avenue.

The Visalia, Reedley, Taft, Hanford, and Bakersfield bands and the Boy Scouts drum corps furnished the music.

Best feature of parade, Chinese society; decorated float from outside town, McFarland; decorated float by local commercial house, Standard Oil Co.; decorated float entered by county civic organizations, Wasco; fraternal float, Knights of Pythias; original decorated float, American Legion; decorated car featuring cotton, Kern county high school freshmen; decorated auto, Fraternal Order of Eagles; decorated auto by outside business organization, Fresno Chamber of Commerce; decorated auto by Bakersfield civic organization, Kern county Free Library; original decorated auto, Taft; best appearing band, Reedley; decorated building, Bakersfield Morning Echo; military division, American Legion, Frank S. Reynolds Post.

MEETS DEATH IN AUTO COLLISION

Wagon Tongue Penetrates Body of Golden Coker at Selma

SELMA, Oct. 16.—Golden M. Coker, a former service man, who was one of the many who did duty overseas, met death early this morning when his abdomen was penetrated by the tongue of a vehicle in a collision near this city of a car in which he was riding with a loaded wagon.

Coker was riding to his work west of Selma in a small touring car driven by F. O. Thomas at about 5:30 o'clock. In the darkness they did not see a loaded wagon that was coming toward them, until they were about twenty paces from it. The wagon was driven by an Armenian, and is said to have been little past the center of the road, and on the wrong side. The driver of the machine saw that he could not pass to the right, and swung over to the left, but did not have time to escape the wagon. The machine struck the mules, which were drawing the loaded wagon, and one of them reared back, causing the tongue of the wagon to go up over the machine, striking Coker, who was riding in the back seat, in the abdomen. He was ruptured internally and though he was rushed to the office of Dr. Brinkley he passed away from loss of blood a half hour after the accident.

Golden M. Coker was aged 22 years and was a laborer. He served in France during the war. Surviving are his father, William Coker, one brother, two step-brothers and his step-mother.

Funeral services will be held Monday at 2:30 from the undertaking parlors of Byrne & Robinson. Interment will be in the Odd Fellows cemetery.

OUTPUT OF OIL TOPS RECORD

Production For September 304,340; Highest in Field History

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 16—September production of all oil companies in California of 304,340 barrels a day established a record figure for the state, according to a statement given out today by the Standard Oil Company of California.

Daily production of 302,400 barrels in June, 1914, was the highest figure previously recorded. The increase of 15,750 barrels daily over the production in August is mainly due to new production in the Elk Hills fields, the statement said.

September shipments were 315,533 barrels a day. Stocks were decreased 275,807 barrels during the month.

Fifty-five new wells were completed in September, with an initial daily production of 21,755 barrels.

MODESTO, Oct. 16.—Apparently unaware of the approach of northbound Southern Pacific train No. 49, M. Iwanga, a Japanese, aged 31, was instantly killed beneath the wheels of the train which hit and demolished a truck he was driving at 9 o'clock this morning. The accident occurred at the junction of the Tuolumne river bridge approach and B street.

Iwanga was taking a truckload of grapes to the local company warehouse, and turned from the bridge approach directly in front of the oncoming train, apparently not hearing the whistle from the crossing, which witnesses declare was blown. The truck and boxes of grapes were strewn along the right of way for 75 yards, and particles of the man's body with it. The body was unrecognizable.

MOTORISTS ARE BADLY INJURED

Eddie Tice Breaks Leg, Two Others Severely Hurt in Crash

BAKERSFIELD, Oct. 16.—Eddie Tice, motorcycle racer, was seriously injured this afternoon when his machine was struck on the Bakersfield speedway by a racing car driven by Henry Terrille. The latter and his mechanician, James Mazza, received severe injuries when their car overturned and crashed into a fence. Tice's leg is broken in two places, and he has a badly lacerated face, and may have internal injuries. Tice was trying out for the motorcycle races, and after turning into the home stretch, shut off his speed. He was in the center of the track and the big racing car was close behind him. Terrille tried to avoid a collision, applying the emergency brakes, but the two machines came together.

It was said tonight that Tice's condition might prove more serious than at first expected. He is aged 25 years and has ridden in Fresno Hanford and Los Angeles races. He is married and employed by the Morning Echo as a linotype operator.

Pleasing Recital Is Rendered at Selma

SELMA, Oct. 16.—Mrs. Gertrude Doud-Tetrick, reader and impersonator, gave a recital last evening in the auditorium of the Christian church. Mrs. Tetrick is a favorite in this section and the house was crowded with an appreciative audience. The recital was given under the auspices of the Christian Endeavor Society, who were responsible for the unusually beautiful decorations assisted by Charles McConnell, who arranged the lighting effects.

Mrs. Tetrick was assisted by Miss Thelma Steinwand, who played all of the accompanying music on the piano; Mrs. Howard McConnell, who sang Carrie Jacobs Bond's "Blowing Bubbles;" Miss Snow White, who sang "Blossoms;" Mrs. A. H. Steinwand who sang, "Love Is Meant to Make Us Glad;" Dr. G. W. E. White who played several delightful numbers on the violin, and Howard McConnell, the pastor of the church who proved himself the big laugh of the evening, as he assisted Mrs. Tetrick in several numbers as the bashful country, toothless boy.

The first part of the program consisted in interpretations of the opera Madame Butterfly. Mrs. Tetrick impersonated the action and cast of two scenes. The second part was composed of lighter numbers among which were several child monologues. Mrs. Tetrick again proved herself an artist as well as a delightful entertainer and the evening proved a most delightful one.

Exhibitors at Fair Present Watch to President Johnson

VISALIA, Oct. 16.—Mayor Isaac Clark, G. W. Young, T. F. Sibley and Geo. C. Cobb, comprised a committee of County Fair exhibitors last evening that requisitioned the oratorial services of Attorney James M. Burke to make a surprise presentation to J. Sub Johnson, president of the Fair Association. The affair was not a scheduled event, and when the committee headed by Mr. Burke appeared in the midst of a gay throng of dancers on the floor of the auditorium, the fair executive wondered what it all meant.

In glowing words Mr. Burke paid a high tribute to Mr. Johnson for his untiring efforts in making the County Fair the grand success that it has been, and stated that the exhibitors at the fair desired to indicate in some manner even though it be in a small way their appreciation of his work, and had manifested such in the presentation of a token of their esteem with a magnificent gold watch and chain.

Taken completely by surprise, Mr. Johnson was unable to respond for several minutes, his feelings being completely overwhelmed. He afterward replied feelingly with words that left no doubt in the minds of those present as to the extent of his appreciation of the brotherly love so beautifully manifested by his fair associates.

Upon their apprehension each deposited $500 cash bail. They will appear Monday before Judge Satchell for hearing in what is expected to be one of the most interesting trials of its kind held in the local court.

Complaints for their arrest were sworn by Marshal Thomas Petersen. It is said among the authorities that the arrest of the women followed a complaint by a local woman that her 17-year-old son had returned to his home in an intoxicated condition and upon being questioned is alleged to have told where he procured the liquor. His mother made a complaint, but in doing so requested that those thought guilty of providing him with the liquor be apprehended and her son not called upon to testify.

BOY MURDERER IS REPRIEVED

Governor Commutes to Life Roy Wolff For Greer Killing

BAKERSFIELD, Oct. 16.—The sentence of death imposed on Roy Wolff, aged 17, for murder of Elmer Greer in Kern county, was committed today by Governor William D. Stephens to life imprisonment. Wolff would have been hanged at San Quentin prison October 22. Wolff's home is Yakima, Wash.

Commutation was made, a statement from the governor's office said, upon recommendation of the state advisory pardon board. The report of this board, submitted to the governor quoted the testimony of a group of physicians called to examine Wolff that his mentality was that of a child between 11 and 12 years of age.

A deluge of letters and telegrams had come to the governor's office from all parts of the state and nation asking executive clemency on account of Wolff's youth.

The district attorney of Kern county had, on the other hand, opposed clemency, declaring the crime was a particularly revolting one and Wolff was deserving of no consideration.

Elmer Greer, a rent car driver, was attacked in his automobile May 26, 1919, by a passenger who employed him at Taft for a trip into the mountains. Greer was struck from behind, beaten with a blunt instrument and thrown from the car. He died shortly thereafter.

In a purported confession Wolff, who later was convicted of murder, said he "wanted to bump Greer off so that I could get his car and drive home."

Members of the advisory pardon board on whose recommendation the governor acted today are: Lieutenant Governor C. C. Young, Attorney General U. S. Webb, Warden J. A. Johnston of San Quentin prison and Warden J. J. Smith, Folsom prison.

WEST SIDE IS SEEKING OIL

Two Wells Being Sunk in Vicinity of Town of Dos Palos

DOS PALOS, Oct. 16—The west side is alive with the undercurrent of oil excitement and mysterious agents, reputed to represent the large petroleum interests, motor through the two towns to the field southwest and beyond.

Two wells are now down to a considerable depth in the new field. One is the well drilled by the Nevada Fresno Oil company while the other is the Los Banos company's well. Both are known to have penetrated various stratas of oil bearing sand.

The field, as explained by geologists, is estimated as being twenty-eight miles long and five miles wide. This, if true, will be the largest oil producing field in California and will be, according to oil experts, a bonanza field to America.

The Nevada Fresno well is down 630 feet at the last report. The first sand encountered was two feet in depth while the second sand bearing oil was ten feet.

Both wells are expected to be brought in before the winter season, according to T. A. Piper, who has organized the companies and who discovered the new field.

But suplies and materials will be needed urgently in this new territory all during the wet months. An effort is now being made by E. J. Marks, roadmaster in that district to secure permission to build an extension of eight miles from the present Dos Palos road down southwest into the field. This is now up for consideration of the supervisors with favorable prospects.

The field southwest of Dos Palos and Los Banos, according to the geologists is practically an extension of the famous Coalinga field, only a fault lies between the two districts.

If either of the two wells now drilling prove producers, and according to those on the inside, there is every indication of such, Fresno county will experience a wave of petroleum hysteria known only to Bakersfield in her palmy days and by Texas of recent months.

Convict Highwayman of Robbng Chinese

MODESTO, Oct. 16—Frank J. Alves was convicted of the robbery of $1000 from Chee Fong, Turlock Chinese laundryman on the night of June 21, by a jury in Superior Judge J. C. Needham's court yesterday after three hours of deliberation. Alves was charged with having broken into the laundry of Fong and after making him show where he kept his money hit him over the head with a pick head and tied him up with clothes line and rags.

Conviction was mainly due to the accurate description given by Fong, a card found on the floor after the robbery which was identified as having been Alves' and heel prints leading from the door to the alley which measured up with the shoes Alves wore.

AUTO ACCIDENT PROVES FATAL

E. G. Commander Killed and Two Injured in Collision

TAFT, Oct. 16.—Edward G. Commander, aged 23 years and a well puller for the Potter Oil company near Fellows, was instantly killed, and Mr. and Mrs. Marion Ray, of Seventh street, in this city, were quite seriously injured, shortly before midnight last night when a motorcycle which Commander was riding and a car driven by Ray, collided head on near the Associated store on the Taft-McKittrick highway near Fellows.

Commander's left leg was torn from his body above the knee and he was otherwise badly mutilated. Ray and his wife suffered severe contusions about the face and body and both are probably injured internally. Neither Ray nor his wife were able this morning to give a coherent story of the accident.

Commander had just left Fellows and was returning to the Potter lease while Ray and his wife were returning to Taft from McKittrick, where they had been visiting friends.

Commander was a single man and a native of Mississippi. He had been in the employ of the Potter company for several months. The remains were taken to the Payne and O'Meara parlors in Bakersfield.

Japanese Already Here

Asks for Fair Treatment

What is to be done by California and the United States with regard to the Japanese who are already in this country? This is the only important remaining issue of the so-called Japanese problem confronting Americans, and it is one of immense importance to Japanese residents of California, as well as to Americans.

All other phases of the matter have been or are being settled, and are therefore no longer subjects for general agitation. The Japanese government itself has stopped the widely discussed "picture bride" practice by official order. People of the Pacific coast need no longer fear "Japanese invasion" because the Japanese government and the United States are already working together on this point and it will no doubt be settled definitely and equitably before long.

Since this is so, and there need be no further worry over the so-called Japanese "menace" in California, the only remaining question to be settled is in regard to the Japanese who are already here; who have been here for years and have established what they hope will prove to be permanent homes and pursuits here. Most of them have been here for years, and while endeavoring to better their own condition, have contributed greatly to the development of the state.

They are sincere in their desire to remain here, and to link their lives irrevocably with their adopted country. They think they are not asking too much, as a reward for their toil and their loyalty, in wanting to remain here, and to be protected from undue molestation and harsh treatment. Their homes are here. They would be out of place in Japan because they have learned to live and think as Americans do.

They believe their appeal to be allowed to remain here is a just one, and will be recognized as such.

BOURBONS ISSUE CHALLENGE FOR LEAGUE DEBATE

Ask Republicans to Name Orators For Contest

Cox and Harding Ideas on League to Be Subject

A challenge for a public debate on the League of Nations, as interpreted by the presidential nominees of the two majority parties, was issued to the Republicans of Fresno county yesterday by the Democratic county central committee.

The formal guage of battle will be contained in a letter to be sent tomorrow to S. G. Mortland, chairman of the Republican county central committee. The missive will ask his committee to name two debaters to meet a like number from the Bourbon ranks.

In the event the challenge is accepted the committee intends to stage the debate before a public gathering at the civic auditorium. The challenge is effective immediately and until the night of Oct. 25 as the final date.

"Our sole conditions for the debate are that the representatives chosen by the Republicans shall be Fresno county residents and that the subject matter under discussion shall consist of the League of Nations question as interpreted by Gov. James M. Cox and Senator Warren G. Harding, the two standard-bearers," said Russell Uhler, the Bourbon chairman.

McAdoo May Come.

Following a telephonic conversation with their state headquarters in San Francisco, the committee head still hopeful of a visit to Fresno by William G. McAdoo, ex-secretary of the treasury, who comes to the coast next week in a cross-country speaking tour in the interests of the Democratic campaign.

In the event that the initial itinerary for McAdoo, which routes him down the coast cannot be altered the committee is virtually certain that Homer S. Cummings, former chairman of the party's national committee, will be assigned here for one of the final rallies.

Theodore Bell, speaking on the League of Nations and the progressive issues, is to speak here on the evening of Oct. 26 at the auditorium. Francis J. Heney, former candidate for senator, is also expected to visit the city just a few days before the election.

Fifty new members were added to the association. The very successful evening closed with the serving of refreshments by Miss Lillian Dahlgren and members of the domestic science class.

FRESNO, CALIFORNIA, SUNDAY, OCTOBER 17, 1920.

TURN IN FADED CERTIFICATES

Motor Vehicle Department Will Exchange New Ones for Old

All automobile owners carrying faded certificates of registration in their machines are urged and requested to bring them in to the Fresno branch motor vehicle department at 2119 Merced street, and secure new certificates. Owners living in the valley but not in the immediate vicinity of Fresno, may mail their certificates to the branch office or to the main office at Sacramento, with a request for a new certificate. It is of the utmost importance that these certificates be given immediate attention.

It is but a short time until the renewal period. Faded certificates will not be accepted as applications for new licenses the beginning of 1921. Securing clear copies of your certificates at this time will save delay and annoyance at the renewal period both to the public and to the office.

Any person who has not procured a certificate of registration for 1920 should take the matter up with the nearest local office and clear their registration for 1920 before the 1921 year begins.

Here Are Figures and Facts Showing Auto's Popularity

Three motor cars for each mile of road and twenty-five cars for each mile of improved road in the United States is the record of registration for the first six months of 1920, according to advices received by the California State Automobile Association from the A. A. A.

The American Automobile Association survey shows that between January 1 and June 30, 1920, a total of 7,484,409 motor vehicles were registered in the various states. Of this number approximately 950,000 are commercial vehicles. There were also registered during the six months period, 217,667 motorcycles.

The State of Ohio leads the registration with 544,000 cars. Pennsylvania comes second with 560,665; Illinois third with 497,217; New York fourth with 486,262, and California fifth with 476,705. That New York occupies fourth place is probably due to the fact that her registration year did not begin till February.

The gross receipts from registrations in the various states amounted to $81,958,772.72. It is interesting to note in this connection that the receipts for the registrations for the first six months of 1920 are approximately the same as was spent on the entire road program of the United States during the calendar year 1902.

At least 90 per cent of the receipts from the registration will be expended for the construction and maintenance of public roads, principally for maintenance.

Northern California Plastered With Vote Yes Signs, Highways

With Northern California plastered with yellow and blue signs, urging the voter to vote "Yes" for Amendment No. 9, which increases the rate of interest on the State highway bonds and relieves the counties of future interest payments, the California State Automobile Association's campaign is in full swing.

Director Burton A. Towne in charge of the campaign for the Association has sent out 300,000 stickers to be placed on outgoing mail by the various commercial organizations and on the windshields of automobiles. The Association plans a vigorous campaign from now until November 2. Endorsements have been received by the Association from women's clubs, commercial and industrial organizations throughout the State.

Supervisor Richard J. Welch of San Francisco, who is assisting in the campaign appeared before the State Federation of Labor convention in Fresno last week and obtained a resolution of endorsement. Welch is also responsible for financial assistance being given to the Association in its efforts to insure passage of the Amendment by the City of San Francisco.

"Apathy and failure of the voter to understand Amendment No. 9," said Director Towne yesterday, "is the only danger faced by the Association in its campaign. Passage of Amendment No. 9 is essential if is to maintain its position as the leading good roads state of the Union.

"In addition to making possible continuation of the State program and to provide for future financing the amendment will relieve those small counties which have been staggering under their interest burden."

"Road Hogs" Prove Expensive to Fleet of Truck Owners

It is expensive business for the owner of a fleet of trucks to have in his employ any driver who is a "road hog." One such driver has it in his power to give the whole fleet a reputation that will make every other truck driver on the road keen to "get square." Soon the owner will begin to find his cars piling up in ditches with startling frequency. That's the treatment the truck driver metes out to the "road hog."

Driving a big truck is strictly a man's job. Among the drivers there is a code of courtesy which makes nearly every one of them anxious to give other vehicles a full half of the road. When anyone disobeys the code in such a way as to make it apparent that he doesn't care to follow the policy of a square deal there is resentment throughout the ranks of the drivers. It is amazing how quickly word passes down the line that a certain firm has drivers that take more than their share of the road—and the whole fleet of that firm comes into disfavor.

120 HORSES ARE DISPLACED WHEN TRAILERS APPEAR

All the fruit from an Oregon apple orchard, embracing 4,000 acres of bearing trees, is transported by a fleet of nine six-ton semi-trailers which are drawn by three heavy duty road tractors. Formerly 120 horses and several motor trucks were used. These were unable to keep up the pace with the 800 pickers in the orchard. To reduce loss from spoiling, it was necessary to pack the apples the same day they were picked and start them on their way to the railroad that night. The entire output is now handled easily with the new equipment.

Three trailers are used with each tractor. While the tractor is on the way with one trailer another is in the orchard being loaded.

Nash Quad Truck Popular in Valley

The Nash Quad four-wheel drive is now on display at the Pacific Nash Motor Sales Company on South Van Ness avenue. The truck is of the latest type and is rapidly making a good name for itself throughout the San Joaquin Valley.

Paint Protection is Economy

Dwellings, Barns, Fences and other structures, whether of Wood, Metal or Concrete should be preserved from decay and disintegration by the use of good paint. A square yard of paint coating upon a surface costs a few cents, yet it will beautify and protect dollars' worth of property for many years. Destructive elements are always at work, a little chip here, a little spot of decay somewhere else, and soon the building is an old building, and paint, W. P. Fuller & Co.'s Paint, would have prevented the destruction.

WHAT THE THEATERS ARE OFFERING

GEORGIA MINSTRELS AT WHITE TODAY

The history of the American stage does not record a more enduring success than that achieved by the famous Georgia Minstrels, which comes to the White theater, matinee and night, today. This company has weathered the storms of over thirty years on the road, having visited time upon time every city and state on this continent, and has spent numerous seasons in foreign countries, where they have been received by crowned heads and nobilities, where their success has been as marked as in their native country. The company and production for this season is out of the ordinary.

The company numbers over forty people, and these sons of joy will be seen in an elaborate production of up-to-date minstrelsy and vaudeville, the stage settings and wardrobe being compared to a spectacular production, the music, both instrumental and vocal, being a prominent feature with the company, and the years this attraction has been before the public has given the management ample opportunity to study the public taste.

SATIRE ON SONG AND DANCE FOR ORPHEUM

The Orpheum Circuit's contribution to Fresno's amusement next week will be headed by "Bits and Pieces," a brilliant song and dance satire on many of New York's principal theatrical successes, which will open at the White Theater on Thursday evening.

Jack Patton and Loretta Marks, well known in musical comedy, will be the features of this musical revue. The stars are supported by a group of pretty, clever girls.

"Jaspar Junction" will bring back memories of the old home town. In this musical skit Jack Clifford and Miriam Wills sing their audience away from the city to a point where the moo of the bossy cow replaces the clang of the street car.

The character of the middle-aged man of the world is portrayed to a nicety by Willis Clark who will add his artistic quota to the bill in "A Good Bad Man". Clark is supported by a capable company.

Harry Adler saw something of life "Over There" while entertaining overseas. Rose Dunbar has long observed life in the musical comedy world. The two are now combined in a novel offering entitled "A Study From Life."

Gymnastics and the provocation of laughter are the twin accomplishments of Welch, Mealy and Montrose, a trio of strong men, whose entertaining qualifications are well known from their having made many Orpheum trips. "La Graciosa," a beautiful girl, will pose in a flood of gorgeous light and color. Osaki and Taki, gymnasts, will demonstrate the entertainment of their native country. Selznick News and Christie Comedy will provide the screen diversion.

DISCIPLES OF MAGIC FEATURED AT HIP

At the Hip today, Monday and Tuesday, The Great Hermann and associates will keep the audience agog with mysterious illusions. They baffle observers, and present many new ideas in interesting magic, most of which were invented by the Great Hermann. One surprise follows another in rapid succession, and the audience is kept mystified by the remarkable exhibition.

Sam K. Nainoa is known as the master of the steel guitar. His repertoire of native music and songs are delightfully rendered.

The Dewey Trio are three talented colored entertainers, with a breezy set of song numbers, harmony vocal arrangements, part talks and speedy steppings.

McMahon and Adelaide form rather a versatile combination of speedy bag-punching, with all of its novelties and fancy features.

Christopher and Walton, laughable set of comedians, forming a skit called "A Close Shave." A Wop barber and barberette opposition brings about funny complications.

Grace Davidson in "The Hidden Code" is featured on the screen.

MAYO, ELTINGE, TO BE SEEN, STRAND

Frank Mayo in "Hitchin' Posts" and Julian Eltinge in "An Adventuress" will be the two big features of the change of program at the Strand theater today and they will be supplemented by the usual Fox comedy, and a scenic so that altogether the entertainment promises to be equal if not superior to any yet offered at the popular J street theater. The main attraction featuring Frank Mayo is a romance of the Mississippi, with stirring incidents of post-bellum days woven into a gripping love story of the seventies. Report has it that the production is a thriller from start to finish and that it gives the favorite actor unlimited opportunities. Julian Eltinge has the reputation of being the most beautiful woman on the screen and a dazzling array of new designs in beach attire form an outstanding feature of her new photoplay. So far as the star herself is concerned, she is credited with having a role that displays not only her beauty but also her talent to the greatest perfection.

GEORGES CARPENTIER LIBERTY ATTRACTION

Georges Carpentier, who has come to America to contest the world's heavyweight championship of the roped arena with Champion Jack Dempsey, will be introduced in a new role today as the star of a Robertson-Cole special, "The Wonder Man," an intriguing romance of American society pictured during the visit of the European champion a few months ago. The picture promises an entertainment unique in the annals of the cinema art. "The Wonder Man" will give the public its first opportunity to really know the favorite son of France, who plays the stellar role—in fact it will give the first opportunity for his many admirers to see him. The great demand to see Carpentier in the boxing ring was proved beyond a doubt by the crowd that flocked to the studio to see him when the great fight scene for the picture was staged. More than 3,000 persons went to see the Frenchman in his fighting togs for the first time. Carpentier is supported by a notable cast in the production, including such prominent screen artists as Faire Binney, his leading woman, and Florence Billings. In addition to this big attraction, patrons today will renew acquaintance with Mary Miles Minter in "A Cumberland Romance," a Realart production, in which the favorite actress is reported to be seen at the height of her ability. The balance of the program will include the Pathe Weekly, an intensely funny comedy and a travel subject. The program will run until Tuesday night, and in view of the curiosity regarding Carpentier, apart from the merits of the picture, record business should be certain.

GERMS FOR STAGE PLAYS IN FILMS

Arthus Berthelet, director of the new Bessie Love productions, who previously functioned in similar capacity for noted stage impresarios, has a way to meet the dearth of good material of which the latter are complaining.

"Let them come to the motion picture screen for plots to adopt to the technic of the footlights," suggested Berthelet. He continued, "I know what a snort of derision this would evoke from hardshell partisans of the theater who concede no good whatever to what they term the movies. Nevertheless, I repeat my suggestion.

"The triviality and even absurdity of many motion picture plot strutures may be admitted. Still, what candid critic can maintain that the same fault is not to be found in many of the pieces written for the stage? Some of them are downright naive in their shallow view of life—or shall we be frank and call them puerile? This applies to the present season's output in New York.

"Now, if the stage will drop all supercilious attitude and look carefully, it will find in the mass of original screen plays many plots entirely worthy of recasting into the form required in the theater. There could not help but be some, under the law of averages.

"It would not," concluded Berthelet, "be any more discreditable to the stage to do this than it is to revamp its old farces to make musical comedy plots, as it is doing."

Drama Notes

Charlie Chaplin's studio in Los Angeles has been leased to Carter de Haven, which would seem to indicate that Chaplin was not bluffing when he said he was going to England. On the stage where the famous flat-footed comedian has made his pictures, director Lloyd Ingraham will now direct Mr. and Mrs. Carter de Haven in their next comedy "The Girl in the Taxi." This will be a film version of the successful farce staged by Al H. Woods.

All good things have an ending, as in the case of Pauline Frederick, who has answered the summons of her director, Henry King, and has left her comfortable repose at the seashore, to assume the character of Lady Inglesby which she is to portray in her next cinema, "The Mistress of Shenstone."

On location in the fifth of a series of two-reel westerns which Tom Santschi is now producing, he has had opportunity to study at first hand a tribe of Indians in the Kern River valley. Santschi says he finds many of the primitive customs still surviving. He is keeping notes of these for future western productions.

Another of Jack London's novels finds its way to the screen. "The Little Lady of the Big House," one of the novelist's most famous successes, is to be filmed by the Metro company with an all-star cast. Edward Sloman, who gave so vivid and masterful an interpretation of the Metro-London success, "The Mutiny of the Elsinore," will also direct this picture.

MESOPOTAMIA

First Love and Lasting Resting Place of Columbus.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—"Mesopotamia, Upper and Lower, vies with Egypt in claiming the honor of being the home of ancient civilization," says a bulletin of the National Geographic Society, quoting from several communications concerning the land of Adam and Eve where the British are rushing more troops because of native uprisings.

"Mesopotamia comprises the valleys of the Tigris and Euphrates rivers. Here flourished the Chaldean, Babylonian, and Assyrian empires. The city of Bagdad, with all its glamour of mystery and magic, is in the heart of Mesopotamia.

"This was the richest land in the world, the granary of the ancients; yet, in spite of all that it has been it today lies largely waste, the desert sands have encroached upon the fertile fields, while the clogged canals have turned other portions into swamps and marshes.

"What population there is—not more than one million—is of Arab origin and the Arabic language is spoken throughout. There is, in fact, a very distinct dividing line between the Arabic and the Turkish-speaking portions of the former Ottoman Empire. This boundary corresponds with the line of the Bagdad Railway from the Mediterranean to the Persian Gulf. It is for the exploitation of this rich land of Mesopotamia that the famous Bagdad line was built.

"Syria closes the east end of the Mediterranean and is bounded on the north by the Taurus Mountains. The Syrian and Arabian deserts limit further settlement to the east and south. But in connection with world commerce it has always been closely related to the fertile valleys of the Nile and the twin Mesopotamian rivers, and its commercial life of tomorrow cannot be divorced from that of Mesopotamia.

"Mesopotamia is as fertile today as when it was the birthplace of human history and when the civilization that developed there had only the Nile Valley as a competitive field. But, like many parts of the earth once populous and now almost deserted, Mesopotamia is no halfway land. Such regions must either be the uncultivated roaming places of nomadic tribes or the seats of settled government and a centralized state. The inhabitants must either be few enough and mobile enough to seek through migrations the food upon which their flocks depend or stable enough to keep in repair vast irrigation systems which cause heavy crops to follow one another with assuring regularity.

"Various factors delayed the inevitable reopening of the historic trade route across Syria and Mesopotamia. The advance of the Turk threw Europe back upon itself to develop internally, and the discovery of America turned the attention of its peoples away from the spices and wealth of the East to the boundless resources and rich prizes of the West. The discovery of the sea route around Africa made available a safer passage to opulent India.

"Nowhere did trade follow the railway to a greater extent than along the Bagdad line, and in the spring of 1914 Aleppo was a thriving commercial center of German trade. At the hotels engineers and merchants crowded the dining-rooms and talked of a mighty future in Mesopotamia. That summer, war came, and the burning question of styles was rapidly succeeded by one of food enough to keep body and soul together.

"Just south of the Hittite ruins at Carchemish the Bagdad Railway crosses the muddy Euphrates and enters Mesopotamia. For the present the line to Bagdad and the Persian Gulf will monopolize the attention of the road-builders; but slowly and surely the iron pathway of commerce will extend north to the copper fields of Asia Minor and the rich plains where Turkish tobacco is grown, up through Armenia to the Caucasus, across Persia to Turkestan, and across Afghanistan or Baluchistan to the gates of India.

"War may not be entirely a thing of the past, but the Syrian and Mesopotamian routes are essential to the commercial and industrial development of Europe and the cultural development of Asia.

"Fifty miles west of Bagdad, along the Euphrates, lies the region now commonly regarded as the Garden of Eden. To irrigate this Eden and to reclaim millions of fertile acres around Bagdad was the stupendous task [illegible] dressed itself.

"At Musaiyeb, on the Euphrates, a pre-war traveler saw 4,000 Arabs digging like moles in the Hindiyeh plain making a new channel for the river. In the dry bed of this artificial channel an enormous dam was built.

"Nebuchadnezzar's vast irrigation system, which once watered all Babylonia, can still be easily traced for miles about Bagdad. One giant canal, the Nahrawan, runs parallel with the Tigris for nearly 300 miles; it is 250 feet wide, and all about it the take-off and laterals may still be identified. Herodotus said he found a 'forest of verdure from end to end' when he visited Mesopotamia."

Babe Ruth Injured During Ball Game

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., Oct. 16.—Babe Ruth sustained a fracture of a small bone in his left wrist in a game at Oneonta yesterday between his "All-Stars" and the Endicott Johnson team of this city. He received the injury while attempting a slide to first base. Although in considerable pain, he completed the game, knocking out his customary homer in the eighth inning, re-

AN AFTERNOON FROCK.

The home dressmaker can manipulate black silk crepe de chine into this delightful afternoon frock with perfect success. The skirt is slightly distended at the sides—for the straight-line is not absolute in the realm of formal dress—and the blouse is cut very low at the front to accommodate a vest of black and white lace with collar to match. The lower edges of the blouse form the belt, crossing at the front. Medium size requires [illegible] yards 36-inch silk and 1 yard 12-inch lace.

Up to Jan. 1, 1919, Germany had 47,637 airplanes in war. Records show that 1,078,957 bombs were dropped by these machines.

In the devastated regions of France the population has increased from 2,000,000 to more than 4,000,000—approximately three-quarters of the pre-war population.

Argentine Gold in U. S. Is Exhausted

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 16.—Argentine government gold deposits in the United States, which at one time aggregated more than $70,000,000 were exhausted today, when the Argentine National Bank released $2,770,000 in exchange operations.

Use of the gold in payment for Argentine imports during the past few months checked the advance of the American dollar here, bankers say. Negotiations to induce North American sellers to extend credit until the exchange situation becomes better are going on.

The new searchlight, developed by the United States army engineers, is a 60-inch light of the "dishpan" type and weighs 700 pounds.

The longest name of any soldier in the United States army during war-time was Harry Adolph Thomas Richard Eugene Bulock.

The amount necessary for the reconstruction of the devastated regions of France is figured at 152,600,000,000 francs.

Cleveland Six Now Only $1435

The Cleveland again establishes a new standard of quality and value in the light car field. It offers so much more at such a fair price that other light cars—sixes and fours—can scarcely be thought of as competitive. Cleveland character is distinctive, its daily service is unsurpassed.

No Other Light Car Offers Such Worth

The exclusive Cleveland motor, the most highly developed of the powerful over-head type, gives an abundance of speed, a rare flexibility of power, and a dependability and endurance that surpasses other light cars.

The sturdiness of its chassis construction, the ease of its control, the soft cushion-like action of its underslung spring construction—all these qualities add immeasurably to the certainty and comfort of the Cleveland's performance on any road, on the steepest hills, and in crowded traffic.

A Selection of Body Styles That Meet Every Wish

Bodies of dignity and beauty are mounted on the Cleveland chassis, and no other car offers cleaner lines, more truly sturdy gracefulness or deeper lustre of finish than does the Cleveland Six.

HANDLING AN AUTOMOBILE
What Shall We Expect for 1921?
By BARNEY OLDFIELD

So many important announcements have already been made that the average reader has been able to make some sort of a guess as to the basic trends in the automobile industry. He already knows of the lower price of the new Ford as compared with Buicks, Packard six and the Paige cars and so down the line. What do those announcements and others to come indicate? They certainly do not indicate a price reduction of existing models for next spring, for rather than do that a manufacturer will bring out a totally new model at a lower price. He does not like the idea of reducing prices when it is pretty difficult to do so on a basis of cost alone to believe that on the whole prices will be stabilized for next year, though in cases where new models have been introduced you will be able to do much better per dollar spent than you did during the past two years.

Interest for the car owner lies elsewhere than in price, however. It is at once apparent that we are on the edge of an era that will bring to us small cars for ordinary work. I refer to cars of less than 120 inches wheelbase, the average run to be around 112 inches. Such cars must come into our markets in great numbers if we are to get along on our existing supply of fuel and make it possible for everyone to motor. The day of the larger heavy car is fast passing, as a general thing, and we shall be somewhat in the position of some foreign countries which are forced to make their cars perform so that the ordinary man can own one. Our fuel resources are sufficient to last us only about twenty years at the present rate of consumption, so it is up to the automobile engineers to make the cars so they consume less—half as much as they now use. This applies to high-priced cars as well as to the cheaper ones

The small four-cylinder engine has not been developed as it should. This refers to engines of under 180 cubic inches displacement. We ought to have dozens of cars with engines of less than 100 cubic inches displacement. Even the Ford engine is too large when we consider what can be done with less. And when we think of 300 and 500 cubic inch engines we wonder what the engineers are thinking about. If necessary the power of the engine should be reduced and a four-speed transmission employed. I have been a strong advocate of light weight for fifteen years and I now can see that the fundamentals of light weight are being recognized as sound.

The carbureter and manifold designers are doing their best by heating the fuel or the mixture. The cars of this year and next will employ all sorts of means for even vaporizing the fuel so as to make it go through the carbureter. Even with the improved devices now in use the average owner must use the choke every time he starts and there is all sorts of difficulty on the first cold day. Radiator shutters are going to be seen on more cars this coming year because such devices allow of the engine quickly reaching normal operating temperature.

The basic engine will not undergo much change over that of 1920 because there hasn't been the time necessary to thoroughly to develop an ideal type to accommodate our existing fuel. We have the L-head engine and the overhead-valve with the latter fast gaining. If the overhead can be developed where it runs as quietly as the L-head and can be made at about the same cost, we shall have overhead-valve engines in practically all cars. As it is now the L-head is called our standard. Such constructions as the detachable cylinder head, force feed oiling and battery ignition are to remain, but improvements can be made in all. The cylinder head ought to be attached and removed quickly and easily by means of clamps instead of nuts and studs. This can be worked out and it will be by some manufacturer.

Chassis lubrication is as crude today as it was ten years ago. We still have grease cups and inaccessible oil holes and oil cups. Owners do not bother with inaccessible oiling places. We must have a central oiling system or make lubrication automatic. There should not be more than half dozen places for the owner to lubricate by hand.

In a few years the wood wheel will disappear and wire or disc will be standard. The plate clutch will continue as standard and so will the three-speed transmission, but the methods of operating the latter are going to be changed. The hand gearshift is an antiquated design and within a few years will begin to disappear. In its place will come not any electrical device, but one that is automatic and mechanical, operated perhaps by engine speed and lead.

The standard type of car instead of being open will shortly be closed or semi-closed. Eight out of ten cars are driven with the top up all the time, so why mount a collapsible top. If production cost on the sedan type can be lowered sufficiently it will be standard, otherwise we will see the permanent top somewhat on the order of the present designs.

Simplification must come in a great many parts. We put up with a lot of inconveniences now because we have to, but the time is ripe for manufacturers to appreciate the value of service and design chassis with a view to a reduction of operating cost. Unification of parts, removal of complications in detail and better equipment are trends now visible.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Dear Barney Oldfield:

Can you tell me if the wire wheel is patented, and if one can manufacture such wheels similar to the Houk or the Rudge Whitworth? J. P. E.

Ans.—I think that the Wire Wheel Corporation of America owns a majority of the wire wheel patents. Only recently it won a suit for infringement from Frayer, I think, on the triple base type, that is, this patent on triple lacing was held valid by the court.

Dear Barney Oldfield:

What is your honest opinion of prices now that Ford and some others have come down? Do you think the others will also reduce before spring? M. D. S.

I honestly believe that the Ford reduction will have little effect, if any, on the industry as a whole. The General Motors group, I believe, will maintain prices, not to oppose Ford, but because conditions at present do not warrant a reduction. I think that by next summer, material, labor and shipping conditions will be better, and price reductions will be possible. For every car reduced during the past few months, ten have increased their prices. R. E. H.

Dear Barney Oldfield:

At times my car jerks badly. The trouble is in the motor. When idling it does not misfire, and even in a pull after it gets going. Sometimes it will jerk and pull, again it will not. Usually it jerks badly when I try to pick up. What causes this and how can I prevent the trouble?

Ans.—In most cases of this kind I have found the fault to be with the float, which either sticks or does not rise and fall freely. Also examine the needle valve, as it may be worn.

MARK TWAIN'S EASY ENGLISH

There is a superstition among those who have been educated beyond their intelligence that no man can be a master of English who does not possess Latin at least, and perhaps French also. But this absurdity is exploded by the vital vigor of Bunyan and Defoe, not less than by that of Franklin and Lincoln, Grant and Mark Twain. And the vitality of Mark's English was attained also by that fact that to him English was always a spoken tongue, he wrote as he talked; but then he was always as careful in his choice of words when he talked as when he wrote. He imported to the printed page the vivacity of the spoken word, its swiftness and its apparent unpremeditated ease. His sentences never seemed labored, no matter how deeply they may have been meditated. In reading them they appear spontaneous; and, whatever the toil they may have cost him, they are not stained with the smoke of the casting or scratched with the mark of a file. Self-taught as he was, no apprentice to the craft of composition ever had a severer teacher. He so mastered the secrets of our stubborn tongue that he was able to write as he spoke it, with precise accuracy and yet with flowing freedom.—Brander Matthews, in Harper's Magazine for October.

RUMANIAN GYPSIES SUFFER FROM H. C. L.

BUCHAREST, Sept. 18.—(By Mail)—Of the dozens of different peoples in Rumania, none is more picturesque than the Gypsies. Like their [illegible] in America they rove the country in great caravans, earning stray pennies by begging, dancing, playing and telling fortunes. In the cities they sometimes earn their "bread and onions" by shining shoes, peddling lemonade or acting as porters.

The high cost of living which has drawn tight the strings of every purse has brought double hardships to these wanderers. No matter how well they play their violins, no matter what good fortune they see in the stars for those about them they find it hard to coax pennies from the empty pockets of the war-oppressed Rumanian people. Many of them have starved to death.

Among the Gypsy women and girls are to be found some striking types of beauty. Dark of complexion and hair, with shining, long-lashed black eyes, they are a delight to look upon. They have not yet acquired the art of using cosmetics as their sisters in the United States do.

Superstition plays a large part in the life of the Gypsy. One of the many ancient customs which still survive among the women is to beat themselves frightfully if one of their children dies. They believe that the death has been caused by an evil spirit having entered the body of the child as well as of mother and that if they chastise themselves the spirit will depart.

One Rumanian Gypsy woman whom an American relief worker visited was apparently about to die from pneumonia. The doctor found numerous bruises all over her chest, and these had seriously aggravated her condition. On questioning her he learned that her bruises were due to a beating she had given herself because one of her eight children had died.

Missing Tacoma Baby in New York

SEATTLE, Wash., Oct. 15.—A telegram received late today at the office of the [illegible] sheriff's office [illegible] Detective Division, New York Police Department," stated that "Bobby" Stagg, 11 month old Tacoma baby for whom police have been searching since his disappearance last September, had been surrendered to the New York police and had been given into the care of the Children's Society.

John Griffith Wray, director of "Homespun Folks" and other Thomas H. Ince specials, is one of the most consistent workers in the films. In six months time he has made as many pictures, and says that on the completion of his present production, "Magic Life's" with House Peters and Florence Vidor, he is going to hie away from megaphones, temperament and klieg lights, for a well earned rest. Wray will be remembered by theater goers in Fresno a number of years ago as promoter at the Barton opera house of a season of drama.

Why Does a Twin Six
Own the Road

IT'S interesting to hear men around town say what they think a car should do.

To some, car performance means hill climbing ability; to others speed—reserve power—or high-gear work.

Still others speak of ability to throttle down in traffic, or to accelerate quickly.

* * *

Any Twin Six owner will tell you that he gets all these performance qualities in his Packard. He is never at a handicap, no matter what the conditions.

* * *

Often you hear it said that a Twin Six will out-perform any other make of car. Do you know the reasons why?

A Twin Six can develop 95 H. P. You pay for but 43.2 (S. A. E. rating).

A Twin Six can throttle down to 1½ miles or less an hour in high and pick up to 30 in half a block.

A Twin Six is always good for better than a mile a minute—and on a hill it's seldom, if ever, you have to change gears.

With a Packard you can turn-around in most any city street. 23.6 feet is the turning radius.

Probably the most remarkable part of Packard performance is that although you always have the edge on the other fellow, the cost is less per mile for this performance than if you used some other cars whose first cost is one-half to two-thirds as much. Let us prove this last statement.

Diamond Construction for Strength

PHILADELPHIA DIAMOND GRID BATTERY

Wherever there is a great strain to be resisted, Diamond Construction is used.

When you step on the starter of your car, or hit the rough roads, you subject your battery to a terrific strain, which tends to cause the plates to buckle and short-circuit and shed their active material. It is this strain that shortens a battery's life.

In the Philadelphia Diamond Grid Battery, each plate is put on a Diamond Grid or framework, and is thereby securely braced to resist this strain in whatever direction it may exert itself.

Mrs. A. E. Holderman returned Tuesday evening from Live Oak, where she was called last week by the death of her father, J. O. Brubaker, of that locality.

Mr. and Mrs. James Besaw and little daughter June were in town this week, having recently returned from an extended motor trip to the east. Leaving last April, the Besaws took the route through New Mexico and Arizona and Missouri, and up through the middle west to their destination at Seymour, Ia. Returning, the trip was made along the northern route, with stopovers made at Pike's Peak, Yellowstone Park and other points of interest. An especially delightful lap of the journey was along the scenic Columbia river highway, a fine 70-mile stretch of perfect cement road. They were accompanied home by Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Daggett of Seymour, the former a cousin of Mrs. Besaw, who plan to spend the winter here experimentally with a view to becoming permanent residents. Mr. and Mrs. Besaw are living at Orosi until they can either rent or buy a suitable home in Reedley.

Llewellyn Blackley, a former Reedley boy, returned this week from Camp Mead, Maryland, where he received his discharge from army service on September 13. Blackley saw overseas service with the First division, having served four years in the infantry and one year in the tank corps. He is the son of C. W. Blackley, well remembered former resident of this city, now located at Auburn, and renewed acquaintances with many old friends.

STRATHMORE

The Presbyterian Ladies' Aid Society met Tuesday afternoon at the beautiful country home of Mrs. W. D. Turney, Mrs. G. L. Flynn assisting as hostess. The showers in the early part of the day kept very few from attending and all enjoyed one of the largest meetings of the year. Several new names were added to the membership. The society is looking forward to raising funds for the making of two class rooms at the rear of the church. The next meeting will be held with Mrs. J. G. Jessup October 26.

Mrs. G. A. Stoddard and Mrs. Guy Halley were the hostesses on Thursday afternoon for a towel shower given in honor of Mrs. R. A. Bennett. A large number of neighbors and friends were present. The afternoon was spent in music and conversation after which dainty refreshments were served.

Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Barthlott spent several days last week in Fresno and Kingsburg.

EASTON

About fifty friends of Mrs. Robert Rogers tendered her a surprise shower last Saturday afternoon. Some very handsome gifts of China, silver and cut glass were given her for use in her new home. Misses Elfida Anderson and Alice Rogers rendered several charming vocal selections, while an original poem by Mrs. Thomas Rogers added much to the enjoyment of the occasion.

Morton Walker of Nebraska is visiting his brother, J. T. Walker.

Rev. C. F. Crooks left Tuesday to attend the meeting of Synod at Santa Ana. He expects to return next week and will be accompanied by Mrs. Crooks, who has been visiting in the southern part of the state.

Rev. and Mrs. N. J. Burton and son, formerly of Inglewood, arrived in Easton this week. Rev. Burton has been assigned to the Methodist church for the coming year.

The people of the Methodist church entertained at a reception in honor of their new pastor and his family Friday evening in the Sunday school room of the church.

Rev. and Mrs. W. L. Miller left Thursday for Alhambra, where they will make their home this winter.

Mrs. Snyder of Los Angeles is visiting in the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Snyder.

SHAFTER

About 100 of Shafter's younger set bent upon enjoying the customary treat from newly-weds, gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Overman last Monday evening with the usual accompaniment of noise and were greatly disappointed at the cool reception awaiting them, and proceeded to show their displeasure by upsetting the farm implements and painting their opinion in yellow.

Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Gray were the recipients of a pleasant surprise last Sunday, when three autos arrived from Bakersfield carrying the party guests and well-filled lunch baskets. The day was one of unalloyed pleasure, taking snapshots of the group from the ground to the top of Mr. Gray's tallest hay stack. In the evening the entire party with hostesses motored to Bakersfield and attended a theater. Those enjoying the event were Dr. and Mrs. H. H. Gray, Mr. and Mrs. Bone of Taft, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Clark and son Fred, Mrs. Deare and daughter Ona Louise, Mrs. A. C. Kamrau and daughter Nell, Miss Mamie Vkesnik, Mrs. Will Davis and daughter Clare and Mr. and Mrs. Cutland and two little daughters. The latter gentleman is an old friend of the Grays, whom they have not seen for thirteen years, only having lived in the East, always with a longing to come back to Sunny California.

DELANO

Mr. and Mrs. George Boardman are home from a motor trip to Los Angeles, where they spent a few days with relatives.

Mrs. A. E. Bernhard and sons Paul and Ewing were home for the week end. Mrs. Bernhard is engaged in teaching at Panama this year. She is very comfortably located there, occupying a teacherage which the district has built for the use of its teachers.

Mrs. Julia Babcock, county librarian, made a visit here on Friday from Bakersfield to look over the high school library.

Frank McDevitt is home from his trip east. While away Mr. McDevitt visited many of the principal cities of the United States, including Chicago and New York. He reports a very interesting trip.

Miss Mathilda Thronson of Bakersfield was a Sunday guest at the E. H. Ramsey home.

Mrs. Margaret Allen, mother of Mrs. W. W. Hollon and of W. I. and Arthur Allen, is home from her year's visit with eastern relatives.

SERVICE STATION REPAIRS

op batteries are the bane of the motorist's experience. They're a nuisance and ever-present expense.

Yet the battery is the vital spark of the motor—cannot be eliminated in the gas burning engine nor for self-starting and lighting service.

Trouble is, battery development has not kept pace with engine improvement—lagged behind in the race for betterment—used practically the same principles that served when hand-starters were the peak of fashion.

Now comes an entirely new principle in storage battery construction. One that

THE NASH SIX

The Actual Value of The Nash Six Has Never Been so Clearly Recognized As it is Right Now

That is because motor car buyers are scrutinizing and comparing automobile values now as they have not done for years.

It shows which cars are overpriced and which cars are worth every dollar asked for them.

This process of comparison is emphasizing anew the superiority of Nash Six value.

It is making plain just how low priced the Nash Six is in comparison with those cars which even approximate it in cost.

It is gratifying to Nash Six owners and those contemplating its purchase to find that while the increased price of other cars since 1917 has averaged 76%, the Nash Six has increased but 31%; really 24% considering the addition of cord tires and other equipment as standard.

The soundness of Nash policies has been demonstrated.

You may purchase a Nash Six now or at any time with the positive assurance that the price represents actual, intrinsic value plus the smallest possible manufacturer's profit.

A wedding was solemnized in the Swedish Mission church at Hilmar Sunday, Rev. Train officiating, which united Miss Edith Hortig and Adolph Olson. The ceremony was performed after the Sunday service, and although the two are old-time sweethearts, they took their many friends by surprise. The bride was attended by the groom's sister, Miss Hilma Olson, and Anthony Hortig, the bride's brother, acted as best man. The bride made a very pretty picture in white georgette beautifully embroidered in beads and a tulle veil. She carried a bouquet of pink bridal roses. The bridesmaid was very attractive in pink georgette. Her bouquet was of pink carnations. After the ceremony a reception was given at the home of the bride's parents, for the relatives and a few close friends, after which the bride and groom departed for a trip which will include many southern points. The 1921 Haynes Touring Car at $2935 actually impresses people as a $5000 car
TWENTY-nine hundred and thirty-five dollars never before bought such a beautiful car, such a remarkably perfect mechanical system as the new 1921 Haynes Seven Passenger Touring Car. It is really $1000 underpriced—compared with other cars of the same value.
Owners of these cars report to us that hardly a day passes without someone expressing surprise when told the actual cost of the car. The average person thinks it must be at least $5000.
Its high hood, superb lines, splendid finish, deep upholstery, refined fittings and general air of luxury leave nothing to be desired.
And it is more than ninety per cent. Haynes-made—the famous Haynes engine is especially built by our own experts, and every essential feature of the car, from its first design to its final approval, is under the eyes and in the hands of the men who have made the reputation of the Haynes through all the years since Elwood Haynes created and built America's first car.
The four factors of car-character—Beauty, Strength, Power and Comfort—are scientifically combined in the Haynes.
Our policy is to give our patrons the benefit of our own economies, and in this instance the difference between what you think the car can be bought for and its actual price is a genuine surprise, which you will appreciate all the more when you look at the car.
Come and see the new 1921 Haynes—or telephone for a demonstration.

PEOPLE EVENTS PUBLICATIONS

By Charles H. Shinn

The man who in his reading looks for sane and earnest ideas will never fail to find them. Here comes a magazine "The Carpenter', edited by Frank Duffy, published at Indianapolis, and "the official organ of the United Brotherhood of carpenters and joiners of America." It contains an address upon "Labor Unrest" by M. E. Greenwalt before a recent convention of these woodworkers. He reviews various periods of unrest, laying emphasis upon the labor troubles between 1821 and 1836, also those after our Civil War. He shows conclusively that fifty years ago "the radical element in our midst represented far greater strength numerically than the present day Bolshevists and I. W. W. combined," although our population has trebled since then. The conclusion which this writer drew was that no one need be discouraged nor frightened over the present industrial unrest in America. The reasons for this faith in our institutions, we are told, rest upon the greater intelligence of our working men, the growth of democracy in our industries and the increased self-restraint and better understandings of capital and labor.

Again, we take up that monthly "The Crisis" edited by W. E. B. DuBois, the man who wrote "Souls of Black Folk." His magazine is full of charm, strength and timeliness, but what most appeals to the educated reader is the way in which DuBois tells his people to keep right on and stick to their faith in the world. He says the way out lies in self knowledge and self control, in ordered continuous, carefully-considered battle by the Negro for his rights as a man—not in wild, erratic and individual strife. And is he not correct in denouncing lynch-law, "Jim-Crow" legislation, disfranchisement, rotten borough voting, mob-law and convict slave camps? But he discusses all these matters in a fine American way. "There is," he tells us, "No color line in labor," as south, north, east and west are coming to believe.

The true measure of a man is in the spirit with which he does his work, and in its value to others. We have ourselves seen and have worked with Portugese, Chilenos, Negroes, Indians, Kanakas, Chinese, Japanese, and children of other alien races, all on one farm. The white Americans there were from six or seven states, north and south. But there was amity and helpfulness on that early Californian ranch.

"The Widening Circle."

Here is a novel which certainly has a history behind it—a novel by the Marchioness Townshend, and a most attractive one. It is the story of the childhood and growth of Elizabeth Sutherland. Its keynotes are romance, a very beautiful love-tale with a Prince for the hero, a Prince who gives up land and title so as to become a commoner and so keep his wife, Margaret. It is fuller and deeper life which makes the "widening circle" for the main characters of the book, though the motto on the title-page, taken from Emerson, is of the widening circles in a river.

More than in most novels, the gains and blunders of young creatures facing all sorts of odd situations, are somehow lifted by degrees to higher levels, and given their spiritual values. One cannot but love Elizabeth, Margaret, Diana, the saintly Sister Eleanora. The Appletons, who publish the book in the United States, will find we think that this novel makes many friends in quiet, book-loving homes.

If one likes he can take up MacMillan's "Who's Who" and read about the Marquess Townshend and his forebears back to the Baron of 1661. The Marchioness has written several books of prose and verse, but this we think is her first novel.

The Wilderness Mine

Here is a straightforward powerful story of the upward climb of men and women of real strength and honesty of purpose. It is by Harold Bindloss, the writer of many books and is the best thing he has yet written as far as we know. Frederick A. Stokes is the publisher. The scenes are laid in England and Canada, and the heroes are old Staywood of Nollinscleugh and his nephew Geoffrey Lisle, a young mining engineer. Staywood has a partner, Creighton whose wife Janet is a waster of more than money, whose daughter Ruth is the glory of the novel. The story moves steadily on from start to finish with a poise and clearness that is unusual in these days of so much too-hasty writing.

The thirty-four chapters are grouped into three parts, "Creighton's Patent," "The Rideau Mine" and "The Struggle." It is the second part which best shows the author's power to make his characters live. Geoffrey is up in the Canadian wilderness trying to get to Whitefish Forks, in a region where even the Canadian land-agents had just out. In a grim world meant for the resolute sheet-iron shacks and shiplap stores which creaked in the wind. A northwest midwinter, too, but our hero takes a handsled and plunges forward to battle with nature and rival miners, to meet, all unknowing, that wandered Creighton, and to win his way toward the book's happy ending.

Those "Next Besters"

Miss Lulah Ragsdale, born at Cedar Hill, Mississippi, now lives in Brookhaven, Mass., writes short stories for the magazines and occasionally a novel. She has the happy faculty of portraying the old south and the Reconstruction period with both knowledge and humor. Her last novel, "Next Besters," which Scribners publish, will interest young-hearted people everywhere. The central characters are old Robert Lee Poindexter, owner of the run-down and profitless plantation of Cherokee, and his two bright and brave daughters. All three have taken as the text of their philosophy of life that "next best will do for us if we cannot have first-best." They manage to get fun out of it every time, even when everything seems going criss-cross to Hades.

MABEL WOOD MARTIN
Author of "The Green God's Pavilion"

This might appear a slender basis for a novel, but as one reads it the humor, the courage, the high spirits of Polly, Pat and "The Boss," the agonies of cousin Althea, the financial prosperity of Aunt Melodia of New York, the painful splendors of Cherokee when the two heroes of the tale come as visitors—all yield place to the endless world-wide tragedy of that spirit from which comes so much that is terrible as well as much that is sublime. We mean family pride, which has so large a place in real life as well as in fiction. Miss Ragsdale knows it in all its pathos, beauty and terror. She has pointed a moral as well as adorned a tale. Everywhere and always it is well to maintain the family reputation and stand by the ship in the big things which count.

One lays down the book and says, "Hurrah for the old Boss, who straightened out the tangle for his two self-sacrificing girls!"

In the Philippines

Comes a new sort of a study of the tropics, cast in the mould of a story named "The Green God Pavilion." Mabel Wood Martin writes, the Frederick A. Stokes Co. publishes, and Californians will find it both exciting and full of new sorts of people.

The young American girl who goes into this land of beauty wonder and tragedy, is full of splendid dreams. She comes up against adventures of body and of spirit which almost destroy her, but at last, finding her own soul, she wins her way to love and peace.

Who this new writer is, we do not know. But she has given us about the most vivid and thought-compelling novel as yet written about the Philippino people; underneath all, its tropical colors one senses the central problem—what will come from the American occupation, good or evil, or just nothing whatever?

Perhaps the far-off end is known to the God of the Pavilion, who is thus described:

"In the face of the little idol there was neither the dead, marooned calm of the great Diabutz, nor the cruel evil of the Mongolian gods. He was just a quiet little deity, green as the far spaces of the skies, sitting thinking in his temple; but there was in his oblivious, impersonal reflection something that clutched at the heart."

None of the rest of us know this end but an American parent should read this book before letting a son or daughter pass out from our western world into those mid-pacific islands.

"All Wool" People

Holman Day, author of "The Rider of King Log" and some dozen other novels, comes to the front once more with a joyous-hearted and very original yarn. Name is "All-Wool Morrison"; time is today; place the United States; period of action twenty-four hours; triumphant characters mostly Scotch, and beyond description "canny."

Stewart Morrison, the hero, owner of the St. Ronan woolen mills of the City of Marion, has been elected Mayor while off on a well-earned vacation. The politicians of the state propose to steal its water power and the "promoters" have gathered to the feast. They are beaten out of sight by the horse-sense, grit and nerve of honest, shrewd, Stewart, who also wins the love of Lana Corson, the daughter of a United States senator, and one of the king-pins of the political combine behind the "white coal steal." Lana is, of course, another of the "all-wool" sort of folks—as soon as her mind and heart are fully aroused; she floors her amazed father, in the finals, with the remark that she is going over with Stewart to see Jeanie MacDougal Morrison"—who is Stewart's mother.

The Harpers publish this novel, which whoever begins will read to the finish, and wonder if anybody except a Scotchman could have lived through twenty-four such strenuous hours.

Idols of Education

A couple of years after the war began, one of our most thoughtful of California writers and teachers, Mr. Charles Mills Gayley of the State University published a little book with the biblical motto, "Ephraim is joined to his Idols." He dedicated it to President Angell as "Moulder of Universities" and "Maker of Men." Then, through seventeen audacious and eloquent chapters, under the broad book-name "Idols" he does his best to make us up. One chapter discusses the "Bandar-log," another "The Collapse of Culture"—and a third, "The Wages of Pedantry."

The little volume which Doubleday, Page & Co. issued, is full of truth and soul-stirring force, but we do not doubt that it has much amazed some of our educators. There is good medicine in these terse essays, however, and the classic stamp is upon them. He insists that "Scholarship shall be Supreme" in our universities and that their work shall open the gates with "the discipline which he upholds are what every educational institution needs, even more today than when this brave book was written, we Californians need his plain philosophy of life.

WOOLSEY of YALE.

We lately reviewed a forest book by Prof. Theodore S. Woolsey, Jr., of Yale Forest school. His publisher John Wiley & Sons, will soon issue a new book by this able writer. He has been down in New Mexico doing some forest work and we strongly suspect that the photograph from which the picture we present was made shows this lover of the wilderness on the back-porch of a jolly ranger's cabin and that Dr. Woolsey immediately "peeled off" his coat and helped to get dinner.

Brevities

In an eloquent address made before the American Bar Association by Sir Auckland Geddes, British Ambassador to this country the development of free government was traced, and Lincoln's definition as "of the people, by the people, for the people" was fully accepted. But the speaker did not believe that even now there is a majority in Europe which supports it and certainly not one which understands it. He called upon America to help defend "the hard-won hope of Mankind" from reactionaries and Bolshevists.

Dr. Rendel Harris, who was for a time a Professor at Johns Hopkins, has lately discovered much new material relating to our Pilgrim Fathers and presented it at tercentenary celebration at Plymouth, England.

The American nurse is known and honored everywhere, and so great is the demand for her knowledge and character that a campaign is now under way to enroll one hundred thousand more students in the training schools. The slogan is, "Join the Army of Nurses—and see the world."

The old farmyard game of "pitching horseshoes" has come to the front, and at a recent tournament in Akron, Ohio, a woman, Miss Marjorie Voorhees, carried off the honors.

E. V. Lucas, the essayist, says that he had a shock when, in boarding the Yokohama steamer for San Francisco, the American steward called to a cabin boy, "Show this man his stateroom." Lucas had been used to being called a "gentleman," and now he was up against democracy, but the more he thought it over, the better he liked it.

The article from which we gleam the above item about Lucas, is in the "Outlook," and is mostly about San Francisco and California—which he greatly admires.

Mrs. Asquith's autobiography continues to attract attention. The "Metropolitan" publishes it in this country, and it is well calculated to flutter all the Volscian dovecotes with its "inside stories" which only Margot Tennant could ever have known or dared to tell afterward.

The Truth About the Gardner in Fresno

Upon an announcement that some dealer might be lucky enough to secure the distribution of the Gardner car in Fresno, countless numbers have applied for this practically unknown to the public car, large amounts of cars were promised to be sold and other tactics displayed in order to secure this distribution. It has been the hardest-fought automobile in the history of Fresno to secure the distribution for, yet the margin of profit one of the smallest—"WHY?" Because it was the product of the Gardners with fifty years of manufacturing behind them, because one glance at the car compels you to ask "How can they do it at the price;" because it means a volume business; because it means a clean business; because hundreds of letters from contented and enthusiastic owners praising it, convincing the dealer that it would "stand up," and the service on them would be light; because of the financial standing of its manufacturers; because it cannot be approached by any car in America today at anywhere near its price. This is the truth regarding the Gardner car here, and we intend to abide by the policy of the Gardner factory, "Every transaction must be a satisfactory one." See the car, inspect it thoroughly, ride in it, and talk to owners here, then you will understand why "It speaks for itself." We cannot describe it, you must see it, then you will see why we have refused the distribution of twenty-seven other makes of cars offered us, and fought for the rights to handle the most efficient, the highest grade light car in America today, "The Gardner," the price $1395.00 fully equipped here. Deliveries may be a little slow for a while due to the tremendous demand for this car, but it is better to wait a week or so, than to wish you had. We have two cars left out of our last carload for immediate delivery, one roadster and one touring. Present price guaranteed against a reduction in price but not against an advance.

VOCATIONAL EDUCATION

Edited by F.H.Sutton

INTRODUCTION

The purpose of the Part-time schools is to prepare the boys and girls between the ages of sixteen and eighteen who are not in school for greater efficiency in their line of work, to train them for better citizenship and to create in their minds a better feeling regarding their general education.

The part-time school is not an institution intended to provide training to make up for deficiencies in the general education of boys and girls who leave the regular schools between the ages of fourteen and eighteen, nor is it to be regarded as a substitute for the regular school. Obviously it is impossible to accomplish in 4 hours of instruction a work that which the full-time schools find it difficult to do in from 25 to 30 hours of work a week. Rather the part-time school will attempt to make the break between the school life of the child and the work life of the child less difficult through some properly adjusted plan of vocational guidance and vocational training which will take into consideration the practical aspects of an individual's duty as a citizen and his potentialities as a worker. To this end the part-time school will concern itself with the explanation in an elementary way of the various institutions which society has developed for its own protection and perpetuation and for the welfare of the individuals who constitute that society. It will help the child to choose a vocation, to improve his leisure and will serve to make him generally a better citizen. In as far as it may be possible it will give definite training for the vocation which the child chooses and engages in.

Handel's Messiah Here in Fresno

Perhaps the largest undertaking in the musical world which has ever been contemplated by any local organization is now under way. The Fresno public schools under the direction of Llewellyn B. Cain and assisted by the Fresno Musical club, Chamber of Commerce, the Merchants Association and other organizations of Fresno county, are to present Handel's masterpiece, "The Messiah during the holidays.

The chorus will be two hundred strong. Special invitations are being extended to every church choir, high school chorus, and musical organizations, professional and amateur singers, in the City of Fresno, and in all the surrounding territories to become members of this chorus.

Nothing can be of higher value to musical people than to think in terms of Handel's "Messiah" during the holidays. To this end every church choir in Fresno and vicinity will be asked to do some work with this masterpiece.

In the Fresno high school will be found complete information regarding the future plans of this institution. An ample supply of vocal scores of "Messiah" will be on sale at the high school within ten days, and at first public rehearsals.

We wish to include in this presentation all people who have voices and desire to sing. This will not only include musical clubs or organizations and church choirs but absolutely every person, young or old, who either sings or has a desire to do so. This organization is directly under the management of the Fresno evening high school. From day to day important announcements will be published regarding the future developments of this new organization. It is expected that the first rehearsal will be held in the auditorium of the Fresno high school. Membership will be free.

For full information inquire of principal of the evening high school of Fresno, or telephone 3179.

Continue Training for New Americans

The Americanization work which is being conducted at the night school has reached considerable proportions. In the high school building there is under the direction of Miss Lillian M. Hawkins a class in preparatory training for citizenship while Miss Beatrice Swan has charge of the class of new Americans who are just learning to read and write. Captain A. P. Harris has again organized his citizenship club and after having graduated a class of thirty men in September has again built up a class in which the men and women expect to qualify for their final papers in December, 1920.

In the district to the west of town there are under way five classes. In the Columbia school four classes of new Americans are instructed by Miss Mary Palva, Miss Antoinette Rose and Mr. L. W. Anderson. A class has been organized in the Day Nursery. This class is under the direction of Rev. C. Richert. The class at the Day Nursery is open to all men and women in that part of town and the school authorities are anxious that people take advantage of the opportunity offered at this place for this kind of work.

Laundry Owners End Convention

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 16.— Harry Gilpatrick of Kansas City, Mo., was elected president of the Laundry Owner's National Association here today and Cleveland chosen as the city for the next convention. The 1920 convention adjourned tonight.

William Fitch of Chicago was re-elected first vice president, and general manager. Two other vice presidents were chosen, Charles O'Connor of New Orleans and Barney Galland of San Francisco.

A resolution was adopted urging laundries to open their plants to the public for inspection as a means of dispelling incorrect impressions regarding laundry conditions.

Mrs. Peete to Testify in Denton Probe

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 16.—A subpoena to testify before the Los Angeles county grand jury in its investigation of the death of Jacob Charles Denton, mining promoter, whose body was found September 23 in a crypt in the basement of his home here, was served today upon Mrs. R. C. Peete, former tenant of the Denton, who recently returned here from Denver, Colo., to aid the authorities in their effort to solve the mystery of his death.

The subpoena called for her appearance before the grand jury October 22, and officials of the district attorney's office pointed out, would insure her presence in California until that time.

SUSPEND ORDER CANADA SUGAR

OTTAWA, Oct. 16.—The Dominion government today suspended the order issued last night by the Board of Commerce of Canada, fixing the price of sugar in the Dominion at not more than twenty-one cents a pound, until a hearing before the cabinet on October 26. The prime minister, as a result, has postponed his Western trip for one week.

MONTREAL, Oct. 16—Canadian sugar refiners, holding commitments valued at $60,000,000 are faced with a loss which threatens to destroy the industry, Huntley R. Drummond, president of the Canada Sugar Refining company, Limited, declared here today.

The refiners, he said, have been forced to acquire and hold their large stocks under government orders and are unable to sell except at a loss, owing to market conditions in the United States.

Studebaker Owners

Would you have your piano tuned by a plumber? If not, why have your Studebaker worked on in any old shop when there is a shop in town with a complete line of special Studebaker equipment?

Remember—

Little troubles, if neglected, soon lead to big ones. If the little oil pressure gauge on the dash shows too high a pressure at a moderate speed it is possible that your oil line is stopped up. This means burned out bearings. If the ammeter is not showing a charge and discharge properly your generator may need attention.

In any event, a periodic inspection will stop trouble almost before it starts.

HISTORY AND ORIGIN OF FRATERNAL SOCIETIES

By W. N. GILLIAM

(The article below is introductory to a series of articles dealing with the [illegible] separately, which are to appear weekly.)

Men are social beings and their instincts and needs have, from the earliest times, caused them to unite with each other for the pleasures of mutual enjoyment or for the attainment of a common purpose. They have sought the power of numbers for resisting oppression, or mutual assistance in times of need, and again, their affinities for those having similar occupations and interest have led them to the formation of societies or guilds.

The Eranoi of Greece and the Collegia of Rome were the earliest of these associations and they continued in various forms through the decline of the empire, reviving and gaining new vigor as the guilds of the middle age. The essential principal of the guild is the banding together for mutual help, mutual enjoyment and mutual encouragement in good endeavor. These societies were numerous in the palmy days of Rome, most of them being trade corporations devoted to the interests of their crafts, while some were formed for good-fellowship, to promote religion and to provide for the burial of members. Persons of the highest rank were often glad to belong to them and many were exceedingly rich and influential. The plan of the organization was simple; they chose their own officers, made rules for self government, collected contributions for a common fund and met and feasted together at stated times.

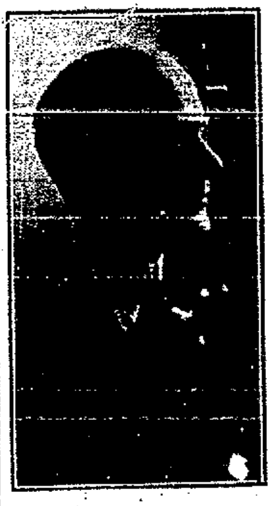
In the middle ages social guilds sprang up all over Europe, but chiefly in England and Germany and one or more was founded in every village. Their objects included not only devotions and orations, but also every exercise of Christian charity, and, therefore, above all things, mutual assistance of the guild brothers in every exigency—especially in old age, in sickness, and in cases of impoverishment, in losses by fire, water or shipwreck, aid by loans, work, and lastly the burial of the dead. It included further the assistance of the poor and sick, and the visitation and comfort of prisoners not belonging to the guild.

These guilds numbered among their members men and women of all ranks and were rich and powerful, so that kings and princes did not disdain to become guild brethren. The work done by these societies was humane and charitable: they furthered public and benevolent objects and founded schools and colleges; they assisted in the construction of municipal works and were a valued adjunct in the proceedings of the important cities. Their social features were popular and highly appreciated in their communities. When the reformation came the guilds in most Protestant countries were abolished under pretense of their being of a superstitious foundation.

In contradistinction from the social were the trade guilds, or merchant guilds, craft guilds, which attracted more attention because of their wealth and importance. Returns of all guilds were made into chancery as early as 1380, and through the borough records of England and Scotland show the influence and power of the trade associations. The guild merchant arose in this way: The same men who, in the growth of towns became citizens by reason of possessing town lands, frequently were also traders. The uncertain state of society in early times naturally caused them to unite for protection of their trade interests in merchant guilds, which made internal laws akin to those of other guilds. The success of these private interests enlarged their importance; and when the towns and boroughs obtained confirmation of their municipal [illegible] by charter, they took care to have it included that the men of the place should also have their guild merchant. Thus these guilds obtained the recognition of the state; in their origin they had been as other guilds, partaking especially of the character of peace guilds, but now the citizens and the guild became identical and what was guild law became the law of the town. In great cities there is no record of merchant guilds where the separate occupations or crafts early asserted their associating powers and independence, and the craft guilds gradually took a place in the organization of the town government. Many craft guilds, the heads of which were concerned in the government, were found in Italy between the ninth and twelfth centuries. But in England and the north of Europe the guild merchants during this period, having grown rich and tyrannical, excluded the landless men of the handicrafts; these then uniting among themselves, there arose everywhere by the side of the guilds merchant the craft guilds, which gained the upperhand on the continent in the struggle for liberty in the thirteenth and fourteenth centuries. In England these companies usually existed side by side with the old town or merchant guild, until at length their increasing importance caused the decay of the old guilds, and the adoption of these crafts as part of the constitution of the towns. The separation of the richer, and perhaps the older, from the poorer of the companies occurred, and thus arose the paramount influence of a few.

Under the influence of the refinements of civilization and the new necessities of commerce, as well as the strong arm of the Reformation and changing human taste and reactions, the social, merchant and craft guilds practically lost their power and popularity, even their very being. The social guilds were succeeded by the modern friendly societies, and social and literary clubs, and probably also in part by the great secret fraternities like the Freemasons, Knights of Pythias and Odd Fellows. The merchant guilds gradually disappeared and our present boards of trade and chambers of commerce grew up. The craft guilds may be looked upon as in one sense the parents of the trade union of today.

Clubs have been said to be the natural and necessary offshoot of men's gregarious and social nature, and they have flourished in all countries from the beginning of history. In the early days many clubs were formed for private advantages. We are told of clubs of Roman citizens in some of the cities of Spain, of a club of strangers from Asia, and of other strangers elsewhere. These all were probably devised as remedies against that sense of ennui and isolation which is apt to come over another, or a number of foreigners residing at a distance from their native country. Something of the same kind of feeling may have lead the toleration of a club consisting of old soldiers who had been in the army, who were allowed to meet and fight their battles over again in spite of the legal prohibition of military clubs. Another military club of a different kind existed among the officers of a regiment engaged in foreign service, wherever located. Its existance can have been no secret, for its rules were engraved on pillars which were set up near the headquarters of the general, where they have been found in the ruins of the camps. The contribution of each member on admission scarcely fell short of $100.00 and the greater portion of this sum was to be paid to the heir on the occasion of his death, or he might himself recover this portion of his original subscription on retirement from military service. The peculiarity of this aristocratic association was that it provided that a portion of the funds might also be spent for other purposes such as for foreign traveling, but if a member availed himself of this privilege he forfeited all claim to be buried at the expense of his club.



W. N. GILLIAM,

Well known fraternalist of Fresno, who has made an exhaustive study of the subject of general fraternal history.

In the early part of the eighteenth century the lodges of the present kind appeared, tracing their ancestry back to the remote ages of antiquity, and perpetuating to some extent the ancient rituals of the very old secret organizations, for example, the stonemasons, who had religious ceremonies, oaths, benefits, burial funds, and officers by whom they were instructed in secret. The word lodge first occurs in 1491 in a statute governing the Masons of Edinburgh. Each of these old lodges had their mystic signs of recognition, secret initiatory rites and various grades of honor, and performed extensive social and benevolent work. The modern lodges now number their members by the millions, hold vast amounts of property, and are constantly gaining in membership and influence, can be found in every city of any size, and have been and are immensely popular. The modern clubs, political, ecclesiastical and secret societies have many analogies to the ancient organizations, and viewed from a legal standpoint they are all formed upon essentially the same principles. As a rule, they are unincorporated voluntary associations, but they may be, and some are, incorporated.

In Great Britain are now to be found the English Friendly Societies which are organized among other things for the purpose of providing voluntary subscriptions by the members for the relief of disabled members and their families, old age, orphans and funeral expenses. These friendly societies of the present time are to some extent the successors of the ancient guilds. The American benefit societies and orders are similar in many respects to the English friendly societies, although they have many characteristic features of the great secret orders, having a secret ritual, mystic signs and passwords and are bound by oath to uphold the principles of the order, and to preserve its secrets, signs and passwords. The American lodges, instead of raising subscriptions by voluntary offerings or donations as is done by the English friendly societies, are supported by monthly or quarterly dues, are generally under the supervision of grand lodges, composed of delegates from the local lodges, and these in turn acknowledge the supremacy of a supreme lodge, which is made up of the representatives of the grand lodges.

Similar to the American benefit societies and orders, are the secret fraternities, whose characteristic features are good-fellowship, social enjoyment and benevolence, secret in their work and initiatory ceremonies. Some make no promise of financial aid to their members, but are charitable, only donating when necessity requires, while others expressly agree to pay stated amounts to its members in case of sickness or death, and have a lodge physician whose duties are to attend the members in case of sickness, receiving his pay from a portion of the monthly dues which is set aside by the local lodge for this purpose.

GIVES PRAISE TO U. S. BANK SYSTEM

ROCKHILL, South Carolina, Oct. 15. The United States has one of the best banking systems in the world, and "under it I never expect to see another panic," George E. Roberts, vice president of the National City Bank of New York, declared tonight in an address before a gathering of business men in which he analyzed the credit situation.

"I don't think we are going to have either an industrial collapse or a panic," he added, "but if we escape them it will be because we have a good banking system and the bankers have followed an intelligent policy in regard to credits."

Mr. Roberts said that the present situation is due to the "aggregate demand for credit by all the industries and all lines of business beyond the ability of the banking system to supply." Such conditions, he added, result from "the war, from the waste of capital and expansion of credit during the war."

"The restriction of credit is not responsible for the decline of wheat and cotton," the speaker asserted. "The poverty of the world, the low buying power of Europe and the high exchange rates are the principal factors in the break in these prices.

The situation calls for patience and co-operation all around. We want to get down to a permanent level of values gradually, rather than by going over a precipice."

VENEZUELA SENDS AGENT TO JAPAN

TOKYO, Sept. 18—(By Mail.)—Diplomatic relations between the republic of Venezuela and the empire of Japan may be established in the very near future, if the mission of H. Perez Dupuy, envoy extraordinary from Venezuela to Tokyo, is successful. Dupuy has, for several days past, been negotiating with the Japanese Foreign Office to that end and feels sure of the ultimate success of his mission.

"Venezuela seeks more customers for her products", said Mr. Dupuy. "Her bankers and business men realize that more customers will make sounder business. Her products, iron, gold, copper, tobacco, long fibre cotton, sugar, cocoa, coffee, oil and frozen meats, will doubtless some of them be salable in Japan, and in return, Venezuela can buy rice, wheat, toys, porcelains and other goods from this country".

The newly subsidized steamship lines which Japan is today promoting to improve and encourage Japanese shipping probably will call at La Guaira, the principal seaport of Venezuela.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15.—Secretary Houston announced tonight that subscriptions to the last issue of treasury certificates of indebtedness will aggregate approximately $160,000,000. The treasury called for about $100,000,000. This issue of certificates is dated October 15, and matures March 15, 1921. The interest rate is 5¾ per cent.

Essex 4 Times Breaks Record In 4 Trips Across America

From San Francisco to New York in 4 Days, 14 Hours, 43 Minutes

Essex now holds the coveted transcontinental record. Four Essex touring cars have broken the former marks. Carrying the first United States transcontinental motor mails, between New York and San Francisco, they set new time records for their respective directions across the American continent. The distance each car travelled was 3347 miles.

A Reliability Proof That Speaks for Every Essex

The fastest Essex time was made from San Francisco to New York in 4 days, 14 hours and 43 minutes, breaking the record by 12 hours, 48 minutes.

The average time for all four cars was 4 days, 21 hours.

Consider that hundreds of cars have attempted to break the transcontinental record. You have rarely heard of these attempts for the failures have not been given circulation.

Yet isn't it a remarkable and convincing proof of Essex ability and endurance that the only four Essex cars that ever challenged for the coveted transcontinental record were in every case successful?

Muddy Barnyard Menace to Stock

The muddy barnyard season will soon be at hand. During the rainy period it will be next to impossible to improve the condition. So why not now give the problem some serious thought and consideration, and have the yards in good trim before the rains appear. Study the course of natural drainage and if there is a reasonable amount of this, great improvement can be made by deepening the ditches or by putting in a system of underground tiling.

If on the other hand no natural drainage exists, and the barnyards are extremely level, it will be necessary to pave a portion of the yard.

Not much profit is made by allowing hogs and cattle to wade belly deep in mud during the rainy season. And furthermore, filthy yards about the farms are one of the most common causes for the dissemination of diseases among our domestic animals.

Test War Gases for Fumigation

"The extensive and effective use of poisonous gases during the late war has aroused no little interest in their possible utility for controlling pests of agricultural crops and foodstuffs," says Chemist George P. Gray of the California Department of Agriculture.

"Certain of these highly poisonous or irrigating substances have been experimented with and others have been suggested for use in the more peaceful pursuit of destroying the enemies of cultivated crops and stored foods.

Aside from experiments of their action on body lice comparatively little work has been done to determine the action of the newer gases on insects, fungi, and seeds, previous to the recently reported experiments published in Bulletin 893 of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

The experiments therein reported indicate that with possibly two exceptions, none of the gases tested give promise of being useful for fumigation purposes. The conclusions of the investigators are quoted in full below:

"Phosgene is not useful as an insecticide, because of its toxicity toward human beings, its high vapor pressure, the difficulty of controlling it, and its comparatively low toxicity toward insects. Neither does it possess any value as a fungicide.

"Arsine has no advantage other than ease of generation, and possesses many disadvantages as an insecticide. Its toxicity toward insects is comparatively low, it is injurious to plants, and has no effect on fungi.

"Illuminating gas in concentrations up to 3 per cent and for exposures up to two hours is not toxic to insects.

"Carbon monoxid in concentrations up to 3 per cent and for exposures of two hours is not toxic to insects.

"Of the gases tested, cyanogen chlorid and chloropicrin give promise of being useful for fumigation purposes. Neither of these, however, can be used in greenhouse fumigation, because of their injurious action on plants. Nevertheless they probably can be used in the fumigation of stored products.

"The efficiency of chloropicrin as an insecticide is doubtful. In general, it is more poisonous to stored-product insects than hydrocyanic acid. Other advantages which it possesses are ease of handling and control low toxicity toward human beings, ease of detection, and non-inflammability. Its disadvantages are its adherent quality, which makes it necessary to air the material for some time after it has been fumigated, its corrosive action on metals, its severe lachrymal effect, and its low volatility. The last objection may be partially over by pouring the dose required on paper, thereby increasing the evaporating surface."

Copies of this bulletin may be procured from the Superintendent of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C., at 5 cents per copy. (stamps not accepted.)

Injury Follows Use of Proprietary Spray

A recent report received at the California Department of Agriculture from County Horticultural Commissioner Ryan of Los Angeles, says that severe injury to trees and fruit in several lemon orchards near Glendora and Covina has ben observed following the use of one of the new spray materials advertised as a contact spray for scale insects. Some damage was also caused to oranges. The manufacturers immediately discontinued the use of the material and have announced their intention of carrying on further experimental work before allowing any more sales.

The cause of the injury is not definitely known, but it has been suggested that the very warm weather prevailing at the time of application and the supposed presence of a certain amount of arsenic in water soluble form were both causal factors.

Unfortunately there seems to be no other remedy prepared to undertake such work at the present time. It would be well for the grower who is experimentally inclined to confine his test plot to a few trees if he is willing to take a chance on any, rather than spread his experiment over the entire orchard.

Editor, Agricultural Section, Fresno Republican

The best orchard practice recommends the use of Bordeaux mixture for fall spraying, followed by lime sulphur in the spring just before the opening of the buds. However, lime sulphur is also used in the fall for the control of blight and results obtained have not been discouraging.

The amount of spray to use per tree varies according to its size, the efficiency of the crew, and the condition of the spray outfit. It has been estimated by authorities upon this subject that for the average producing orchard from four to six gallons of spray should be used per tree. The branches should be sprayed from every angle and every inch of the tree surface thoroughly drenched and covered. Such spraying always results in the loss of a certain amount of material, a circumstance which cannot be avoided but must simply be looked upon as a necessary part of the procedure.

While it is possible to obtain Bordeaux paste or powder which is ready for application to the trees, it is far the safest and best plan to use the freshly mixed solution.

Secure four fifty-gallo nbarrels. Fill barrel No. 1 half full (twenty-five gallons) of water. Suspend in the top of this barrel, just beneath the surface of water, twenty-five pounds of bluestone in a burlap sack and leave it until completely dissolved. This makes a stock solution of bluestone, equal to one pound to the gallon.

Fill barrel No. 2 with the same amount of water and stir into this twenty-five pounds of freshly slaked, or thirty pounds of hydrated lime.

Draw off ten gallons of the bluestone solution in barrel No. 1 and place it in barrel No. 3. Add to this forty gallons of water. That is, fill the barrel. Repeat this proceedure with the lime solution and place it in barrel No. 4. Then run these two solutions from barrels 3 and 4 at the same time through a strainer and into the spray tank. This combination is Bordeaux mixture and should be immediately applied to the trees. Never prepare the spray until ready for use and never use heat in its preparation.

October Crop Report, California

Crop reports and comments thereon as of October 1, 1920, as compiled by the agricultural statisticians of the Federal Bureau of Crop Estimates and the California Department of Agriculture.

FIELD CROPS

Corn

September weather was favorable for the growth of this crop, and in the absence of pests, which often seriously affect it, it has matured under these favorable conditions as is reflected in the condition figure—90 per cent of normal. This is seven points better than one year ago. On this basis we forecast total production in California will be 3,240,000 bushels.

The forecast for United States production is for 3,216,192,000 bushels, which is 84,843,000 bushels more than was forecasted last month, and if realized will be the largest production on record.

Oats

The average yield of oats has been better than was expected, and the state's production has been a little over 5,000,000 bushels.

The total production in the United States is estimated to be 1,444,362,000 bushels, which is 196,052,000 bushels more than last year.

Barley

The yield per acre of barley in California has been a little disappointing. Last month, based on the condition figures, we made a forecast for 29,425,000 bushels. Our preliminary estimate of the total production of this year's crop is 27,820,000 bushels. The quality is only 84 per cent; last year it was 95 per cent, and a ten-year average was 91 per cent. Last month the bureau's forecast of total production in the United States was for 194,858,000 bushels, whereas, now that threshing returns are in, it is found that there are only 191,386,000 bushels, which is 28,433,000 bushels less than a five-year average.

Potatoes (Irish)

The condition figure is the same as reported last month—83 per cent of normal. Our forecast for the California crop is 13,095,000 bushels.

The forecast for the United States crop is 414,956,000 bushels, which is over 57,000,000 bushels more than in 1919.

Potatoes (Sweet)

This crop falls down one point from what is was a month ago. Our forecast is 1,208,000 bushels in California.

Rice

The condition of this crop in California at harvest time falls down two points from what was reported a month ago. On this basis, and assuming that the entire acreage sown will be harvested, the forecast for the state's crop would be 9,387,000 bushels, providing, of course, the weather conditions remain favorable for harvesting and threshing. While we know there has been some acreage abandoned, there is no reliable data at hand to determine the percentage.

Pasture

The condition figure in California is always expected to be low at this season of the year, though it is two points better than at this time last year. The stubble fields always afford some relief for farm stock. Though our ranges are not at all good, nevertheless there is no complaint of live sotck suffering for need of feed.

Hops

The hop growers in California have certainly had a good year. The average yield per acre has been over a hundred pounds more than last year and about four hundred pounds more than a 10-year acreage. In this connection it is interesting to note that California produces over 50 per cent of all that is grown in the United States.

Cotton

A further decline of two points in the condition of cotton was reported as of September 25. The poor stand, the late planting, the adverse weather conditions up to the last of June, and inexperience of growers in the newly planted districts are largely responsible for present conditions. Last year's crop turned out 103,700 bales picked from 155,000 acres, thus showing an average yield of 268 pounds of lint. The area planted and standing on June 25, 1920, was estimated to be 275,000 acres. The condition is only 78 per cent of normal, compared to 95 last year and a 10-year average of 93. It would thus seem that the average yield would not be better than 225 pounds of lint, or less than one half bale to the acre.

Beans

The present year has not been a successful one for the bean grower from the standpoint of production as well as market conditions. High temperatures in July and the absence of fogs in the coast counties played havoc with all varieties of beans on unirrigated lands. Large limas on irrigated lands even were not up to normal as the hot dry weather coming just at blooming time caused poor fertilization and consequently a poor set of beans. On the dry lands less than half a crop will be produced. Preliminary estimates place the yield of limas, both large and "baby," at about 700 pounds per acre which on the 150,000 acres planted will mean a total production of 1,050,000 centals.

Of "beans other than limas," the production of pinks, large and small whites will be the smallest for a number of years both on account of greatly decreased acreage and poor yield per acre. Black eyes are yielding well, and production will be equal to or greater than the last two years.

Sugar Beets

Reports show no change in the condition of sugar beets from that of September 1, being 87 per cent of a normal, compared with 68 last year and a 10-year average of 88. Increased acreage and better condition promise a material increase in sugar production for the state this year.

FRUIT CROPS

California crops as a whole improved some in condition from early spring to midsummer, but at harvest time it became apparent that production was not going to be as great as had been expected from the improvement noted in growing conditions. The long and protracted drouth with the heavy crop of fruit particularly in 1919, undoubtedly weakened the vitality of many trees, brought about such spotted conditions, and caused a slump in expected yields. Weather conditions during September were on the whole satisfactory, although below normal temperatures the first half of the month held up the rapid drying of prunes and raisins. The latter part of the month higher temperatures hastened drying and the growers generally came through in pretty good shape. A few scattered showers followed by clearing weather caused no material damage.

Peaches

The production of peaches is estimated to be 84 per cent of a full crop, compared to 105 last year, and a 7-year average of 84. On this basis, the total tonnage will probably be about 360,000 tons, of which about 90 per cent will be dried, canned and shipped out of the state as fresh fruit. The 1919 crop was estimated at 440,000 tons. The peaches dried and canned reduced to a green basis together with shipments outside the state as fresh fruit accounted for about 390,000 tons, leaving some 50,000 tons for consumption within the state.

Production of peaches in the United States is estimated to be 44,375,000 bushels, compared to 50,434,000 bushels last year (December estimates), and a 5-year (1914-18) average of 47,514,000 bushels. During this period California has consistently produced between 30 and 35 per cent of the peach crop of the entire country.

Pears

The pear crop shows no change in condition from previous two months being 76 per cent of a normal, compared to 85 one year ago, and a 10-year average of 82. The probable crop will be about 85,000 tons, compared to 110,000 tons last year (December estimate).

In the United States the forecasted production is placed at 14,673,000 bushels, equivalent to about 317,000 tons.

Prunes

Early drying of prunes indicated less tonnage than expected but as the harvest proceeded conditions improved with the result that the forecast of from 95,000 to 100,000 tons is not going to be very far wrong. Total production is estimated at 73 per cent of a full crop, compared to 103 last year, and 92 in 1917. The disastrous rainfall in September two years ago makes a comparison impossible with like date in 1918.

Almonds

The almond harvest is practically over, but the spotted condition of the crop continues to bob up in all reports to the very end. Some new bearing acreage will help to bring up the total tonnage, but even then the crop will hardly be over 75 to 80 per cent of last year.

Walnuts.

The condition of walnuts dropped back to 80 per cent of a normal compared to 82 for August and September. Total production still looks good to be right close to 24,000 tons.

Apples.

The condition of the apple crop dropped two points to 70 per cent of a normal, compared with 80 one year ago and a 10-year average of 80. Bellefleurs fell considerably below the early estimates and Newtowns are showing an unexpectedly large percentage of culls under the rigid inspection by the Office of Standardization of the State Department of Agriculture. The extremely low price of evaporated apples has cut down drying to the minimum, and considerably more apples than the average are really going to waste. Total production is forecasted at 6,014,000 bushels. The percentage of the total crop that will be packed will hardly reach the estimate of 55 per cent made one month ago.

For the United States the forecast is for a total crop of 227,978,000 bushels, while the commercial crop is placed at 102,861,000 bushels, compared to 147,457,000 bushels total crop and 78,522,000 bushels commercial crop in 1919 (December estimate).

Grapes.

No change is indicated in the condition of wine grapes the past month. When the raisins were all on the trays it was found that muscats were hit a little harder than expected by the high temperatures about June 20 and again the last days of July, so the total raisin production may be a few thousand tons under the 200,000 ton forecast of two months ago. The condition of table grapes also dropped to 80 per cent of a normal, compared to 85 on September 1. Notwithstanding car shortage, shipments of grapes without the state total about 12,000 cars which is more than 4,000 cars greater than last year to same date.

Oranges.

The condition of the orange crop improved slightly in the southern counties the past month and warrants an increase in the forecast of at least half a million boxes over that of one month ago when the production was conservatively placed at 18,000,000 boxes. It should be kept in mind that this report refers to the 1920-21 crop, the picking of which will not begin until sometime in November. Favorable conditions the next three months can easily add still another million boxes to the total orange crop.

Florida Oranges and Grapefruit.

There was no change in the condition of grapefruit since September 1 when a forecast of 5,000,000 boxes was made. The orange forecast was for 8,500,000 boxes on a condition of 92 per cent of a normal. As of October 1, a decline to a condition of 91 per cent of a normal is reported. More oranges but less grapefruit than last year is the Florida outlook.

The composite condition of all crops of California reported on October 1 at time of harvest was about 7.7 per cent lower than their 10-year average condition on that date, as compared with a condition of .5 per cent above the average on October 1, 1919.

Hops x	113.9
Oranges	105.1
Lemons	102.4

More Damage by Asparagus Beetle

After a survey of the Netherlands district, T. D. Urbahns of the Pest Control service, has reported to Director Hecke increasing damage by the asparagus beetle (Crioceris asparagi).

Mr. Urbahns has under way, promising control measures for the repression of this pest, and reports that so far his work has met with excellent results. It has been demonstrated that the insect may be easily controlled by spraying, if done at the proper time.

This European pest was introduced about the year 1856 and has caused great loss to asparagus growers in the Eastern states. While it has been found in small numbers in California for several years, it has never, until this summer, assumed damaging proportions.

Investigations in the Netherlands district, where the bulk of California-grown asparagus is produced, developed the fact that several hundred acres is badly infested at this time.

Attention Stockmen.

The stockmen will now have a vacation from making crop reports until the 1921 season opens, with one exception: The January 1921 schedule on the enumeration and value of the different classes of livestock will be sent all correspondents. The better these schedules are filled out and returned, the better a report on numbers of livestock can be issued by the Agricultural Statisticians for California. Thank you!

PARIS.—A communique issued by Prefect of Police Raux at the close of the first week's battle against the rat, states that 10,865 rodents were killed. The offensive continues. According to the report of the experts, Paris had a rodent population of 8,000,000 when the drive started. This is one instance in France where the birth rate is quite superior to the death rate.

AGRICULTURAL CLUB NEWS

Why Club Winners Visit State Farm School

BY COUNTY CLUB LEADER

At the State Farm School, a program is provided by the Agricultural Extension Service of the University of California. The boys are divided into companies and shown each department of the farm in small groups.

Specialists in charge of sheep, hogs, poultry, horticulture and a dozen other departments then explain to these small groups the working of the farm. The boys are shown why it pays to study agriculture and where they can get a real and practical and scientific education in agriculture if they want it.

This is not all. There are rallies, talks by club members, movies, athletics and a review of the accomplishments of club members over the state.

The delegates on their return are asked to tell the other club members about the Farm School and about the possibilities for the boy of today on the farm.

CECIL TEMPLE

With his Senior Sow Pig that won third place ribbon in strong competition at the Fresno District Fair. Third place was also won this year among agriculture club members at the State Fair, Sacramento.

Story of My Pig

By Ernest Hellman, Kingsburg, Age 15.

I became a club member in the fall because I was a club member last year and I liked it. On November 26th, I bought my pigs from the Florbella ranch (which keeps Durocs). When I got my pigs home, I named them Democrat and Republican because they were always fighting over nothing.

I selected this breed because I like it best for I had one last year and won first prize and I took second and third this year, so you see that this is a very good breed.

I weighed my pigs the first time in a gunny sack and estimated their weight once a month after that until the end when I put them in a crate and weighed them one at a time on platform scales and then weighed the crate back.

I fed my pigs every morning and night on a little corn and about half a bucket full of grow-hog for about a month and then I fed them about a bucket full of corn per day. The last month I fed a little green feed while doing this. I spent about ten minutes per day which all together amounted to about twenty hours.

My pigs did not become pets because I did not spend enough time per day caring for them.

Mr. Alcorn, the local agriculture instructor of Kingsburg, visited my pigs about once a month to see how I cared for them and to give me instructions on how to care and feed them.

A boy who takes interest in the work and does what the instructor tells him to do makes the best club member.

Story of My Pig

(By Ruth L. Radabaugh, Orange Cove, aged 12.)

I am a pig club member because I am interested in pigs, chickens, rabbits, and all animals. I was raised on a farm, and that is another reason.

When my pig was very tiny, papa gave it to me, and I was very proud of it. My pig's name was Penny, because she was that color and it seemed like a good name.

Pastrumes and green crops are important in pig-raising, because a pig needs something green. My pig does not drink much water sometimes, but again when I go to water him he drinks in big gulps.

I put my pig in a box and put him on the scales when I weighed him. I put the feed in the pen and he ate it. I fed him morning and night.

I fed my pig corn, grass and water. I spent about ten minutes with him. I petted him and brushed him. Not very much of a pet did my pig become.

Mr. Soderberg visited me and told me how to care for Penny.

I like to raise pure-breds because they have better blood than scrubs.

I have learned to take care of my pig and feed him. A boy that is devoted to pigs is the best kind of a pig club member.

Story of My Pig

By Walter Hoegh, Selma, age 17

I received my pig from L. D. Worthington of Newman on Nov. 10, 1919. I had her shipped from Newman. I selected the Polands because they sell the best around here and they grow fastest.

I gave it lots of alfalfa pasture because it makes big bone and lots of exercise which makes strong returns. My pig did not drink much water. I weighed my pig in a crate. I fed my pig regular 3 times a day. I tried to feed her things with lots of protein, alfalfa, tankage, millrun, Hog Grow. I washed my pig with sheep dip whenever I noticed the lice beginning to come. When it was warm, I would throw some water in the pen and put some sheep dip in it so when she laid down in it it killed all the lice.

When I would rub my pig she would lay down. I raised hogs before this one so I knew about what to feed them.

Purebred hogs gain much faster than scrubs and much more economically. They are much gentler. I expect to keep my pig until next year and enter the sow and litter contest.

I have learned that it pays to keep good stock and take care of it. Do not beat them and work out a good ration for them when growing and when they have pigs.

A good pig club boy is one who is interested in stock and will take care of his pigs.

My Sow and Litter

By Clyde Hampton, Fresno

I am a boy sixteen years old, a Freshman in the Selma High School. I entered vocational work because I was much more interested in it.

My project is a sow which I purchased from Homer Neptune. She was bred to Rose's Giant and farrowed Feb. 3, 1920. I bought her Dec. 3, 1919 and paid $100 for her and which was very cheap.

She is a pure bred Poland China sow of medium type. She farrowed eleven pigs for me and she raised them all. Seven of them are gilts and four are boars. My pigs are nine weeks old and are eating alfalfa and millrun.

I started by feeding my sow Hog Grow and fed her one sack. I then started feeding shorts and millrun with tankage and am getting some good results. My sow and pigs are out on alfalfa pasture about three hours a day for which I pay my father ten cents a month.

The sire of my sow is Kings Massive Orange and the dam of her is Peggies Favorite. The name of my sow is Orange Peggy.

Restrictions On Sheep Movements

The division of animal industry of the state department of agriculture has placed a temporary embargo on all sheep located between Geyserville, Cloverdale, Hopland and intermediate points, making it now necessary for shippers to obtain a written permit from Mr. Charles Cooley, the local inspector at Cloverdale, or other authorized representatives of the department before sheep will be accepted by the railroad company for feeding, slaughter or other purposes.

Dr. J. P. Iverson, chief of the division, considers this an advisable step in the direction of controlling sheep scab (which exists to some extent in the Cloverdale district at the present time owing to the many movements from that section to other points on account of feed shortage.

The order, which will be in force until further notice, is issued to safeguard the health of sheep in other parts of the state which, through the very effective work accomplished by the department of agriculture this year, are now practically free from scabies.

The seriousness of scabies infestation seems only to be fully realized by some persons. In the light of this fact, this department is determined to deal most strenuously with all violators of the Sheep Scab law.

Some persons seem disinclined to observe this law until its effectiveness has been demonstrated to them through the medium of the courts; henceforth, those who wilfully contemplate its violation would profit by the experience of others, who felt that certain evasions would not be detected, and even if they were would be dealt with leniently.

Irrigation for Rice

That 5 acre-feet of irrigation water per acre annually are sufficient for the Sacramento Valley soils most suitable for rice growing, and that over a period of years the yield of rice from fields kept submerged to maximum depths may not be enough greater than with less depths of submergence to justify the extra cost of water, are two of the more important conclusions of rice irrigation experiments conducted by the College of Agriculture of the University of California and co-operating agencies during the past six years, according to a survey of the work released today.

These experiments were conducted on commercial rice fields on the principal rice soils of the Valley and at experimental fields at Biggs and at Norman the work at Biggs being in co-operation with the Biggs Rice Field Station of the Bureau of Plant Industry. All of the work was done under the co-operative agreement with Irrigation Investigations of the United States Department of Agriculture, the California Department of Engineering, and the California State Water Commission. The results are given in Bulletin 325 of the College of Agriculture, which will be mailed free on application to the College of Agriculture, at Berkeley, it was announced.

Besides the amount of water necessary in rice irrigation, the experiments included such questions as the time of submerging the rice fields, the effect of stagnant water as against constantly changing water, the effect of fluctuating the depth of submergence and the effect on yield of merely keeping rice fields moist instead of submerged.

In the depth of submergence experiments it was generally found that especially on new soil, largest yields came with a submergence of six inches. On alkali lands, early submergence of rice was found desirable. On other lands the best yields generally were obtained by submerging 30 days after the crop appeared above the ground although the advantage was not always sufficient to offset the extra cost over beginning submergence later.

Bulletin 279, published earlier by the College of Agriculture, which discusses methods of preparation of land for rice irrigation, is also available on application.

We will plant it, water it, cultivate it and turn it over to you a practically producing place at the end of a certain period, the length of time depending on what you want planted.

POULTRY

Pointers From New Zealand

Here are some condensed pointers from the bulletin written by F. C. Brown, chief poultry instructor, and issued by the New Zealand Department of Agriculture, Industries and Commerce:

There are many theories, but none have been proved to be correct, as to how to secure a high percentage of pullets.

In selecting birds for breeding purposes the history of the strain from which selection is made should be known.

Fertile eggs may be obtained after the birds have been mated forty-eight hours, but in the majority of cases eight to ten days' mating is advisable.

The cowed male, or one with feminine appearance, should never be bred from.

Cross-breeding is an effective means of raising birds for table purposes, and in some cases good egg records are obtained from them, but cross-bred birds should not be bred from.

The distance between the pelvic bones is not an indication of egg-producing power; nor in the male bird does it indicate in any way that the bird would be the sire of high type layers. It is, however, a good guide as to whether a hen is laying or not.

It takes years to work up a good laying strain, but only a short time to lose it when constitutional points are not considered in the breeding-pens.

Breeding pens should be purchased some time before the breeding season. A bird must have an opportunity to get over the fretting stage.

The beginner should start with one breed, and obtain best specimens of that breed for his foundation stock.

When mating the breeding birds, endeavor to select those conforming to breed points combined with the main utility characteristics. Avoid crosses as much as possible, and breed pure when it is possible to do so.

Do not cut off the whole of the wing feathers of hens intended for the breeding pen. If you do, poor fertility will result.

Do not breed from a bird that has apparently recovered from some disorder. If any but the strongest specimens are allowed to reproduce their kind unsatisfactory results are sure to follow.

When table eggs only are wanted male birds are not necessary or desirable. You will get more and better eggs without them. Again, infertile eggs will preserve better.

If a large percentage of eggs are infertile look for the cause. The male bird may be out of condition, or a change of male may be necessary. The feeding and management may also require attention.

Culling

There is no matter more important to the poultryman than culling unprofitable stock. It is only the high-type layer that will show a good profit over the cost of production, and every inferior bird retained in the flock reduces the profit of the money-earning stock. While February and March is the best time to cull, good weeding-out can be done the whole year round. The safest principle is to cull out at all times birds showing any weakness in constitution. Drastic culling should always take place after the pullets' first laying season. February is a good month to detect the hens not worth keeping a second year. The birds that should be culled are those that are showing signs of moulting, those above the normal weight of the breed, those of poor development in the abdominal region and those of weak constitution, dull eyes, loose feathering, and sluggish appearance.

It is the bird that lays well in other than the natural laying season that is desired and that is profitable. For a bird to do this she must necessarily be a late molter. It would be a mistake to cull birds at any time that show indications of laying-power such as no sign of molting, red combs, a fullness in the abdomen, and an active business-like appearance. While the width of the pelvic bones is no guide to laying-capacity it is nevertheless a fact that the position of these bones is a fair guide as to whether the bird will lay in the immediate future or whether she is taking the usual rest before molting. When the bones are close together and the breast-bone close up to them it may be taken for granted that the bird will not lay for some time, and therefore will be unprofitable to keep; whereas if the pelvic bones be well apart and there be a good distance between these and the breast-bone, with a fullness of the abdomen, it may be reckoned that the bird will soon come on to lay, and is therefore well worth retaining in the flock until she shows signs of molting. Of course, the man with a trained eye does not require to handle the bird at any time to discover whether she is in a laying condition or not.

No hen except a noted layer and a desirable breeding-bird should be kept beyond its second laying season. After the second season a bird will produce most of her eggs during the natural season, and thus not only provide a small number of eggs, but will give these when the cheapest markets rule. A common mistake made is not to market birds until the molt has practically set in or until they have just got over it. They should be marketed immediately they commence to take their rest prior to going into the molt.

Employers, Parents, Boys and Girls

The Part-Time division of the Fresno High School finds it necessary to constantly keep the public informed as to the conditions of the new Part-Time school law and the benefits which will be derived from the application of this law both on the part of the students and the employers. The following definite set of questions and answers will apply to our local conditions. Mr. Vierling Kersey, of the Polytechnic High School of Los Angeles is responsible for this method of placing this information before the public.

1—What is This Part-Time Law?

A law enacted by the State of California, effective July 1st, 1920, intended to give employed boys and girls educational opportunities by establishing Part-Time schools in or near their places of employment.

2—Why Is It Called a Part-Time Law?

Because the boys and girls spend part of their time at work and part of their time at school.

3—Who Will Attend These Part Time Schools?

All boys and girls, whether employed or not, between 16 and 17 years of age who are not in attendance upon a public or private day school or who have not graduated from a high school. Also boys and girls under 16 years of age who are at work under a permit may attend these classes instead of night school.

4—Where Will the Part-Time Schools Be Established?

In your place of employment or as near to it as found expedient by your employer and the Board of Education.

5—Who Will Inform You When and Where These Classes Meet?

Your employer.

6—What Will Be Taught In These Classes?

Subjects which will give the working boys and girls greater skill, make their work easier, more efficient, prepare them for promotion and teach them the duties of citizenship.

7—How many will there be in a part-time class?

8.—Who will be in the classes with you?

Those doing the same type of work as yourself.

All classes will be held between the hours of 8 a. m. and 5 p. m. However, the hours of instruction plus the hours of work must not exceed eight hours.

10.—How much time will you spend in a part-time school?

Four 60-minute hours per week throughout the regularly established school term; the time to be arranged to best suit the employer.

11.—When do part-time schools begin?

September 13, 1920. And thereafter the same as that of the regular full-time school.

12—What must you do to enroll in a part-time school?

(a) If you are working on September 13:

1. Secure from your employer and fill out an application for a "Certificate of Enrollment and Permit to Work."

(b) If you are going to work later:

Go to Room W11, Fresno high school building and secure a certificate of enrollment and permit to work.

13—Will all boys and girls between 16 and 17 years of age, whether in school or not, fill out a part-time enrollment blank?

Yes. The department of part-time instruction will enroll, through the various full-time schools all boys and girls 16 to 17 years of age.

(a) To attend classes.

(b) To secure a "Certificate of Enrollment and Permit to work.

(c) Present this certificate upon request to any officer of the law or other person authorized to enforce the provisions of the law.

Yes.

(a) For your attendance upon part-time classes.

(b) For the keeping of a copy of your Certificate of Enrollment and Permit to Work."

16—What penalty is imposed upon parents who fail to send their children to part-time classes if they are not attending a regular day school?

Failure on the part of any parent, guardian or other person having control or charge of such child to perform the duties mentioned shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction shall be liable to a fine or imprisonment, or to both fine and imprisonment.

17—What are the duties and responsibilities of employers?

Five days after the opening of the fall term of the local high school for the year 1920-21, and thereafter, no employer may employ a youth between 16 and 17 years of age, unless said youth has filed with him a certificate of enrollment and permit to work issued in the name of the director of the department of part-time instruction.

18—What are the penalties of employers for failure to comply with the law?

Any person, firm, corporation, agent or officer of a firm or corporation that violates or omits to comply with any of the provisions of the law is guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction thereof may be punished with a fine or imprisonment in the county jail, or by both fine and imprisonment for each and every offense.

19—May you withdraw from part-time classes maintained during the year 1920-21 when you become 17 years of age?

No. The Part-time Law contemplates that all boys and girls over sixteen and under eighteen years of age must attend part-time classes until they are eighteen years of age.

20—Will your attendance upon part-time classes be recorded?

Fresno To Have Real Agricultural Week

G. H. Hecke, director of agriculture, announces the program for the 53rd State Fruit Growers' and Farmers' Convention to be held in Fresno, California, November 9 to 12, inclusive. The convention will be held under the auspices of the State Department of Agriculture, and is one of the principal events among the fruit growing and farming interests of the state. There is no doubt that an unusually large attendance will be attracted to the convention to hear speakers of national repute on some of the most important agricultural problems confronting the state.

Mr. Hecke and his assistant, Mr. R. H. Taylor, were in Fresno on Wednesday in conference with representatives of the Fresno Chamber of Commerce and the farm interests, and it is very evident that local arrangements are going to be of the very best for all who will attend.

The convention will open on Tuesday morning, November 9, with the usual courtesies, and the opening address by the director will review the present status of the agricultural interests and bring out clearly some of the more fundamental considerations which must be taken up at a meeting of this kind. Following this there will be a discussion of the present and future problems relating to the various co-operative associations now operating in California.

Wednesday, November 10, will be given over to a discussion of standardization of fruits and vegetables and transportation. With markets for agricultural products declining, as they have been recently, the fruit growers face very serious difficulties, and these are only added to by the shortage of cars and other serious transportation problems which must be dealt with intelligently and speedily. Some of the best men in the country on these subjects are scheduled to speak and discuss the questions involved.

The meeting for Thursday, November 11, will open with a discussion of "Some Important Phases of Crop Statistics" by the Agricultural Statistician of the newly inaugurated California Co-operative Crop Reporting Service carried on jointly by the State Department of Agriculture and the United States Bureau of Crop Estimates.

"Advertising as an Aid to Marketing Products" is the subject of live importance at this time, and we hope to have one of the foremost authorities on this subject in the United States address the convention.

Plant quarantine is doubly important at the present time owing to the large number of pests and diseases not in the state at this time but which threaten our borders. It is hoped to have one of the recognized American authorities present to speak on effective and efficient quarantine measures.

On Thursday afternoon the program will be given over to matters concerning legislation, at which time the Agricultural Legislative Committee, which was inaugurated at the 52nd State Fruit Growers and Farmers' Convention held in Chico last year, will report.

The banquet in the evening will be interesting, and at the same time some important topics will be presented for consideration.

Friday, November 12, will be given to the discussion of dehydration of fruits and vegetables, and it is evident from the wide-spread interest taken in this subject by the people of the state as a whole and the inquiries which are constantly being made concerning the efficacy and types of evaporators that many people will attend this session. Simultaneously with this it is hoped to have a meeting of the Certified Seed Potato Growers' Association.

One of the important factors on the promotion of better fruit production and marketing is the group of men comprising the county horticultural commissioners. These men from the various counties of the state will be present throughout the Fruit Growers' and Farmers' convention and, in addition, will hold a meeting of their own association on Monday and Friday of the same week.

The present program gives promise of no spare moments. Business of vital importance will be discussed and definite policies and and plans decided upon. All those interested in the future of California agriculture are urged to arrange their plans to attend the entire convention.

through the northern part of the state and were enroute to their home in Reward. Mrs. Marr as Miss Anita Fulton claimed countless friends in this vicinity and many of those called Tuesday evening to meet Mr. Marr. The wedding of this popular couple was one of the splendid social events in the bay region this summer.

High school misses nowadays are quite capable of presiding over any sort of festivity, as was proven when on last Saturday evening Misses Florence Bates and Edith Severman gave a dinner party in the Bates home, thus entertaining a number of out of town guests. The table was prettily decorated in a fall scheme of decoration, use being made of fragrant flowers of the early fall. The menu was an appetizing one prepared by these young misses, who are yet in their early teens.

Kensington whiled away the happy hours of Wednesday afternoon for a bevy of Ceres women who were guests in the T. E. Wilson home. Chatter mingled with the needle work, thus adding a personal touch of happiness to the afternoon. Many delight in needlework, because it allows those plying their needles the privilege of visiting as well as sewing. Mrs. Wilson's guests for Wednesday were Mesdames Roscoe Service, Bert Service, Frank Landers, Bert Rich, F. Moffitt, L. C. Collins and R. Hiatt.

Mrs. D. C. Hartley hostessed the regular meeting of the Informal Bridge Club in her home Saturday afternoon, the players meeting to enjoy a game of bridge and the hospitality of their hostess. A tasty luncheon served at the individual tables concluded the afternoon, thus giving the guests an hour or so in which to chatter.

The lovely home of Mrs. H. A. Bates was especially festive Tuesday evening, being the meeting place for the Evening Bridge Club, which boasts of a group of congenial players who have enjoyed the sociability of this club for a number of years. The club plays a series of games, a score being kept for each game and at the end of their series the winners are entertained by those losing. This event is always celebrated with a gala celebration. Tuesday's meeting was the first of this season and the following scored during the evening: Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Husband, H. B. Husted, J. J. McMahon, J. W. Davidson, Jr., D. C. Wood, A. J. Carlson, Claude Shackleford, Ben Horton.

One of the season's most prominent events among clubwomen will be the teacher's reception which will be held the first Saturday in November in the lovely home of Dr. and Mrs. J. C. Robertson. The reception for the faculty is an annual event and at this time all club members and their friends gather to pay homage to the teachers and thus become acquainted with those who control the educational situation locally. The affair as planned will be one of the most festive yet given.

Value of a Purebrde Sire

By F. T. MURPHY

Assistant Farm Adviser

A few poor cows may do little permanent harm to the dairy herd, but a poor sire will do untold damage. It is often the case that a dairyman will look too close to the penny to be able to see the dollar farther ahead. That is just what a dairyman does when he puts a scrub bull at the head of his herd. He thinks he is economizing by buying a poor or even common sire.

If a good sire improves the milking capacity of his daughter only 1½ pounds of milk at a milking over the dam's production, this would mean an increase of 900 pounds of milk for ten months of 300 days, which is the average lactation period of a cow. This would not only improve the milk flow but cause the daughter to be a more persistent milker and to hold up stronger during the lactation period. She would regain her flow of milk quicker after an unavoidable summer drought as is often the case when feed and pasture are scarce. One could conservatively figure on an increased production of 1,000 pounds of milk during the lactation period on such offspring and figuring it today at the market value of whole milk at $1.46 per 100 pounds, the added value of this extra amount of milk would be $14.60. The average cow is an increasing producer for at least six years, or until she is eight years old. It will be on the average four years before the first heifer will have brought in the additional income from the increased amount of milk. Eleven dollars and sixty cents put at compound interest for four years at 5 per cent would equal $14.60, so the sire has added an increase equal to $11.60 the first year of purchase, or at the time of purchase. The cash value of the daughter's improvement (from the sire) figured for each year she gives milk is shown in the following table:

Improvement	first year	$11.60
"	second year	10.72
"	third year	10.19
"	fourth year	9.69
"	fifth year	9.21
"	sixth year	8.75
Total for six years		$60.16

The total increased income of a cow over her dam by having a good sire is then $60.16.

In an average herd of 35-40 cows, an average of 17 heifers should be obtained and twelve of these should be worth raising, making it easily possible for a bull to earn 12x$60.16, or $721.92 per year. Figuring three years the average length of time a sire is kept at the head of a herd, this would amount to $2,165.76.

Cost of providing every heifer one good sire.

	Purebred.	Scrub.
Cost of sire	$300	$70
Interest three years at 7%	63	11
Cost of keeping three years	100	100
Risk three years	100	50
Total expense three years	563	231
Value end of three years	250	100
	313	131
	131
Extra cost good sire three years	$182
Extra cost good sire one year	154
Extra cost good sire one daughter	12.70

Considering the male calves as worth no more than those sired by the scrub the total cost of providing a good sire for the twelve heifer calves would be $154, or $12.70 per calf for a good pureblood sire. Estimating the saving, $12.70 expended brings in $60.16 in six years, or an average of over $10 per year. Where can money be placed on the farm to bring a higher rate of interest than in a first class pure blood sire? This makes a net profit on each calf of $47.46, or a net profit of $1,708.56 for thirty-six heifers in three years or 500 per cent over the original investment on the bull.

In the above table, ample room was left for failures and a fair price was placed on both the pureblood and grade sires. One thousands pounds of milk is a very conservative amount of increase for the offspring of the good sire. Thirty-six to forty cows were taken as the average herd for one sire, while a vigorous sire properly fed and exercised could easily handle forty to fifty cows provided he is allowed to run with them. Besides the additional amount of milk flow, the improvement of the blood in the individual will through a series of years greatly improve the milk flow of all succeeding generations.

It is the universal opinion of the dairyman who has gone into the business of herd improvement through the better sire method that a good investment in a tried sire has paid handsome and royal returns. Often a dairyman will say he cannot afford the price of a good cow, but such should not be the case with the sire.

Where heifer calves are to be maintained in the breeding herd, the scrub bull is expensive as a gift with care and feed provided. There is absolutely no place in a dairy for such individuals and the dairyman who clings to such a fallacy is paying an annual cost far in excess of the price of the best herd sire on the market. The only place for a scrub bull is the sausage machine, and the sooner such practice is put into use the greater the percentage of successful dairies. If a good sire cannot be secured without a sacrifice, sell two, three or four good cows to secure such an individual, as his influence will be felt throughout the herd.

California has come startling results in herd improvement through the use of good pureblood sires. In 1912 one herd had 146 cows producing a daily average of 2,400 pounds of milk, while today that same dairy has a herd of 84 cows producing a daily average of 3,000 pounds, an average daily increase per cow of 18.57 pounds of milk.

Even at a high price, the pureblood bred for production is far better than a scrub at any price. A bred production sire is worth more because he is a purebred or registered high priced, or has a long sounding name, but because he has that ability given him by years of careful selection and breeding to transmit to his offspring the ability to produce greater than their dams.

Look for the production on the sire's side and then look at the individual for conformation, constitution, capacity, vigor and quality. Taken hand in hand, the dairyman is on the right road to success.

Production, constitution, capacity, quality and vigor are stamped into the blood of this herd sire by careful selection and breeding. A type of sire whose real value to the dairyman is hard to figure, but will surely amount to an enormous sum. The bull pictured above is property of Mr. Murphy.

Working Capacity

The "Caterpillar" Tractor is more often purchased on the basis of its actual working capacity than on mere horsepower ratings. It is for that reason that it is so generally chosen in preference to other tractors of higher nominal rating. Big working capacity is the result of a liberal surplus of power over its rating, minimum transmission losses, non-slipping track, trouble-free performance.

VERNON ANXIOUS TO MEET ORIOLES IN POST SERIES

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 16.—Edward R. Maier, president of the Vernon baseball club, pennant winners in the Pacific Coast League, after receiving word today that Baltimore of the International League, had won the class A. A. post-season series with St. Paul of the American Association, said Vernon was ready to "defend the minor league championship" in a series with Baltimore "on any fair and equitable proposition."

Mr. Maier said he had received a proposition that the winner of the eastern series come to the Pacific Coast to play Vernon upon being guaranteed $35,000. He said he considered this sum to be "out of the question."

Baltimore Wins Final Game From St. Paul For Title

ST. PAUL, Minn., Oct. 16.—Defeating the St. Paul team of the American Association 1 to 0 in a hard fought game, the Baltimore International club captured today the minor league baseball championship.

Today's game gave the Orioles five wins in six games. In the second inning, with two out, Shortstop Boley cracked what normally would be a single to right center. Miller, in going for the ball, fell, and it rolled to deep center for a home run, although the throw to the plate by Berghammer, who received the ball from Riggert, made the decision close.

THEY INVADE VISALIA THIS AFTERNOON

which battles the Visalia Pirates this afternoon in the third game of the valley championship series. Each team has won one game. The series is the best five out of seven games. Reading from left to right—Top row: Boles, catcher; Becker lf.; Koener, 1b.; F. Blakeley, manager; Funk, 2b.; Falkenberg, p.; Clare, utility; Gay, 3b. Sitting—left to right: Rose, cf.; Miller, p.; Litschi, ss.; Ritchie, rf.; Shellhouse, utility, and Blakeley, mascot.

LEMOORE MEETS VISALIA TODAY IN THIRD GAME

Dawson May Oppose Cy Falkenberg on the Firing Line

VISALIA, Oct. 16.—Lemoore comes to Athletic Park here tomorrow in the third game of the championship series for the San Joaquin Valley League 1920 pennant with the Visalia Pirates.

Each team having one game to their credit, Manager Mahoney intends distributing his players in this game in high hopes of getting the jump on the series. It is more than likely that Dawson will be found on the mound opposing Falkenburg in the pitching work, unless he should be found not to have proper control when on the warming pan.

Mahoney May Play.

The player-manager may be seen again in the left garden but not until the call of play will that be definitely determined. He has not fully recovered from the effects of the injury sustained two weeks ago when he fell from the top of left field fence lighting upon his back in an effort to prevent a home run from off the bat of Litschi.

Much speculation has been brought about here as to the intentions of the Cub manager. Blakeley was in Visalia Thursday and from his line of argument he has been identified as the "mystery man."

Cubs May Switch Players.

The Cub director made statements that indicate his intention of removing Frank Gay from the line-up entirely bringing in Ritchie from right field who is to be displaced by Felix Claire, former Prodigal. A still further switch is under consideration on the infield by yanking Litschi from short field and substituting McCauley, who has been playing that position with Los Angeles since his departure from Lemoore early in the season.

By what manner of figuring these announced changes can take place under the valley league rules is beyond the understanding three of the directors and manager of the Visalia club and needless to say that such contemplated moves be put into effect the Valley League championship series will terminate at once according to those in authority with the Visalia club.

Cubs Violate Rules.

Lemoore took on Frank Gay two weeks prior to the closing of the scheduled season in violation of the rules as interpreted by attorneys at Lemoore. Then in accordance with a ruling of the directors which permitted each team to add strength to the teams contesting in the championship series not to exceed two players Lemoore announced the acquisition of Goerner and Clair, former Prodigals, which with Gay made three men. But as Manager Blakeley announced that Claire was only to be played in event Boles became injured, Visalia made no formal protest. The new turn of affairs which indicates a revamping of the [illegible] stars and even going outside of the valley league into the Coast league for new timber has stirred the Pirates' management to the point that should the dating move be made either by playing Claire or McCauley, the Tulare county seaters indicate a disposition to call a halt to the pennant series and demand a forfeiture of the championship for violation of league rules, and in this decision fandom and backers of the Visalia club are unanimously behind the team.

Buckman Awaits Move

President Buckman when questioned on the matter today would make no statement for publication, saying "Lemoore hasn't made any such move yet. I will cross the bridge when I get to it."

The league head has several silver cups in his office to be given as trophies at the end of the series. One cup goes to Lemoore and one to Visalia, respectively, as winners of each season half. There is also the permanent championship cup which passes each year to the club winning the pennant for that season. In addition, a cup is to be given to the club that is winner of the series now being played, and one large, beautiful and expensive prize cup to the club that becomes the ~~1920 cham~~pion. This last cup has been bought from proceeds acquired from the earning capacity of $1,000 which was made up of the $500 forfeit deposit placed by each club at the begining of the season as a franchise forfeit, and placed in the National Bank at Dinuba under the supervision of League Treasurer Harkness.

Babe Herman Wins From Georgie Lee

SACRAMENTO, Oct. 16.—"Babe" Herman took a decision from Georgie Lee, Chinese, in the main event here last night. Lee's weight was given as 118 pounds, but his opponent weighed "over 122 pounds," it was announced.

The semi-windup broke up in a riot when Lee Anderson, negro light-heavyweight of Boston and Jim Barry of Petaluma, the principals, locked arm in arm, battled their way through the ropes and into the seats at ringside during the intermission between the second and third rounds. The disturbance started when Anderson claimed a second was putting resin on Barry's gloves. Anderson was arrested and will be held pending investigation.

Bakersfield High Defeats Delano

BAKERSFIELD, Oct. 16.—Bakersfield high school's second football eleven crushed the Delano team yesterday 49-7. Green made the first touchdown for Bakersfield, and Halfback Lewis made three others. Next Friday afternoon the same teams will play at Delano.

URBANA, Ills., Oct. 16.—Illinois strengthened its chances for the Western conference football championship and virtually eliminated Iowa from the race today by defeating the Hawkeyes 20 to 3.

CLINE MATCHED FOR MAIN BOUT ON OCTOBER 26

Matchmaker Jewett Gives Complete Card For Next Show

Boxers Are Cautioned to Train For Bouts in Future

Matchmaker E. L. Jewett of the American Legion boxing association announced the complete card last night for the American Legion boxing show to be held in this city on the night of October 26. Not being able to secure a logical opponent for Tommy Robson, the matchmaker has signed Gene Cline to meet Johnny Cline in the main event. "This bout, according to the matchmaker, will settle an old dispute which has been in the minds of many for some time as to which of the two is the better boy. They will enter the ring at 137 pounds and the bout will be for the championship of the San Joaquin Valley, which title is now held by Gene Cline.

Other bouts on the card are Tommy Gleason vs. Jack Parke, Ted Lewis vs. Joe Livermore, Young Jordan vs. Ted "Kid" Lewis, a new comer in this vicinity, and Kid Fields vs. Kid Romano in the curtain raiser.

Matchmaker Jewett stated last night that he has cautioned each one of the fighters who are to appear on the card that they must train for their fights and if they fail to do so they will be taken off the card. The Legion will not tolerate any fighters who are signed to appear on cards in this city if they fail to fit themselves for their bouts, as in the past several good cards have been spoiled because some of the fighters had failed to get into condition and put up poor fights. Matchmaker Jewett will make the rounds each day to the training quarters to see whether the boys are training or not.

Bradshaw Stars For Sage Brushers; Blue and Gold Plays Well

BERKELEY, Oct. 16.—The University of California football team defeated the University of Nevada here today by the score of 79 to 7. James Bradshaw, Nevada's quarter, was the individual star of the playing, and made possible Nevada's only scoring.

Bradshaw in the last quarter made a thirty-yard run to California's ten-yard line. He then made a forward pass to [illegible], who scored and goal was kicked.

California made gains chiefly on end runs and forward passes. The Nevada line held strong against California attacks in most cases.

MONTANA DEFEATS WASHINGTON 18-14 IN HARD BATTLE

SEATTLE, Wash., Oct. 16.—Washington University's football eleven went down in muddy defeat before the squad of the University of Montana here today when the "Grizzlies" waded and ploughed their way to an 18 to 14 victory, combatting rain and mud as well as the brawn of the Sun Dodger's team.

The visitors outplayed Washington in almost every phase of the game except passing, in which department the local men made a showing which netted them their two touchdowns.

The visitors were able to make yardage almost at will through Washington's line and around the ends. Two of Montana's touchdowns, one by Adams and the other by Berry, were made with sixty yard runs through the entire field of Washington opposition.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Oct. 16.—Ohio State won its first conference football game of 1920 today, defeating Purdue University 17 to 0. The Buckeyes solved the "boilermakers" shift in the first period and by a clever 35-yard pass crossed Purdue's goal two minutes before the period ended. Ohio State's other touchdown in the fourth quarter was preceded by an aerial attack.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Oct. 16.—The defense of the Michigan Aggies, which held Michigan's football team to one touchdown in the first half of today's game, crumbled in the last half and the Wolverines smashed the Farmer line for a 35 to 0 victory. The five touchdowns resulted from straight football.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 16.—Ability to follow the ball enabled the University of Pennsylvania to defeat Lafayette College today, 7 to 6.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 16.—Brown won from Colgate this afternoon, 14 to 0, pushing over touchdowns in the first and second periods.

MADISON, Wis., Oct. 16.—Northwestern University failed to keep its winning pace and lost, 27 to 7 today to Wisconsin. The Badgers played the purple off their feet in the first half. After that, with some substitutes in the Wisconsin line, the Northwestern players kept their opponents scoreless. Northwestern's touchdown in the second quarter came on a fluke play.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 16.—Harvard had little difficulty in rolling up five touchdowns and a field goal against Williams today, winning 38 to 0. The visitors held the Crimson well in the first period and carried the ball to Harvard's [illegible]. For the remainder of the game Williams' offensive never was within fifty-five yards of the goal.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 16.—Princeton overwhelmed the Washington and Lee football eleven today, 34 to 0. The visitors never were dangerous and Princeton scored in every period. Coach Roper sent in a host of substitutes. Cleaves and Laurie starred for Princeton, the former making two touchdowns.

U. OF S. C. WINS FROM STANFORD

Crimson Team Is Outclassed By Southerners in Grid Battle

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 16.—The University of Southern California football team defeated the Stanford University aggregation here today 10 to 0.

Fumbling by both teams, frequently near the goal lines, kept the game from the spectacular. All of the scoring was done in the first half.

The Trojans scored their first touchdown in the early part of the first period when, after several fumbles by both teams, Johnny Leadingham, U. S. C. fullback, and one of the stars of the game, took the ball from Palo Alto's 20-yard line on two off-tackle bucks, and Roy Evans, tackle, constituted the touchdown.

Then the first period ended and with the opening of the second, the ball was taken to the opposite end of the field, and on the first down, Evans kicked a goal from placement.

During the last two periods Stanford played a better game, with fewer fumbles and making downs many times which it had been unable to do in the first half of the game.

Dubby Petrouzee, Cardinal left end, and Wilcox were the Stanford stars. Bad throwing on attempted forward passes kept Petrouzee from playing better than he did.

Modesto High Plays Tie With Fremont

MODESTO, Oct. 16.—Modesto high school and the Fremont high school team of Oakland played a 3 to 3 tie game here this afternoon. Schedule of Games to Be Held Today at City Grounds

Since the announcement yesterday that all the teams entered in the Fall baseball league would take part in practice games on the different playgrounds this afternoon at 2:30, comes the report that the National Guard teams will be unable to play. This will mean that no game will take place on California Field this afternoon.

The other games will take place as announced, that is, the Shadows and the American Legion will play at Holmes playground, and the Colored Giants and F. A. C. will play on Fink-Smith Field.

The games will start promptly at 2:30, and high-class baseball is expected.

40 Acres
Located East of Tipton, near Wylie M. Giffen's big Giffen Fruit Farm subdivision. The soil is a very fine deep silt loam, free from alkali. Water at 25 feet. This 40 is [illegible] planted [illegible]. The district is being rapidly developed by [illegible] and is a good one to invest in. Price $200 per acre. Terms.

80 Acres
Very fine. Right in the midst of Tulare County's best vine, fruit tree, and alfalfa ranches. Faces on paved highway—a corner—roads on three sides. Located 3 miles west of Strathmore. The soil is a dark colored silt loam, rich and soft and easy to work at all times. All level. All planted. Water stands at 38 feet from the surface. The pumping plants on adjoining ranches prove the water supply to be ample and that irrigation water can be cheaply developed. There is no better vine or fruit tree soil in the San Joaquin Valley, and this locality is a high-grade one in every way. Emperor vineyards, Thompson Seedless and Muscat vineyards, apricot, peach, and other orchards of this district are fine, and many of them are owned by Fresno County people.
Price $225 Per Acre. Terms

Giffen's big vine land subdivision. Entirely leveled for irrigation several years ago; 80 acres in alfalfa; some of the balance has been in alfalfa making it ideal to plant vines, being much more valuable than newly leveled land. Two electric pumping plants. 2 houses; barns; all fenced; 3 miles to town and paved highway. Complete set of implements; 4 horses, etc., included. The chattels are worth about $4000. FRESNO MAN IS KILLED IN AUTO CRASH, MALAGA

A. M. Magarian Killed By C. P. Mitchell of Reedley

While Crossing Road to View Accident, Meets Death

A. M. Magarian of Fresno was almost instantly killed about 9 o'clock last night at Malaga when he was struck by an automobile driven by C. P. Mitchell, foreman of the Stewart Fruit Company at Reedley. Magarian died a few minutes after being brought to the emergency hospital in this city.

According to E. A. Paul, who was with Magarian at the time of the accident, the two were crossing the highway to view another automobile accident that had happened a few minutes before, when the car driven by Mitchell struck Magarian and continued to the right of the road striking an automobile belonging to M. L. Robertson, who had parked it there while he was viewing the accident. In Robertson's car were his mother-in-law and baby. They received minor injuries but both cars were badly damaged.

There was a congestion on the highway, witnesses said here last night, caused by the fact that an automobile truck had met with a slight accident and several machines had stopped so that the occupants could have a chance to view the crash. Magarian had been riding with Paull and the two stopped their machine and started to cross the road to view the crash. Almost without warning, Paull said, the car's lights were seen and Magarian was struck. Before the plunging machine could be stopped, it had continued and struck the Robertson machine.

Robertson brought Mitchell to this city where he was interrogated by the officers last night. Magarian it is stated, has a mother, two sisters and a brother living in this city. The injured man was brought to Fresno by Mr. and Mrs. George A. Smith of Merced, but died a short time after reaching the emergency hospital.

Mitchell is the son of William P. Mitchell of Merced and has a wife and child at Reedley.

Deputy Sheriff Winning, who investigated the fatal accident last night, stated that a quantity of beer and a jug of brandy were found in Mitchell's car. A girl, the officers and witnesses said, was struck by Mitchell's car before Magarian was killed. Robertson's car was entirely off the highway, he stated last night and also said that Magarian was not on the highway proper when he was struck.

Sheriff's officers stated at a late hour last night that they had not decided what charges would be brought against Mitchell.

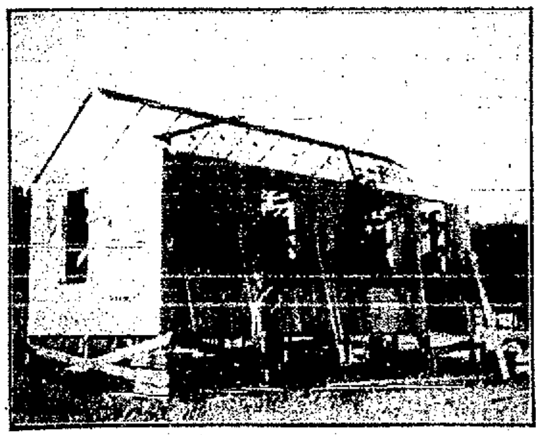
FIREMEN ASSIST DISABLED COMRADE BUILD A HOME



Construction is now under way on the home which the members of the Fresno Fire Department are building for a former member of the force, now disabled, Roy Beckham.

Rallying to the aid of a disabled comrade who was injured in the disastrous Ball fire of June, 1919, so that he is incapacitated for active work, members of the Fire Department are devoting their spare time to the erection of a home for Bert Beckham and his family at Sharp's Station.

The two-room house, which was started last Thursday when eight members of the department went to the location and began the construction of the home, which is now nearly finished and will be completed this week. Beckham is now on the pension list and the members of the department are assisting him and his wife and son with the erection of the dwelling.

On Friday two members of the department took advantage of their free days to assist in the construction and the home will be finished on Wednesday of this week when firemen respond to the call and assist their former comrade.

The firemen have reposed the activity in connection with the construction of the home on Captain R. C. Lacy and through his efforts the members have been recruited to assist in the erection of the dwelling.

Mush Is Used as Missle, So Wife Secures Divorce

Because her husband used a bowl of hot mush at the breakfast table as a missle instead of as a food, Mrs. Margaret Momjian was yesterday granted an interlocutory decree of divorce from A. M. Momjian, a rancher.

The mush, just from the stove and piping hot, fell over her and inflicted second degree burns, she told the court. A portion of it splashed in the 5-months'-old baby of the couple. Dr. J. H. Schaeffer corroborated the woman's story.

Lydia L. Roy informed the judge that she awoke one morning in San Francisco to find her closet denuded of all clothing and found out later that her wardrobe had been exchanged for a pawn ticket b yher husband Arthur R. Roy. A brother helped her redeem her wearing apparel, she said. A decree was granted Mrs. Roy.

Distressing Headaches

Eyestrain—the result of improper functioning of the eyes—is the most common cause of headaches. Only properly prescribed glasses will overcome this malady.

CONFERENCE OF SEALEDS TO BE HELD IN FRESNO

Sectional Conclaves Will Take Place of Convention

San Francisco and Los Angeles Also to Be Meeting Places

Abandoning for the present year the custom of holding a state convention, the sealers of weights and measures for the various counties of California will meet in sectional conferences, one of which will be held in Fresno sometime between Nov. 10 and 25.

F. Blanchard Johnson, county sealer, was advised yesterday in the change of plans. Other conference points will be San Francisco and Los Angeles. In lieu of the convention a departmental examination consisting of sixty questions relating to duties will be prepared and made the subject of the sectional meetings.

In addition to the examination, matters of policy, regulations and other subjects of importance to the department will be considered. Officials from the San Joaquin Valley counties will be in attendance at the local conference.

Announce Berry Standard

Through Sealer Johnson the state superintendent of weights and measures announced the fixing of a weight standard for berries sold in containers. The standard of capacity offers no protection for the consuming public, it is claimed, therefore the weight standard has been adopted.

Raspberries (½ pint 16.8 cu. in.) 8 oz. minimum contents. Tolerance ½ oz. in deficiency; 1 oz. in excess.

"In fixing a standard of weight this department presumes to represent the consuming public by defining under its powers the quantity of berries to be contained in a standard basket. The consumer may not be consulted in the fixing of the price which he pays for the berries, but he has the right under the law to know the quantity of berries in the basket," says the state announcement.

Berries of a different variety than those for which standards are fixed, when sold in containers, shall declare on the container the true net weight of the contents, the state requires. Violations of the regulations are to be considered misdemeanors.
